One Old Indian.
Let Americans Wonder.
Farming for a Loss.
Very Fine Desert.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

WILLIAMS, Ariz., May 22.

THIS IS written on the train traveling East from California. The last glimpse of Los Angeles was one of calm happiness.

Driving on Wilshire boulevard, eastward from the Pacific early this morning, you observe a happy human being, standing at the edge of the roadway, before a handsome residence which he owns. The man is Jackson Barnett, an Oklahoma Indian, 90 years old, and rich, because there is oil beneath the surface of land on which he and his ancestors once hunted the bison.

You will respect Jackson Barnett when you learn that, having in bank $1,100,000 cash, he requested and obtained permission from the government to give $550,000, exactly half, to the Okmulgee Boys' School in Oklahoma.

And because you respect him, you do not smile as the old man stands at the edge of the sidewalk, waving his arms at passing cars innocently, convinced that he, too, is regulating traffic and exercising power.

He said she took good care of him, he was happy with her, but the law said she had married him for his money, a terrible thing in the case of an Indian, and he was not responsible at the time the marriage was annulled.

At his age events do not affect the chief much, and as an intelligent Indian he knows that a white man may be expected to do anything, makes the best of it and directs traffic.

Middle aged "pale face" gentlemen, with dangerously big fists, thick necks, pasty complexions, worried expressions and all that goes with "100 per cent enterprising Americanisms" might wonder as they whirl past in their automobiles and look at that vigorous old Indian aged 90.

He has never had his tonsils out, never had his teeth pulled to prevent "blood poisoning," never had any tooth out except when it got too loose and he pulled it himself with thumb and forefinger. He has never had his blood pressure taken, never took the "metabolism test" to find out whether he was changing his food into good healthy Indian flesh and blood. No need for him to worry about that.

HE SPENDS the day in the open air; even in old age he gets sufficient exercise "directing traffic." For seventy years of his youth he lived out of doors, exercising, breathing deeply, never seeing a desk, a telephone, a typewriter, never heard a charming young typewriter lady say, "Please, Mr. Barnett, do not leave the office until you have finished that mail."

A GOOD WAY to leave California, if you must leave, is to travel by automobile, east from Los Angeles through beautiful Pasadena, lying in the sunshine on the hillside, still eastward through Azuza (what genius invented that name?), through Claremont, Arcadia, over the railroad bridge, through San Bernardino, with its 45,000 energetic population. You travel all the way along the base of the foothill mountains.

WEST OVER the perfect new road that winds upward through the Cajon Pass, four thousand three hundred and ten feet to the summit, then down hill all the way to Victorville. There a little boy on a sled could coast fourteen miles without stopping, only there is never any snow.

"Hello, boys, I am sure glad to see you."

They stand with petrified curls, yellow, brown and black, row on row, like the waves of the ocean. They deliver beer on draught in glasses like gold fish bowls. The "Green Spot" young ladies deliver the beer, but never touch it, the boss doesn't allow it. Besides they were not brought up that way. And there they stand, three female tantaluses, all in a row.

Jimmy Dixon who dispenses "knee action" on a big scale, in Los Angeles working for A. P. Sloan, Jr., and Mr. Knudsen, can remember "when it used to be quite a job climbing the Cajon Pass even in second." Now he sails to the summit in high, "at sixty."

He tells you that as Methuselah might have told you something that happened eight hundred years before. You remember when Robert and Gilbert Hodge moved from Los Angeles through the Cajon Pass to Hodge now named for them, driving a team of mules, and spent one week on the trip, that takes Jimmy Dixon two hours and a half.

Roads were different then, there were none. The Hodge brothers from Buffalo established the alfalfa growing industry on Mojave Desert and what is more took first prize for the best alfalfa grown in three states. They deserved to have the Hodge post office and railroad station named for them.

EVERY FARMER should see the alfalfa growing today on new "lands" on this writer's ranch. Looking down as you drive through is like looking at a thick green velvet carpet, hardly room to put a lead pencil between the leaves, not so much as a tenth of an inch of bare ground visible. Two tons to the acre, with usually seven, not less than six, crops a season, the crop ripening in from twenty-

M'NAIR FACES U. S. GRAND JURY PROBE OVER COYNE TRIAL 'FIX PLOT' CHARGE

SILVER PLEA ISSUED BY PRESIDENT

(Text of President's Silver Message on page six.)

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—President Roosevelt today asked Congress to establish silver as 25 per cent of the metallic currency base of the United States and revealed that he is even now working with other nations toward an international monetary standard embracing both the white metal and gold.

Half an hour after receipt of the President's message on Capitol Hill, Senator Pittman, of Nevada, introduced in the Senate a bill establishing silver as a metallic currency base at a 25-to-75 per cent ratio with gold and providing for permissive nationalization of silver if necessary.

Mr. Roosevelt's assertion that he has already started conversations leading to an international monetary agreement came as a surprise. The President outlined the steps contemplated under the silver operations, told of the need for international action, and said:

"Accordingly, I have begun to confer with some of our neighbors in regard to the use of both silver and gold, preferably on a co-ordinated basis, as a standard of monetary value. Such an agreement would constitute an important step forward toward a monetary unit of value more equitable and stable in its purchasing and debt paying power."

TO COMPLETE PROGRAM

Mr. Roosevelt's announcement of moves toward an international money agreement served notice, in effect, that he considers the time ripe to carry out what he some months ago termed the ultimate objective of his monetary policy. At that time the President indicated the world was in no frame of mind to get together on money. Today's statement indicated the Executive believes important progress toward world co-operation on monetary matters has been made in recent months.

The President did not name the nations with which he has held monetary conversations. In the light of today's announcement, however, recent visits of British Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, to the White House, took on added significance. In this connection, significantly, officials here pointed out the Executive's reference to "debt paying power" in his announcement of progress toward international monetary action.

PRICE 50 CENTS OUNCE

Th silver program sanctioned in the Presidential message embraced mandatory establishment of the white metal as a part of the nation's metallic currency base, and permissive authority to carry out all the necessary steps.

Mr. Roosevelt asked that Congress authorize the "executive authority" to nationalize, or take over, present surpluses of silver in this country, if necessary to carry

SOLES ESTATE ACCOUNT GIVEN

Robert S. Soles, the prosperous McKeesporter, appeaered in court today as the executor of the estate of LaRoux Soles, his wife, in whose death he was acquitted on a murder charge.

This was audit day in Orphans Court and the ex-Army captain appeared with an accounting of his wife's estate, of which he is the princpal beneficiary.

Soles' accounting showed that the principal item of the estate was 16 shares in the Hookless Fastener Company, zipper firm located in Meadville. The stock is valued at $28,000 and produces $600 monthly in dividends.

Soles, whose trial a few months ago was the most prominent in a decade in Allegheny County, was in court but a few minutes.

MYSTERY GIRL CHOOSES JAIL

Arraigned in Morals Court today, she persistently refused to tell her name, address or occupation. She told Magistrate J. W. McGowan:

Her stay at No. 1 Police Station, under care of a matron, seemed of uncertain duration, after Magistrate McGowan had replied:

"Well, we can keep you one week, or two weeks, or until you change your mind."

Miss Mystery was arrested last midnight walking on street car tracks on Second avenue by police of No. 4 Station. Police said she showed no signs of worry.

She has bobbed brown hair, brown eyes and is garbed in a boy's white shirt and a tweed skirt.

NRA INQUIRY ASKED IN HOUSE

Darrow-Johnson War Brings Move for Congress Action

Developments today in controversy over the NRA included:

1—A demand in the House for Congressional investigation of charges embodied in the Darrow blast against NRA codes.

2—Gen. Johnson's declaration indicating a Socialist 'camp followed' framed the Darrow report. And Darrow's promise that his second attack will be more startling than the first.

3—Preparation by the Federal Trade Commission for a showdown battle with NRA over alleged violation of anti-trust laws through codes.

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Congressional investigation of NRA codes, based upon the Darrow board's report, is provded in a resolution introduced in the House today by Representative Britten, (Rep.) of Illinois.

Asking that the Darrow board be continued until the investigation can be completed the resolution set out that the board found that under many codes "the cost of living has increased while wages have not risen accordingly" and that "the sole barrier against complete, grafting and irresponsible monopoly is the small businessman who is now faced with extinction."

DARROW FEUD RAGES

Meanwhile, the fire which Clarence Darrow built under the NRA by his report, charging it with fostering monopoly and squeezing the little fellow, grew hotter today.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, Recovery Administrator, coupled with his sweeping denial of the truth of Darrow's finding the charge that Darrow's "camp followers" really framed the report. He evidently referred to Charles Edward Russell, one-time Socialist candidate for the presidency, and William O. Thompson, a law partner of Darrow's, both of whom aided the grizzled Chicagoan in the writing of the report.

Johnson declared he promoted the Board of Review, of which Darrow is chairman, because he thought it would point out specific evils that could be corrected by the NRA. Johnson explained:

"Mr. Darrow assured me that that was his idea, too. If we had only Mr. Darrow and the original board to deal with, we would have got some real constructive action. It was the camp followers who came in later who caused the trouble."

SECOND BLAST DUE

Darrow's reply was to the effect that if Johnson considered the first, or preliminary report, to be startling, he should await the second one, now in course of preparation. One of Johnson's favorite expressions is "You haven't

5 U. S. GOLFERS ADVANCE

Johnny Goodman, United States Open champion, defeated W. M. Robb, Briton, 5 and 4, in a first round match postponed from yesterday, and George Dunlap, Jr., American Amateur titleholder, gained the third round by defeating A. W. Breault, of Detroit, 1 up. Johnny Fischer won over Gus Moreland, 3 and 2, in another match in which Americans were opposed.

Jesse Guilford and Jack Westland chalked up two more American victories in second round play, the former defeating Lister Hartley, former member of the British Walker Cup team, 4 and 3, and the latter winning over Col. A. W. Tait, of St. Andrews, 4 and 3.

P. A. Valentine, little-known entrant from New York, lost to E. W. Layton, Briton, 6 and 4.

'Shooting Butts' No Job for Wife, She Testifies

Testifying in her suit for divorce from Leo McCarthy, of Warner street, Mrs. Winifred McCarthy, of 1519 West North avenue, today told Judge Thomas M. Marshall her husband struck her when she refused to salvage cigaret butts from gutters.

She said:

"Because I wouldn't go 'shooting butts' for him he struck me."

On another occasion, she said, he struck her because she would not call a taxi for his mother.

ACCUSATIONS OF FIRED EMPLOYE BRANDED FALSE BY MAYOR

Light-hearted William N. McNair, in office as Mayor less than six months, today faced the serious prospect of being investigated by a federal grand jury.

Agents for the United States Department of Justice today were busy digging into the charges that McNair and his secretary, Theodore L. Moritz, tried to persuade James P. Bailey, discharged city assessor, to change his testimony in Federal Court to favor State Senator James J. Coyne.

It is under stood that a Federal Grand Jury will be recalled, after the Coyne trial, to hear the charges against the Mayor and his secretary. Bailey and Timothy Bailey, who is said to have been present at a conversation between his brother and McNair, are expected to be witnesses.

COYNE TRIAL NEAR

Coyne and 11 others are scheduled to go on trial tomorrow or Thursday on charges of conspiracy in connection with the November (1932) election.

McNair today branded as lies Bailey's charges, made yesterday before a startled Council. Moritz, too, entered a denial.

Five federal agents were present, by prearrangement, in Council when Bailey spoke out. And a Federal Court stenographer was there taking a transcript of the charges.

Today this transcript was in the hands of United States Attorney H. S. Dumbauld.

In Washington, Attorney General Cummings said that the case was entirely in the hands of Dumbauld. And Dumbauld would say only:

"Mr. Bailey is a witness for the government in the case of Senator Coyne and others . . . It would be manifestly improper for the United States Attorney's office to do anything now.

"That would tend to affect the testimony to be given at the trial by Mr. Bailey."

Attorney O. K. Eaton, counsel for Senator Coyne, announced that he had no intention of asking for a postponement of the Senator's trial because of the Bailey charges.

Bailey's charges were made after Council had adopted a resolution presented by Councilman John M. Huston calling for

ALIBI DEFENSE FOR WESTWOOD

An alibi for Squire James J. Westwood was furnished today in Federal Court, where Westwood, Dr. Joseph G. Steedle, the McKees Rocks Assemblyman, and five others are being tried on charges that they conspired to steal the November (1932) election.

Westwood's alibi was brought out after government attorneys had obtained a court order directing the clerk of Stowe Township to supply records showing all persons arrested in the township in November, 1932—month of the disputed election.

'FIX' PLOT CHARGED

Government prosecutors had contended that Westwood was present when Dr. Steedle told Frank K. Boyer, Mt. Lebanon

MAYOR TO NAME G. O. P. LAWYER

Mayor McNair again has City Hall in an uproar regarding the selection of a police magistrate.

Apparently undisturbed by Council's refusal to confirm the Rev. James R. Cox for the post vacated by Charles J. McCall, the Mayor has announced he will send in the name of Attorney Anthony Lucas for the position.

Attorney Lucas is a Republican and was a student at the University of Michigan Law School when McNair attended that institution. He has lived in Pittsburgh since October, 1921. Concerning his choice of Lucas, McNair said:

"I want to protect myself by putting one Republican on as magistrate."

Council President Robert Garland, explaining his vote against Father Cox, said:

"I didn't think it was proper for a cleric in orders to take a police magistracy. Besides, there are many other well-qualified men who are out of work and need the money to support their families."

Priest, 'Burbank' Of Bees, Dies at 59

NORTH EAST, Pa., May 22.—(AP.)—The Rev. Martin G. Hepner, one of America's foremost experts on bees, died last night in the sacrisy of St. Mary's Redemptorist Missionary College as he was about to don vestments to celebrate benediction. He was 59.

Father Hepner, known as the "Burbank" of the bee industry through cross-breeding to produce a superior strain, developed many methods of bee control while removing honey.

Phils Face Birkofer In Series' Windup

BAKER BOWL, Philadelphia, May 22.—The Pittsburgh Pirates and Phillies fought for the "rubber" game as they wound up their three-game series this afternoon.

Ralph Birkofer, young left-hander, warmed up to face the Quaker hitters in the finale. Manager Wilson had Ed Holley ready for the slab call.

The Pirates will leave for Boston tonight. A three-game series between the Buccos and Boston Braves will begin there tomorrow.

Astrid's Baby May Be Another Albert

BRUSSELS, May 22.—(INS.)—The name of Albert I, late king of the Belgians, will be perpetuated in his grandson if the child soon to be born to Queen Astrid is a boy, it was disclosed today.

If a girl is born, she will be named Elizabeth, after Albert's widow, the dowager queen. It will be the third child of the royal couple.

Gasoline Prices Increased Again

A second increase in the price of gasoline within the past few weeks was announced today by the Gulf Refining Company and the Atlantic Refining Company. The new prices are 18 cents a gallon for motor and 20 cents for ethyl, an increase in each grade of one-half cent a gallon.

10 Persons Hurt In Crash of Ferry

CAMDEN, N. J., May 22.—(INS.)—en persons were reported injured today when a Reading railroad Delaware River ferryboat crashed into tis slip at the Camden terminal. Ambulances, rushed to the scene from nearby hospitals, removed the injured to hospitals.

Death Faces Professors, Hostages in Strike

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, May 22.—(AP.)—Jugo-Slav students, in control of two university buildings, stood off a police attempt to suppress their rioting today with the warning that they would throw five professors, they hold as hostages, from the high windows if the police enter.

Six hundred students, including 60 co-eds, took over the two buildings yesterday.

Police were rushed from all over the capital city to form a cordon around the university district.

They have cut off the water which supplies the building and have also stopped the water mains for all buildings within a two blocks' radius of the university buildings.

The police announced they expected an early surrender of the stubborn students as a result, but this afternoon the students still defied the authorities.

The students' leaders announced they had filled every available recepticle in the two buildings with water and that they had sufficient food to stand off a five days' siege.

As hostages they hold the dean of the faculty of law, the dean of philosophical faculty, and three other professors.

Already they have smashed most of the furniture in the buildings and have destroyed laboratory equiptment in the famous scientific institution worth thousands of dollars.

They said they would not leave unless the police cordons were withdrawn.

When the strike broke out, the leaders of the students announced they were protesting against the retention of the present minister of education, Ilija Sumenkovich. He was appointed to the cabinet January 27.

Thunder Showers Ease Heat's Grip Here

Slight relief from Pittsburgh's spring heat wave, which is believed to have been responsible for the collapse of Visiting Judge Norman T. Boose in his chambers today, was afforded by thunder showers this afternoon.

Judge Boose, who has been occupying the chambers and courtroom of Judge W. Heber Dithrich, returned to the bench several hours after his collapse following treatment by Dr. C. A. Koenig, of the City Home and Hospital, Mayview, who was summoned from another courtroom.

Temperature at 2 p. m. was 75 degrees, one degree below that recorded at noon and seven degrees higher than the 9 a. m. recording.

Rain also fell in many areas of the drought-stricken central states, and thunderstorms were predicted for Philadelphia and other sections of the east.

TRADE COMMISSION TRUST PROGRAM BLOW AT NRA

SUIT MAY MEAN DOOM OF BASIC MAJOR CODES

Price Fixing, Monopoly To Be Assailed By U. S. Board

By KENNETH CLARK
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—A showdown battle with the NRA over alleged violation of anti-trust laws in NRA codes was being prepared today by the Federal Trade Commission.

The clash, striking at the very foundation of the NRA system, is expected to lead shortly to legal steps by the commission to smash monopolistic practices, Universal Service learned.

It brings two departments of the federal government into conflict over one of the most important policies of the administration.

COMPLAINTS LOOM

Several large industries, all operating under codes approved by NRA, are under investigation by the commission. When the inquiries are completed, it is expected the commission will file complaints under the anti-trust laws.

The result, officials predicted, may force drastic revision of alleged monopolistic codes and even abandonment of some of them.

First action may come in the steel industry, the code for which the commission already has sharply criticized. As a consequence, the NRA is revising the code.

If the revision does not remove what the commission considers illegal monopolistic practices, it is proposed to summon leaders in the steel industry for a hearing.

LEGAL POWERS

The commission has full legal authority after hearings to issue cease-and-desist orders and to prosecute violations in the courts.

The controversy between NRA and the commission centers on the provision in the NRA authorizing suspension of anti-trust laws.

Commission officials accuse the NRA of assuming falsely that the NRA can suspend the anti-trust laws in their entirety in codes if so desired.

On the contrary, the commission points to a proviso in Section 3-A of the act, which says:

LAW DISREGARDED

The commission's examination has convinced officials that in many instances this provision has been disregarded.

In light of this situation, commission officials feel it is their sworn duty to take action to break up monopolies in restraint in trade.

Price fixing under the codes also is drawing the commission's fire. It is going into this problem carefully.

Aside from its own authority, the commission is armed with an executive order of President Roosevelt, issued January 20, 1934, to take jurisdiction over anti-trust violations in NRA codes.

STEEL INVOLVED

In its report on the steel code, the commission gave a hint of its intention to resort to independent action to test anti-trust violations.

After reciting the code departs from "hitherto accepted policies of governmental concern over the maintenance of fair competition," the commission said:

"It has been assumed thus far that the departure has the sanction of a Congressional mandate embodied in the NIRA. The test of whether such a sanction is actually present in that act can, of course, be submitted to the courts for determination. But other means for the solution of such an issue are also available."

Commission officials have now reached the conclusion that the "other means"—anti-trust complaints—are necessary.

The second report will deal with the board's investigations into additional codes, affecting the lumber and petroleum industries.

Darrow indirectly criticised the White House for the manner in which his report was withheld from publication until Johnson and his aides, principally Donald R. Richberg, NRA general counsel, could examine it and issue a simultaneous counter-blast. Darrow said:

"We hope that in common fairness the next report will not be held 17 days to give these young gentlemen (of the NRA) a chance to read into it things that it does not contain and to pervert its meaning by placing things out of their context."

Meanwhile the future of the Board of Review became somewhat uncertain. Unless its life is extended it will automatically expire on May 31, or so at least is the administration viewpoint. On the other hand, the board has hearings scheduled well into the middle of June, and apparently Darrow and his fellow members on the board have no intention of quitting.

ECHOES IN CONGRESS

In Congress, the stormy verbal warfare between Johnson and Darrow is being watched. Both have their champions. The Darrow report alienated a good deal of support it otherwise would have had, however, by inclusion of that portion stating the country had a choice between government-sponsored monopoly and socialized ownership and control of industry. The word "socialism" is still anathema to the average member of Congress.

The Republicans are watching the battle with glee; the Democrats with some chagrin.

Senators Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, and Nye (Rep.), of North Dakota, who sponsored the Board of Review, agreed with Darrow's findings in the main. Nye said:

"It will take more than a few high-sounding adjectives by Gen. Johnson to scrap the Darrow report."

Borah said he was more interested in seeing the anti-trust laws restored and enforced than in the Johnson-Darrow controversy. He added:

"I have abundant evidence myself that small business is being destroyed and monopoly is operating under these codes to the detriment of the consumer."

BULGAR CABINET WALKS TO KING

SOFIA, Bulgaria, May 22.—(AP.)—The "walking cabinet" of Premier Kimon Gueorguieff began hacking away today, as promised, at the high cost of government in Bulgaria.

The ministers themselves set an example in thrift yesterday. Eschewing motor transportation, they went on foot to the palace for their first official call on King Boris since they seized power Saturday in a bloodless coup d'etat.

Wholesale "resignations" of civil officials were predicted as the government began bearing down against overlapping bureaus.

A general program of consolidation and simplification of official business was undertaken.

DIRECT BALLOT FIGHT RESUMED

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(AP.)—Republican independents and Democrats united in the Senate today to drive for another vote on the Norris constitutional amendment to abolish the electorial college.

Friends of the proposal, which is designed to make independent candidacies practicable, were confident they could force reconsideration of the vote by which the Senate rejected it yesterday.

Senator Norris, (Rep.), of Nebraska, author of the amendment, had the almost solid support of the Democrats as well as the votes of all his western independent colleagues as he sought reconsideration.

The official outcome yesterday was 42 to 24 for the amendment, but Norris himself voted against it so he could move for the reconsideration. Otherwise the vote would have been 43 to 23—just short of the necessary two-thirds.

Mine Dynamiting In Strike Fails

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 22.—(AP.)—Dynamite thrown at the washer house of the Empire mine of the Debardeleben Coal Corporation in Walker County today fell short of its mark, and a shift of a score of men at work in the mine escaped injury. The dynamite was thrown from a speeding car.

STEEL WORKERS HINT STRIKE OVER UNION

Recognition, 'Living Wage' Demanded Of Operators

The steel industry was threatened wtih a strike today in a finish battle for union recognition and increased wages.

Emerging from a conference of local union officials and the executive committee of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, Clarence Irwin, "rank and file" leader from Youngstown, O., declared:

"We are preparing for a strike. We are only demanding recognition of our union under the NRA and a living wage.

"This is a battle between the solidly intrenched steel industry and the steel workers. We need and desire the co-operation and help of all steel workers, organized and unorganized, employed and unemployed in our efforts for the betterment of the industry."

Their attitude followed that taken by nearly all of the nearly 200 steel companies in the United States yesterday in declining to grant immediate union recognition. nUion representatives made the demands on all mills yesterday.

According to International Secretary Louis Leonard, about six lodges had reported by telephone that mill operators had greeted their demands for recognition with a non-committal statement:

"We are complying with the provisions of the National Recovery Act."

The Carnegie Steel Company, the National Tube Company in McKeesport and the Bethlehem Steel Corporation in Johnstown had given such answers to delegations which visited them.

Youngstown Operators Balk at Recognition

YOUNGSTOWN, O., May 22.—(AP.)—Officials of three large steel companies here announced today that they will not recognize the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers.

A statement issued by the Republic Steel Corporation said.

"Recognition would mean a closed shop and to this the company is unalterably opposed."

Similar replies were given Amalgamated delegates at local offices of Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company and Carnegie Steel Company at Cleveland, five steel companies were presented with a series of demands from the Steel and Metal Workers' Industrial Union, said to represent about 5,000 of that city's 20,000 steel workers. Frank Rogers, district secretary of the Cleveland union, said efforts would be made to cooperate with the Amalgamated to obtain acceptance of the demands.

WOMEN GASSED IN SHIRT STRIKE

YORK, Pa., May 22.—(AP.)—Girl strikers at the Nirenberg clothing factory threw themselves in front of a truck while companions attempted to dump its cargo of finished shirts, but tear gas sent them flying.

Police fired several tear gas shells to break up the crowd, and Miss Marie Reachard, 19, and Miss Ethel Goetz, 26, president of the local union of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, fainted. A third striker, Miss Mary Emig, 21, was treated at a hospital after being scratched on the arm during the melee.

Franz Daniel, of Philadelphia, strike director, said he has written the NRA Compliance Board at Philadelphia, requesting an investigator be sent to York to look into workers' allegations of code violations.

MACHADO FOUND BY REPORTER, VANISHES

Ex-President of Cuba 'Vindicates' Regime In Statement

NEW YORK, May 22.—(AP.)—The New York Post today said it had located and interviewed Gen. Gerardo Machado, former President of Cuba, in New York, and at the same time printed the first of a series of copyrighted articles obtained from the Cuban fugitive.

The Post said its representative, through a friendly intermediary, located and interviewed Machado "at a spot where neither the general nor the reporter had ever been before," and added "this newspaper has no knowledge of Gen. Machado's present whereabouts."

'VINDICATES' REGIME

It took the reported just four days to find the Cuban ex-President, "three nights and four days of alternate encouragement and discouragement" and then a meeting was effected yesterday morning. The place of meeting was described as "in midtown" New York City.

Machado looked tired and distressed when he walked into the room. "Buenos dias," was his greeting as he walked across the room. There was no handshaking. The general stood six feet away, his hand resting on the back of a heavy chair. He began slowly:

"I have a statement vindicating my regime."

Asked for the statement, the general, without taking his eyes from his visitor, drew forth a sheaf of papers, handed them to the reporter, bowed and smiled and said "adios."

In the first article he wrote of leaving the presidential palace last August 12 after withdrawing from the presidency.

BLAMES ANARCHISTS

He charged that the slogan that served "to destroy me was of the purest anarchy—namely to destroy everything." He wrote:

"In point of truth, during the last years of my service, I was the victim, and the young men believed me a beast of prey. I seemed a beast of prey because, in the face of all possible risks, I did not permit anarchy to fall upon the country for which my fathers before me and I as a youth fought to gain her independence.

INSULL LOSES FIRST SKIRMISH

CHICAGO, May 22.—(AP.)—The government today admitted "for the purpose of argument," the allegation of Samuel Insull that he was "shanghaied" from Turkey, but insisted that even if the farmer utilities czar were kidnaped from aboard a Greek ship, he was now properly in the jurisdiction of the Federal Court.

Federal Judge Sullivan, after an hour's hearing, took under advisement Insull's plea attacking the jurisdiction of the federal courts to try him on mail fraud and bankruptcy act violation indictments.

Insull, now a resident of a Gold Coast hotel where Samuel, Jr., has his home, was not in court to hear the arguments by his attorney and the government prosecutor.

Cost of Relief Increases 20 Per Cent

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(INS.)—Cost of living has a meaning—even for unemployed on relief rolls. Harry L. Hopkins, Federal relief administrator, said today that this cost has risen 20 per cent. He said it was due to increased cost of the things bought for relief purposes and did not mention the NRA.

Connie Features Harriman Bank Drama In Court

MISS TALMADGE AT COURT

Movie Star Denies Purchase of Securities

NEW YORK, May 22.—(AP.)—Constance Talmadge made a personal appearance for the government yesterday in the current banking drama involving Joseph W. Harriman and alleged false entries in the books of the Harriman National Bank and Trust Company.

Miss Talmadge was a depositor in his bank. Her account was charged for $34,312.50 on the books of the bank on April 25, 1932, for a purported purchase of bank stock. Her balance at the time in joint account with Margaret L. Talmadge was $96,000.

The movie star made a grand entrance to the court, a retinue of federal clerks, stenographers and photographers following her from the office of Assistant United States Attorney Jacob Rosenblum.

She was called to the stand as "Mrs. Netcher," and she gave her name to the clerk as Constance Talmadge Netcher. Rosenblum asked:

"Did you at any time purchase any Harriman National Bank stock?"

She said:

"I did not."

"Did your mother?"

"No, she did not."

"Specifically, did you authorize the purchase of any stock on April 25, 1932?"

"I did not."

"Nearly a hundred thousand dollars."

She identified her bank statement for April, 1932, and said there was nothing on it about the stock purchase.

NEW STOCKYARD TO RISE ON OLD

CHICAGO, May 22.—(AP.)—A new and fireproof stockyar s, yet one with familiar features, will rise from the ashes of the one almost wiped out by fire last week.

The nine-story Exchange Building will probably not be razed. Its walls and foundations are intact. At the time of the fire, 127 commission firms had offices there—the nerve center of the vast industry.

One of the little ironies of the fire was the fact that the 80 acres across which the conflagration raged was literally lined with water. The vast acres of the stock pens were filled with metal and stone water troughs from which beasts might drink and these troughs were supplied with water from an intricate network of pipes and conduits which placed spigots on tap every few feet.

BAN ON CHACO ARMS FAVORED IN HOUSE

Hull Cites Failure to Bring Peace in South America

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(AP.)—The administration's proposal to give President Roosevelt authority to stop sale of arms in this country for Bolivia and Paraguay was approved unanimously today by the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

A letter from Secretary of State Hull cited there had been warfare intermittently between the two countries in the Chaco since 1928 and continuously since 1932, with the loss of many thousands of lives.

War in any part of the world was of interest to the United States, the letter said, adding that war between two countries in the Americas was even of greater importance.

The governments of Bolivia and Paraguay, it said, had refused all efforts of nations to bring about honorable peace and added that their attitude as to concillatory attempts indicated that nothing could be accomplished along that line.

The United States, it continued, was willing to join other nations in not permitting the sale of arms for profit to those countries.

CRUCIAL FIGHT IN CHACO NEAR

ASUNCION, Paraguay, May 22.—(AP.)—Furious fighting raged today along scattered sections of the Chaco front as Bolivian forces maneuvered in an attempt to draw the Paraguayan army into a premature offensive upon Fort Ballivian, Bolivia's most important stronghold.

An advance of the Paraguayan left wing to the north was reported, but the Minister of Defense in Asuncion said information from the battle zones indicated the Paraguayan command was not ready to launch its general advance.

Between the Paraguayan army and the fort lies a mile-wide plain. Beyond, before Fort Ballivian, the Bolivian troops—though smaller in numbers—are strongly entrenched. Paraguay has 40,000 men concentrated along a 25-mile front; Bolivia 15,000 in and before the fort.

THOMAS SEEKS TEST OF 'GAG'

TAYLORVILLE, Ill., May 22.—(AP.)—Norman Thomas, Socialist leader, declared today that his arrest on a speaking platform here late yesterday was a "denial of the right of free speech."

He said he was "eager" to test the authority of officers who took him into custody and dispersed with tear gas an audience he was addressing.

Thomas, Socialist candidate for President in 1932, who was held in custody 45 minutes, assailed the legality of a speech gag rule in Taylorville, which is the outgrowth of mine union disturbances in Southern Illinois.

Also held temporarily was the Rev. Douglas Anderson, Socialist candidate for Congress, in whose interest Thomas was speaking. Thomas said:

"I regard this as an arbitrary denial of the right of free speech and am eager to make this a test case about the indiscriminate use of tear gas by irresponsible public officials."

Anderson was arrested when he took the stand after Thomas was removed. Tear gas bombs were thrown but the crowd re-assembled when the wind carried the fumes away.

Sounds Fire Alarm For Novel Suicide

CHICAGO, May 22.—(AP.)—Police advanced the theory today that an unidentified middle-aged man turned in a false fire alarm, then stepped into the path of a truck to end his life as it roared by.

The truck driver saw the man walk toward him last night, but was unable to swerve in time.

Steel Men Cling to Code And Defy 'Big Bad Wolf'

The small steel men would oppose leaving the steel code and putting themselves in the position of the three little pigs running to the big bad wolf for protection, Frank R. Frost, president of the Superior Steel Corporation, said today.

The steel company official made the statement in criticizing the report of the National Recovery Board of Review headed by Clarence Darrow. He said the board's report suggests the tactics of "the big bad wolf" are necessary for industrial recovery. He said:

"There has been one advantage in having such a report as the Darrow board report made public, and that is that the smaller buyer of steel and the smaller producer of steel will certainly have it impressed upon his mind that the protection offered by the steel code is very much more advantageous than to return to the competition, which, according to the Darrow code, is supposed to be 'savage, wolfish and relentless.'"

"It seems to me that there has been no proper appreciation for the good work accomplished by these gentlemen in bringing order out of the chaos that existed in the steel industry at the time the National Industrial Recovery Act was passed. It should be borne in mind that the recommendations for the code of fair competition came into existence by law and not by any recommendations of the steel industry.

"Under the law the steel industry has established a code of fair competition under the jurisdiction of the Code Authority, and since that time the industry has worked faithfully to establish a decent code of business ethics, as well as fair trade customs under which the small buyer and the small seller have been placed in a better position than ever before in the history of the industry."

Japan's Envoy Deplores 'Suspicions and Fear'

CHICAGO, May 22.—(AP.)—Hirosi Saito, Japanese Ambassador to the United States, urged last night "implicit confidence by our two peoples in each other's genuine purpose to serve at the altar of peace and progress" in the Far East.

He deplored the "misgivings, suspicions and fear" he said were now current between Japan and the United States and warned that "we should not permit any group of Chinese to arouse ill-feeling between us."

"Japan's motives in the Far East are not different from the motives of the United States in this hemisphere," declared Saito, speaking at a dinner of the Army and Navy Club and the American-Japan Society.

"They consist in the bringing about of a higher state of security and order, of a better condition of affairs in the regions in which we are vitally interested, and of a condition of affairs acceptable to the rest of the world.

"Japan is determined to fulfill her responsibilities fully and successfully as the principal stabilizing influence in Eastern Asia. Japan's genuine aim in Eastern Asia is the establishment of peace and order. We have no idea whatever of aggression or expansion."

Japan's policy in Manchuria he defined as "not aggression but self-defense."

'BRAIN TRUST' BRAINLESS, GENE HOWE'S SURVEY HOLDS

'YES MEN' AIDES OF ROOSEVELT, SAYS EDITOR

President's Wife No. 1 Advisor, High Rank For Miss Perkins

AMARILLO, Tex., May 22.—(AP.)—Gene Howe, Amarillo editor, said today a survey he had just completed revealed President Roosevelt as "having complete mastery of the nation," in contrast with the 50 men James W. Gerard said were running the United States.

Howe, son of Ed Howe, famous Kansas editor, and a controversialist who has tilted with Mary Garden and other notables, picked 49 of the President's chief advisers "who are consulted at his pleasure rather than their leisure." He called at least half of them "yes" men, and said:

"There is not one of the remainder who can speak for the President without first consulting him."

'FIRST LADY' NO. 1

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt heads the list of advisors which Howe, with the aid of newspapermen in Washington, New York, Chicago and other eastern cities, selected after a month's survey. Howe said:

"Hugh Johnson is a bogey man who over did it. He takes orders from the President. The thunder is his own, the lightning Roosevelt's.

Howe said he found the "brain trust not very brainy" and Roosevelt's cabinet "mediocre." He said:

"One or two of the cabinet members simply answer roll call. They don't know what it is all about. Cordell Hull, Henry Wallace and Harold Ickes stand out in the cabinet.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Lou[illegible] McHenry H[illegible]etary to the President; [illegible] Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture; Fran[illegible] L. Perkins, Secretary of Labor; Cordell Hull, Secretary of State.

Harold F. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior; Dr. Felix Frankfurter, Harvard brain truster, labor expert; Jesse H. Jones, of Texas, chairman of the RFC; Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York; Dr. Leo Wolman, of the Labor Advisory Board.

Harry L. Hopkins, Administrator of Federal Relief; Lewis W. Douglas, Director of the Budget; Bernard M. Baruch, financier; Prof. Frank W. Taussig, Harvard brain truster, tariff expert; Donald Richberg, counsel for the NRA.

Senator James F. Byrnes, of South Carolina; Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Secretary of the Treasury; Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA Administrator; James M. Farley, Postmaster General; Senator Joseph Robinson, of Arkansas, floor leader.

OTHER ADVISORS

The remaining 25 are Homer Cummings, Attorney General; Joseph B. Eastman, co-ordinator of transportation; William I. Myers, governor of the Farm Credit Administration; Robert Fechner, director of CCC; Daniel C. Roper, Secretary of Commerce; George Dern, Secretary of War; Claude A. Swanson, Secretary of the Navy; David Stearn, Philadelphia and New York newspaper publisher.

Prof. Rexford G. Tugwell, Columbia University brain truster and Assistant Secretary of Agriculture; Prof. G. F. Warren, of Cornell, monetary advisor; Jerome Frank, counsel for the AAA; Robert Kahn, director of housing for PWA; Henry Morgenthau, Sr., former Ambassador to Turkey and assistant treasurer of the Roosevelt campaign committee; Raymond Moley, former Assistant Secretary of State, now a magazine editor; Samuel Rosenman, former legal adviser to the Governor of New York.

Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, of New York; James M. Landis, of the Federal Trade Commission; Jesse I. Strauss, Ambassador to France; William C. Bullitt, Ambassador to Soviet Russia; Sumner Welles, Assistant Secretary of State; George N. Peek, foreign trade adviser; Frederic A. Delano, chairman National Planning Committee; Jefferson Caffrey, Ambassador to Cuba; Vincent Astor, scion of a wealthy New York family.

No. 4 Among Advisers

FRANCES PERKINS . . . "IF A MAN . . . SHE'D BE PRESIDENT"

Labor Secretary Perkins, rated as the No. 4 advisor to President Roosevelt in Gene Howe's survey of the New Deal's administration. Roosevelt Secretary Howe: "If . . . a man she might be a President herself."

PAID RIVAL $200, WIFE DECLARES

Mrs. Mary Kearns testified before Magistrate J. W. McGowan in Morals Court today that she paid Miss Rose Senneway, 32, $200 in 1929 to "keep away" from her husband.

Mrs. Kearns appeared at the hearing of her husband, Charles Kearns, 47, of 35 Briggs street, Overbrook, on charges of having thrown Miss Senneway from his automobile, then beating her, in front of the Senneway home in Nobles lane, Carrick, last night.

Kearns testified he had pushed Miss Senneway from the running board when she sought to prevent him from going home. He said they had both been drinking.

Miss Senneway is in South Side Hospital, recovering from injuries she alleges were inflicted by Kearns. The hearing was continued. Miss Senneway is a sister of former Police Capt. Phillip Senneway, now a city detective.

'NUMBERS' LINK CONSTABLE

After pleading no defense to two charges of operating a lottery, Richard Davis, 40 a Negro, of Epiphany street, in Criminal Court, today charged Constable Leonard Miller, of Squirrel Hill, with having attempted to prevent him from "infringing" on the territory of other "numbers salesmen."

Judge W. Heber Dithrich postponed sentence for further investigation of the case after Miller had denied Davis' charges.

Davis said Miller told him in the office of Alderman Sol Goldstein, of Squirrel Hill:

Davis was arrested twice by Miller, once on March 19, the second time six days later.

BANK HOLDUP LINKS GANG

GALION, O., May 22.—(AP.)—Two bandits with a machine gun invaded the Commercial Savings Bank here yesterday, scooped up between $3,000 and $4,000 in cash, and escaped after forcing three persons to accompany them while being pursued by a posse of officers.

The three were forced to jump from the car while it was traveling 35 miles an hour.

A possibility that members of the Dillinger gang were involved was seen when officials announced the license number of the car was the same as that on an automobile used by two men who robbed a Fostoria (O.) bank of $17,000 and shot and wounded five persons, incluing Police Chief Frank Culp.

Elissa Landi's Hubby Silent on Divorce

LONDON, May 22.—(INS.)—"I am not interested," John Cecil Lawrence, London barrister, told a newspaper correspondent today when asked about the suit for divorce which has been filed against him by Elissa Landi, film actress, now in Hollywood.

Lawrence refused to say whether he would contest the action, based, according to Hollywood dispatches, on mental cruelty.

EVELYN WEEPS AS FATE NEARS U. S. JURY

Loved Dillinger, Says Indian Girl; Tells Of Flight

ST. PAUL, May 22.—(AP.)—Evelyn Frechette, French-Indian sweetheart of John Dillinger, wept in a federal courtroom today as she heard her counsel, Louis Piquett, of Chicago, plead with a jury in his final arguments to free her and "send her back to the reservation."

With the completion of final arguments by attorneys for Miss Frechette and two co-defendants, Dr. Clayton May and his nurse, Mrs. Augusta Salt, on trial for conspiracy to hide the notorious outlaw, the government began its final arguments.

George F. Sullivan, United States attorney, told the jury that Dr. May, Mrs. Salt and Miss Frechette all knew that Dillinger was wanted by the law and discredited the defendant's claims that they feared for their lives if they reported him.

LOVED DILLINGER

"You knew that Dillinger was a criminal when you were with him in Florida?"

Miss Frechette replied:

"Yes, but I got so I loved Mr. Dillinger."

From the time of her arrest in Chicago April 9, she testified she was not allowed by Federal operatives to eat or sleep until about 3 a. m. April 12.

She denied having told H. H. Reinecke, Federal operative in Chicago, anything. He previously had testified Miss Frechette had related her movements with Dillinger and said he once placed his fingers under her chin to lift her head and asked her:

"Please look in my eyes, Evelyn, when I am talking to you."

Under questioning of her attorney, she said:

"I'd say he hit me and he didn't say 'please.'"

TELLS OF FLIGHT

Of the appearance of officers at the St. Paul apartment March 31, she said:

"Mr. Dillinger asked me who they were and I said police. 'Well, don't let them in,' he said. 'Come on and get dressed.' I said 'What are you going to do,' and he said 'Never mind, get dressed.'

"I was putting some thing in a suitcase and he was in the front of the apartment when I heard shooting.. I said 'My God, don't shoot. Go on and leave me.' He said 'No, you are going with me. Get that grip.'"

She related how they drove to Minneapolis, where Dillinger was treated in the apartment of Mrs. Salt by Dr. May.

She insisted she does not know where the outlaw is.

2 'Toy Gun' Figures Back on Jail Jobs

CROWN POINT, Ind., May 22.—(AP.)—Sam Cahoon, handy man around the Lake County Jail, who was charged with aiding John Dillinger's "wooden gun" escape, has been reinstated to his position as man-of-all-work by Sheriff Lillian Holley. The case against Cahoon was dismissed for lack of evidence by Judge Harold L. Strickland recently.

Ernest Blunk, also charged with aiding the jailbreak and acquitted of the charge, has been reinstated to his position as court fingerprint expert, authorties announced.

Striking Truck Drivers Rioting

STRIKERS, ARMED WITH CLUBS, GOING INTO ACTION IN MINNEAPOLIS TRUCKERS' STRIKE

Action in the streets of Minneapolis in a riot that was only a preliminary to that Monday in which more than 50 were injured, seven seriously, when bitter fighting broke out between police, pickets in the market place. This is an International News Photograph Service picture.

STRIKERS AGAIN BATTLE POLICE

MINNEAPOLIS, May 22.—(AP.)—Rioting mroke out afresh today as a militant crowd of striking truck drivers surged through police lines at the city market place and engulfed the scene of yesterday's disorders, where at least 37 were injured.

Windows of several commission houses were shattered.

As the strike ended its first week, the Regional Labor Advisory Board announced that only one point of contention remained to be ironed out.

The remaining contested point concerns written contracts between truckmen and employers. In a compromise offer the union will demand contracts only with firms where 51 per cent of the drivers are union men.

Airplane Donated 'As Crime Chaser

MINEOLA, N. Y., May 22.—(AP.)—The gift of an airplane to Nassau County, wealthy suburban community, by an anonymous donor to be used in combating kidnapings and other major crimes was announced today.

In the event of a kidnaping or bank robbery all traffic in the county will be halted by police and signal lights. From the air the county's pilot will spot moving cars and direct police pursuit of them by radio, if necessary joining the chase himself.

Alfonso Disclaims Desire for Throne

LONDON, May 22.—(INS.)—Former King Alfonse, of Spain, has sent letters to monarchists leaders saying that in the event of a restoration of the Spanish monarchy he will not be prepared to accept the throne, an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Madrid said today.

PAPALE 'KICKS,' STILL RAIDED

Two persons arrested in a police liquor raid following a complaint by Magistrate Charles Papale, were held for state revenue authorities after arraignment today before Magistrate J. W. McGowan in Morals Court.

They are Vincent Rosato, 21, of 1113 Larimer avenue, and Lela Cooper, 38, Negro, said by police to have rented the house at 130 Auburn street, East End, where the raid took place.

According to police they seized a large still, 21 barrels of mash and a small quantity of moonshine.

Led by Inspector Jerry Deasy and Lieuts. Mike Murphy and Frank Shine, the raiding squad descended upon the three-story frame structure after Papale complained of the odor of alcohol near his home. The house had been under observation for several days, police said.

Police were forced to break a large window and part of a wall to toss the still to the ground from the third floor. The still was about 125-gallon capacity, several vats of mash were also found and paraphernalia was seized.

RADIO OVER SEA AIDS SUFFERER

LOS ANGELES, May 22.—(AP.)—Over 3,000 miles of the Pacific, a message was relayed today to a hospital here asking for medical advice which might save the life of William Robinson, round-the-world traveler, author and son-in-law of the late C. H. Crane, millionaire manufacturer.

Robinson, the message said, has been stricken with acute appendicitis aboard his 30-foot boat in Tagas Cove, in the Galapagos Islands, where he and several others were engaged in scientific research. The message was transmitted from the fishing boat Santa Cruz.

Dr. Edgar Spear, of the hospital staff wirelessed the Santa Cruz to pack Robinson in ice and to keep him perfectly quiet.

The rivers are falling. Stage at Franklin is 0.8 foot; Lock No. 7 (Mon.), 11.4; Pittsburgh, 10.4; Dam No. 4, 9.1; No. 6, 7.5; No. 10, 8.5, and No. 12, 6.9. The dams are up.

DAVIS ORDERED EXTRADITED TO ILLINOIS

Removal Waits Rule By Court Here on Appeal

Tom Davis, Jr., acquitted two weeks ago in the slaying of State Highway Patrolman Herbert Brantlinger, lost a legal tilt today immediately to regain his freedom, when Gov. Pinchot granted his extradition to Inllinois.

Actual extradition of Davis, however, cannot be carried out until the Allegheny Common Pleas Court rules on a petition for a writ of habeas corpus filed by Defense Attorney Robert Ivory, Jr. The petition is returnable Friday.

The 19-year-old South Hills High School senior is wanted by Sheriff J. D. Erlinger, of Clinton County, Illinois, on charges of assault with intent to kill and robbery with a gun.

HELD IN JAIL

Since his acquittal in the Brantlinger killing, Davis has been held in County Jail here.

He is accused of shooting a deputy sheriff, robbing a filling station and stealing four automobiles in Illinois.

At a hearing yesterday in Harrisburg, attorneys for young Davis opposed extradition, contending that Illinois waived its rights to the boy when he was returned to Pittsburgh to stand trial.

Gov. Pinchot signed the extradition warrant today without comment, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Harrisburg.

FACES CHARGES HERE

Although Davis was given a clean slate in the murder of Brantlinger at a gasoline station near Bridgeville last September 3, he still faces charges of breaking and entering in Pittsburgh.

He was unable to furnish bond in these cases set at $30,000.

The jury that acquitted him of murder deliberated approximately 42 hours and was scored for its verdict by the court.

DRUGGED CANDY RING BARED

International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 22.—A monster racket ring, which preys upon children in New York and other large cities as far west as Chicago by selling them bon bons filled with cheap alcohol was expected to be exposed today by investigators of the Federal Department of Agriculture.

At least two indictments against alleged members of the ring have been voted secretly in Brooklyn during the past week, it was learned.

The ring is believed to have taken in more than $500,000 in the past six months, chiefly through the penny and 2-cent purchases of the alcoholized candy by school children.

No arrests have been made so far.

Existence of the ring was brought to light by McKay McKinnon, star investigator of the food and drug division of the Department of Agriculture, who was assigned to the case five months ago when a flood of cheap, alcoholic candy deluged the Christmas holiday market in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Newark, Paterson, Buffalo, Cleveland and Chicago.

MILLEN'S SONS 'DUMB BELLS'

DEDHAM, Mass., May 22.—(AP.)—Joseph Millen, father of Murton and Irving Millen, declared on the witness stand in Dedham court today that his family was made up of "a lot of dumb bells" and admitted that he had abused Murton many times during the accused man's life.

Murton is 26 years old, and he and his brother, Irving, and Abe Faber are charged with slaying a Needham policeman during a bank robbery. The father had been called on to aid in the defense claim that both men were insane.

The father broke into tears as he told of conditions in his home. He said Murton would often do things that angered him, and, the father admitted, "I used to abuse him once in a while." Murton's lawyer asked if it were not true that the father abused him constantly. Millen said:

"Yes, I did, and I am sorry for it now. My wife was a very nervous woman, and the children were not too bright, none of them. A lot of dumb bells I call them. They seemed to think I was a greenhorn and they were Americans."

Women Assail Rector's Attack on 'First Ladies'

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, May 22.—Three prominent Pennsylvania women today took up the cudgel in behalf of their sex and plunged vigorously into the controversy engendered by criticisms of Mrs. Fraiklin D. Roosevelt and Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, which were uttered by the Rev. Dr. David McConnell Steele, rector emeritus of the fashionable Protestant Episcopal Church of St. Luke and the Epiphany.

The embattled clergyman was vehemently assailed in statements issued by Miss Anna Brancato, the only woman Democrat who sits in Pennsylvania's State Legislature; Mrs. W. Ellis Groben, newly-elected member of the Republican State Committee, and Mrs. Gustav Ketterer, prominent feminine civic leader of Philadelphia. Miss Brancato declared:

"Dr. Steele is a neighbor of mine. I don't know him personally and perhaps it's a good thing I don't. He is a so-called liberal, but his recent utterances hardly fit in with liberalism."

The minister's opinions regarding the First Lady of the nation and the First Lady of the state already have embroiled him in a heated verbal battle with Secretary of the Commonwealth Richard J. Beamish. Yesterday he let loose another barrage at Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Pinchot in which he averred:

"All I want is to have these females go home, mind their own business and shut up."

Continuing her attack on Dr. Steele, Miss Brancato said:

"The clergyman is lagging a bit in the trail of the times, and his latest flareup against Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Pinchot is an indication, to my mind, that he is becoming childish."

Girls at Vassar Happy, Marriage Ban Off

International News Service.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., May 22.—The Vassar campus was the scene of much merrymaking today as the undergraduates learned of the college's official ruling that girls may marry and continue as students without violating any rules.

This ruling, which is a distinct departure from Vassar tradition, was announced by Eleanor Dodge, warden of the college, and it is believed to have been inspired by recent marriages of students who remained in their classrooms.

Agitation for a more liberal view of the student marriage problem reached a peak recently following a lecture by Dr. Frank Dickinson, a professor at the University of Illinois.

Dr. Dickinson, who is best known for his system of rating football teams, advocated permission for college girls to marry.

STUDENTS RUSH TEXTS FOR RUSHMORE

Students throughout Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and Northern West Virginia today were rushing their Mount Rushmore inscription texts to completion.

While the official closing date is midnight, May 30, many schools in the tri-state district which are actively participating with their own committees have had to advance the time due to the classes ending before Memorial Day. The participating schools which continue terms into June are being governed by the official date of May 30.

The official date also will apply to those students and pupils of colleges and public schools which do not have participating committees. These entrants will submit their 600-word texts of America's epic direct to the Pittsburgh Rushmore Committee, care the Sun-Telegraph.

WARNING GIVEN

Regardless if the student entries are submitted through committees or direct to the newspapers EACH TEXT MUST CONTAIN THE NAME OF THE SCHOOL AND GRADE. Failure to conform to this rule means the students will suffer a disadvantage. Such unmarked texts will be placed in the adult class where they will be judged against entries of older participants.

The same ruling applies to Boy Scouts who are submitting texts through their participating council. The school and grade must be marked. If their scout council has no participating committee, the entries can be submitted through their schools. If the latter are among the few not participating, the scouts will send them direct to the Pittsburgh committee.

Students should not forget that no entry will be considered if it contains more than 600 words. That means, every date and subtitle will be counted. If only a numeral is used between episodes, it will be counted. So be careful not to exceed 600 words.

MUST HAVE EPISODES

Remember that each and every-one of the nine specific episodes of history stipulated in the rules must be contained in the text. These episodes were chosen by the Mount Rushmore National Memorial Commission. The Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst newspapers are conducting the nation-wide competition for the commission and in accordance with its stipulations.

Those who failed to save the rules which have been repeatedly published can obtain copies of a special free holder at the Sun-Telegraph downtown office, Fifth avenue and Market street. The folder will be mailed but a STAMPED, SELF-ADDRESSED ENVELOPE MUST ACCOMPANY THE REQUEST if you want it sent.

PRESIDENT ASKS SILVER MONEY APPROVAL

out the program. His message suggested a price of not more than 50 cents an ounce, and asked that a tax of "at least 50 per cent" be imposed on profits accruing from dealings in silver.

Mr. Roosevelt described the operations involved in establishing silver as part of the nation's currency base as a program which would not seriously disturb the country's world trade. At the same time, he stressed the need for international action in order to attain a permanent "measurement of value" for the whole world. Speaking of this need, he said:

"To arrive at that point (an international standard), we must seek every possibility for world agreement, although it may turn out that this nation will ultimately have to take such independent action on this phase of the matter as its interests require. . . .

"The ebb and flow of values in almost all parts of the world have created many points of pressure for readjustments of internal and international standards. At no time since the efforts of this nation to secure international agreement on silver began in 1878 have conditions been more favorable for making progress along this line."

PLAN EXPLAINED

Today's Presidential message described the projected silver action as a move toward a national currency system that would be "both sound and adequate." Reviewing his earlier action in devaluing the American dollar in gold content, and outlining what he termed the "larger objective," the President said:

"As a part of the larger objective, some things have been made clear. One is that we should move forward as rapidly as conditions permit in broadening the metallic base of our monetary system and in stabilizing the purchasirg and debt paying power of our money on a more equitable level. Another is that we should not neglect the value of an increased use of silver in improving our monetary system. Since 1929 that has been obvious."

The Executive asserted there were certain measures which this nation could take independent of international action, and others in which world co-operation should be sought. He described action by this nation independently as an effort to remedy a "maladjustment" of American currency. Outlining this step broadly, the President continued:

"Of the former (independent) class is that of increasing the proportion of silver in the abundant metallic reserves back of our paper currency. This policy was initiated by the proclamation of December 21, 1933, bringing our current domestic production of silver into the Treasury, as well as placing this naton among the first to carry out the agreement on silver which we sought and secured at the London Conference. We have since acquired other silver in the interest of stabilization of foreign exchange and the development of a broader metallic base for our currency. We seek to remedy a maladjustment of our currency."

EXCHANGE BILL TRUCE STRUCK

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(AP.)—House and Senate conferees had struck a compromise today on the disputed question of how much power the stock exchange regulating commission should have to require financial reports and statements from corporations with listed securities.

They accepted a Senate provision giving the commission authority to require whatever information it might deem necessary for the protection of investors when a new issue was to be listed.

For the period after listing, however, they approved House language limiting the frequency of financial reports to quarterly, leaving unchanged a clause requiring the corporations to keep the original information reasonably up to date.

Again the conferees postponed action on such controversial matters as whether the Federal Trade Commission or a specially created board should be given the task of administering the bill.

HOUSE TO PASS INDUSTRY LOAN

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—The House today prepared to pass a bill putting Uncle Sam in the role of banker with a fund of $440,000,000 to be loaned to private industry.

The measure, which passed the Senate, was brought before the House in revised form. Leaders said its passage was certain and differences will be adjusted in a Senate-House conference.

Designed to aid industry in creating employment, the campaign for the bill was originated to aid industries forced to bear higher costs by the NRA codes and have found it difficult to secure bank loans.

The House bill permits the loan to any one corporation to $100,000, and the loaning power expires January 31, 1935. The Senate authorized loans of $1,000,000 to any one corporation.

While the Senate authorized $250,000,000 RFC funds for this purpose the House raises the total to $300,000,000.

NURSE CLEARED IN KILLING

RATON, N. M., May 22.—(AP.)—Freed of murder charges arising from the fatal shooting March 11 of Henry McWright, Augusta (Ga.) ex-serviceman, Miss Inez Callahan, former veterans' hospital nurse at Augusta, was en route today with her adopted daughter to visit friends in Denver.

A sealed verdict of acquittal, returned by the jury after one hour of deliberation Saturday night, was opened in court yesterday.

Miss Callahan, alleged by the state to have shot McWright as he lay asleep in a tourist camp here, said she was returning to her home in Seneca, S. C., by way of Denver and the Pacific coast and expects to arrive in Seneca early in July.

HAWAII MOURNS CHINAMAN

HONOLULU, May 22.—(AP.)—With incense, lowered voices and deep respect, Honolulu's Chinatown mourned today the passing of Lew Ah Leong. He was their shining example of the rags-to-riches tale, coming from the Orient to Hawaii 58 years ago a poor man and dying Saturday a millionaire, at 78.

Ah Leong's store opposite the fish market, one of the most commodious in Honolulu, was closed for observance of Oriental rites, awaiting the coming from China of a son for the funeral.

In addition to hundreds of friends, white and yellow, Ah Leong was mourned by 10 sons, three daughters and 58 grandchildren.

one to twenty-three days in this hot sun, with hundreds of millions of tons of irrigation water added to the sunlight.

The writer is able to take a humorous view of the fact that the alfalfa grower loses six to eight dollars on every ton of hay grown in this depression. It is not humorous for some other farmers, obliged to let their crops dry up and by the way apply for public relief. The writer hopes that the government's income tax department will not decide that he is raising alfalfa "for fun" or, as income tax dignitaries put it, "to indulge a rich man's whim."

As he isn't a rich man, hasn't time for "whims" and every dollar spent in alfalfa ranching goes for seed that other farmers grow, electric current provided by the utilities, and for labor, besides a modest contribution for the only two banks within the reach of the ranch, both of which folded up like the Arabs and "as silently stole away."

FARMERS REALLY ought to see that Mojave Desert alfalfa, and the clear stream of water pouring from a well only eighty feet deep, sixty thousand gallons an hour, into a reservoir, two hundred feet long. But let them not come to the Mojave Desert, where this writer has five thousand acres, with any idea of farming at a profit just now. There are one thousand better places for profitable farming, all of them gloomy enough.

FROM HODGE, where a temperature of 105 seems cool when the breeze comes from the Pacific Ocean over snow-capped mountains and sweeps across the alfalfa fields 2,500 feet above the sea, you go along roads perfect now from one ocean to the other, far different than days when pioneer trans-continental automobile racers drove their cars hundreds of miles over the railroad ties.

You reach Barstow and Mr. Harvey's hospitable emporium, with the dining room closed for the evening. But "of course we will open up again." They do anything for you out West. Then, with nothing to do until 4 o'clock in the morning when you catch the "chief" eastbound on the Santa Fe, you have time to observe that the big stars and young moon look much brighter in the desert sky.

TEXT OF MESSAGE ON SILVER

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—The text of President Roosevelt's silver message to Congress follows:

To the Congress of the United States:

On January 11, 1934, I recommended to the Congress legislation which was promptly enacted under the title, "The Gold Reserve Act of 1934."

This act vested in the United States Government the custody and control of our stocks of gold as a reserve for our paper currency and as a medium of settling internatonal balances. It set up a stabilization fund for the control of foreign exchange in the interests of our people, and certain amendments were added to facilitate the acquisition of silver.

As stated in my message to the Congress, this legislation was recommended as a step in improving our financial and monetary system. Its enactment has laid a foundation on which we are organizing a currency system that will be both sound and adequate. It is a long step forward, but only a step.

FAVORS BROADER BASE

As a part of the larger objective, some things have been clear. One is that we should move forward as rapidly as conditions permit in broadening the metallic base of our monetary system and in stabilizing the purchasing and debt paying power of our money on a more equitable level. Another is that we should not neglect the value of an increased use of silver in improving our monetary system. Since 1929 that has been obvious.

Some measures for making a greater use of silver in the public interest are appropriate for independent action by us. On others, international co-operation should be sought.

Of the former class is that of increasing the proportion of silver in the abundant metallic reserves back of our paper currency.

This policy was initiated by the proclamation of Decemeber 21, 1933, bringing our current domestic production of silver into the Treasury, as well as placing this nation among the first to carry out the agreement on silver which we sought and secured at the London conference.

We have since acquired other silver in the interest of stabilization of foreign exchange and the development of a broader metallic base for our currency. We seek to remedy a maladjustment of our currency.

RECOMMENDS INCREASE

In further aid of this policy, it would be helpful to have legislation broadening the authority for the further acquisition and monetary use of silver.

I, therefore, recommend legislation at the present session declaring it to be the policy of the United States to increase the amount of silver in our monetary stocks with the ultimate objective of having and maintaining one-fourth of their monetary value in silver and three-fourths in gold.

The executive authority should be authorized and directed to make the purchases of silver necessary to attain this ultimate objective.

The authority to purchase present accumulations of silver in this country should be limited to purchases at not in excess of 50 cents per ounce.

The executive authority should be enabled, should circumstances require, to take over present surpluses of silver in this country not required for industrial uses on payment of just compensation, and to regulate imports, exports and other dealings in monetary silver.

PROPOSES TAX

There should be a tax of at least 50 per cent on the profits accruing from dealing in silver.

We can proceed with this program of increasing our store of silver for use as a part of the metallic reserves for our paper currency without seriously disturbing adjustments in world trade.

However, because of the great world supply of silver and its use in varying forms by the world's population, concerted action by all nations, or at least a large group of nations, is necessary if a permanent measure of value, including both gold and silver, is eventually to be made a world standard.

To arrive at that point, we must seek every possibility for world agreement, although it may turn out that this nation will ultimately have to take such independent action on this phase of the matter as its interests require.

The success of the London conference in consummating an international agreement on silver, which has now been ratified by all the governments concerned, makes such further agreement worth seeking.

TIME FAVORABLE

The ebb and flow of values in almost all parts of the world have created many points of pressure for readjustment of internal and international standards. At no time since the efforts of this nation to secure international agreement on silver began in 1878 have conditions been more favorable for making progress along this line.

Accordingly, I have begun to confer with some of our neighbors in regard to the use of both silver and gold, preferably on a co-ordinated basis, as a standard of monetary value. Such an agreement would constituted an important step forward toward a monetary unit of value more equitable and stable in its purchasing and debt paying power.

We selected this India Tea for icing because of its full bodied flavor. And we think our idea of packing it in ice tea glasses is a good one. You'll collect a set in no time with the iced tea season just beginning.

For centuries the Chinese have used the following method of brewing tea:

(1) Use only fresh boiling water.
(2) Use only an earthenware or China tea pot, if possible.
(3) Clean pot thoroughly with boiling hot water before using it.
(4) Add two teaspoonfuls of McCanns Iced Tea for each cup of water for icing (one if you're serving it hot), but vary according to taste.
(5) Pour fresh boiling water in pot and let it steep at least 5 minutes.
(6) Pour over ice cubes.

A RECIPE FOR SOMETHING DIFFERENT

IN THE MISSES' SHOP

. . . to give CHARACTER to WHITE and PASTELS; "Add prints, using the skill in mixing that it takes to produce a concoction both tasty and cooling."

Behold the results in the white pebble crepe frock sketched, with sleeves, flower and jacket of pure silk ruby-and-white print. And the maize-colored costume of the same fabric, with scarf and belt of hand-blocked linen in brown-orange-and-white. Other equally delectable mixtures have been whipped up for this innovation.

WASHABLE SHEERS

You've liked the comfort of sheers, you've lauded the practicability of washable crepes, and NOW you may enjoy the advantages of both combined, in these frocks that are both cool and tubbable.

There is choice of dark grounds with white or colored figures, and medium or light grounds with soft or bright-colored designs. You may have rather dressy frocks, like the cape one sketched, (left) with its smart glove-length sleeves; and wide choice of jacket models, all with frocks having sleeves that cover the upper arm gracefully. Regular sizes 34 to 44, and some in half sizes.

GOTHAM POETS HAWK WARES 'TO LIVE'

NEW YORK, May 22.—(AP.)—Poets scraped remnants of faded advertising posters from a departed circus from the green boards of a Washington Square fence today and tacked up poems, hawked their literary wares from the curb.

There was much of love and the futility of life and hatred of war in the verses the 30-odd members of the Ravens, a Greenwich Village poetry club, presented on those green-painted boards.

Said one, explaining why all sold poems for 25 cents each:

"A pittance, but we must live."

So in the bright sunlight, the poets came from their garrets to Widow Bruno's old boarding house to hold their annual open-air market, some almost in rags, some in fine clothes—but all imbued with poetic fervor.

"Time rushes by,
Red-eyed, foam-flecked, galloping
Like rolling thunder
In the sky."

PROUD OF ODE

Dark-skinned and bright, eyed, a tiny girl nearby told of her search for beauty in poetic lines. She is the daughter of Rabbi Grodsky, of St. Louis, and writes under the nom de plume of Tooni Gordi.

One of her poems, typed on a piece of gay red cardboard, attracted more than ordinary attention. Of this Miss Gordi was proud, saying, "It's one of my best."

"When life is curling up my heart
And rain comes dancing on my mouth,
It is the flutter of the song birds
Careening to the South."

COUNTESS AND LOVE

"My, how these poets grovel in gloom," said one well-dressed visitor, inspecting the work of John Cabbage, who is a bard by night and a mate on one of the city's garbage scows in the harbor by day.

Close by were the poems of Jack Sellers, stoop-shouldered, with long, bushy hair, who once was middle-weight boxing champion of the Navy's Atlantic fleet. He talked with a French countess, whose poems were mostly of love.

New Playground For South Side

A lease for playground purposes of property of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company at South Sixteenth street, South Side, is proposed in an ordinance now before Council. The annual rental is set at the amount of yearly city and school taxes. The ordinance was introduced by Councilman Thomas J. Gallagher.

IT'S CAKE LIKE MOTHER USED TO BAKE

A cake her mother, and her mother's mother before her, baked, wins Mrs. M. O. Benesch, of McKeesport, the first prize today. She calls her cake Lady Finger cake because it tastes so much like lady fingers, further commenting:

"Baking powder may be omitted in making this cake, for the recipe hails from the times when there was no baking powder. It is my mother's recipe given her by her mother and my mother is now 97 years old."

Whether your recipes date back through the centuries or they are of your own invention, send them in to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, so they may compete for the daily $5 and $1 prizes. No recipes are returned.

Five Dollar Prize Winner

MRS. M. O. BENESCH,
541 Shaw avenue, McKeesport.
LADY FINGER CAKE

One-half pound sugar,
Six egg yolks,
Four whole eggs,
One-half teaspoon lemon peel, chopped.

Place ingredients together in bowl and beat until very thick, using a rotary egg beater. When thick mix in six ounces of flour, sifted three times, with one-fourth teaspoon salt and one teaspoon baking powder. Bake in buttered three-layer tins.

FILLING

Three ounces chopped almonds or other nuts,
One and one-half ounces sugar,
A little lemon peel,
One whole egg,
One egg white.

Mix together well. Place evenly on layers. Sprinkle top with powdered sugar or use butter frosting or any other favorite frosting. If desired baking powder may be omitted from batter recipe.

Five $1 Prize Winners

MRS. SHERMAN SANTMYER,
Scottdale R. R. 1
AMERICAN KEDGEREE

This is an adaptation of a famous East Indian delicacy. One medium sized onion chopped fine and browned in one tablespoon of fat or oil. To this is added one teaspoon curry powder and one teaspoon lemon juice or vinegar. The mixture is cooked five minutes. Then there is added one pint of diced cooked potato; one pint of cooked kidney beans and the chopped whites of two hard-cooked eggs. This is heated in a stew pan or baking dish, salted and peppered to taste and served with the top covered with the yolks of the hard-cooked eggs rubbed through a sieve.

MISS BARBARA ANN YAGUSIC,
177 High street, Etna.
SLOVENIAN COOKIES.

Six egg yolks,
Two tablespoons cream,
One-quarter teaspoon salt,
One-half teaspoon vanilla,
Two cups flour.

Sift flour into deep dish, make a nest with your spoon, pour the egg yolks, salt and cream into it. Beat flour gradually into mixture, making it as stiff as noodle dough. Roll almost as thin as paper, cut into squares, or strips and fry in deep hot fat. When done they are twice their size. Dust with powdered sugar. When they are a deep brown they are done.

JAY HOOPER,
2727 Broadway, Dormont.
CHEESE PUFFS

One cup American cream cheese,
One-half teaspoon baking powder,
Three egg whites.

Grate the cheese. Beat egg whites until firm, adding baking powder at the last. Fold in the cheese and place on slightly toasted rounds of bread. Place under a slow fire for about five minutes until egg white is firm and cheese melted. Too high a heat will cause the puff to fall. Serve with slices of tomato and sprigs of water cress alternated around plate.

MISS ELIZABETH CHARLES
New Hartford, N. Y.
YORKSHIRE FRUIT LOAF.

Four cups flour,
One teaspoon salt,
One cup milk,
One-half yeast cake,
One-half cup sugar,
One-third cup shortening,
One-half cup raisins,
One-half cup currants,
One-fourth cup seeded raisins,
One-fourth cup chopped citron,
One-half teaspoon ginger,
One-fourth teaspoon mace.

Heat shortening in milk, then cool and add yeast mixed with a little sugar, stir in flour and salt, and allow to rise four hours. Mix sugar, fruit, peel and spices into risen dough. Let rise again about one hour or until double in size and divide into loaf tins which have been greased. Allow to rise 15 minutes, then bake in moderate oven of 375 degrees for one hour and a half.

MISS BLANCHE CHANEY,
21 North Avenue, Washington.
PECAN NUT PIE

One-fourth cupful of butter,
One-half cupful of granulated sugar,
Three eggs,
One cupful of dark corn syrup,
One-half cupful of chopped pecan meats,
One-eighth teaspoonful of salt,
One-half teaspoonful of vanilla,
Pastry shell, unbaked.

Cream the butter and sugar. Add the eggs, unbeaten, and mix well. Add the corn syrup and stir thoroughly. Add the chopped nuts, salt and vanilla. Place the mixture in the unbaked pie shell. Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees) for 10 minutes, then reduce the temperature to 325 degrees and bake for 45 minutes, or until the filling is firm. During the baking the nuts will rise to the top and toast to a golden brown. Serve warm or cold in small pieces, since it is very rich.

WED WITH RITES CENTURIES OLD

BRISTOW, Okla., May 22.—(AP.)—East and West met here in the ancient Arabic wedding ceremony of Miss Lucille Razook, of Wichita, Kan., and Thomas Naifeh, of Bristow.

Dressed in the robes of the Greek Orthodox Church, the Rev. George Cohlmia intoned in Syrian the ancient marriage phrases.

The wedding guests were entertained by dancers who performed the intricate evolutions of the debkah, ceremonial Arabic dance.

The feast, served after the ceremony, included 10 sides of beef, 40 sides of lamb, a 50-pound wedding cake and many other delicacies.

All had been planned by the bridegroom's father, Joseph T. Naifeh, a retired wholesale grocer, who adapted the 2,000-year-old marriage rites for his son and his son's bride.

Sewickley Choir To Make Debut

SUIT ATTACKS AIR MAIL BAN BY FARLEY

The cancellation of the air mail contract of Pennsylvania Airlines, Inc., by Postmaster General Farley had been taken into court today.

Suit was entered by the company in the District of Columbia Supreme Court yesterday, asking that Farley be compelled to rescind his order anulling the contract held by the company on the Washington-Pittsburgh-Cleveland route.

The suit asked an injunction to prevent Farley from enforcing the cancellation or awarding the business involved to any other concern.

PLEA TO ROOSEVELT

It was stated that prior to the cancellation, the company asked President Roosevelt to investigate and determine whether it had been involved in any irregularities. It offered to carry mail 60 days free of charge while the investigation was in progress, the suit stated, but the only reply was a notice from Farley that the contract had been canceled.

The company is owned by Pittsburgh Aviation Industries Corporation.

A. L. Humphreys, chairman of the board, said the suit was determined upon after every effort had been made to obtain a hearing. He added:

"This is not a suit against the United States government, nor is it an interference with a function of government by executive authority. Such a suit could not successfully be prosecuted. Our present action against Mr. Farley is a suit to prevent a cabinet officer from exceeding his authority."

CITES VITAL ISSUE

He said the matter transcends the interest of the company, asserting:

"It is of vital concern not only to the people of the Pittsburgh district, but to every American citizen as well. The question involved is whether or not a servant of the people can confiscate private property without due process of law."

MIX MUST PAY MILLER CLAIM

HARRISBURG, May 22.—Tom Mix, film cowboy, must pay $66,000 to Zack T. Miller, former operator of the 101 Ranch, for alleged breach of contract, the Supreme Court ruled today.

Mix appealed the decision of a jury in the Erie County Civil Court, awarding Miller that amount. A former verdict for $90,000, returned two years ago, had been set aside on Mix' petition for a new trial.

Miller alleged Mix agreed to go with his show in 1929 and then went with Sells-Floto, a rival circus organization. The movie cowboy denied having accepted Miller's offer.

LAWYERS' FEE APPEAL DENIED

The Pennsylvania Supreme Court, sitting in Harrisburg, today refused the appeal of the law firm of Watson & Freeman, which was suing the Diamond Alkali Company for a $350,000 fee.

The high court upheld Judge James R. Macfarlane.

Attorney John M. Freeman had sued on the grounds that his firm was instrumental in recovering stock from certain directors who were reputed to have transferred the stock to a holding company.

Prisoner to Deny Slaying of Girl

SAN FRANCISCO, May 22.—(INS.)—Granted a three-day delay in entering his plea today to an indictment accusing him of attacking and murdering pretty Louise Jeppesen, 23-year-old Ogden, Utah, girl, Millard R. Hickman, 45, will plead "not guilty" when brought into Superior Court Thursday.

When the indictment was read at Hickman's arraignment yesterday, Defense Counsel Harry A. McKenzie requested a week's postponement and was given until Thursday.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS :-: By Paul Mallon

Administration Finds Too Much Intrigue 'Backstage'

WASHINGTON, May 21.—There never has been more petty backstage political intrigue in Washington than has sprung up lately inside the administration.

Cliques of Liberals and Conservatives have become audacious, trying to pull the President one way and another. So have groups of schemers trying to get jobs or hold the ones they have.

A few of the plots and counterplots have been brought to the attention of the White House. Some of President Roosevelt's best think-men have reached the conclusion that there are too many people in the government working for their own ends instead of Mr. Roosevelt's.

Shortly, an effort will be made to separate the sheep and goats. Among the goats may be found an attorney prominently identified with one of the largest emergency setups, as well as a few Liberal hangers-on.

EXODUS

Simultaneously, a number of college professors in the administration have grown restless. Apparently their colleges do not appreciate what important jobs the professors are doing here. The colleges want them to make up their minds whether they want to be teachers or public officials. A few have been told that their college jobs cannot be held open beyond September.

There also are a few professors who have reached the conclusion that they can save the world better in college. They do not take well to the political life of backslapping and back-biting. Their idealistic desires do not always fit in with the political exigencies of a situation and some have become discouraged.

So, for one reason and another, you may expect an exodus of men of learning from the government before the September semesters start.

PLANS

All this fits in rather well with administration plans.

Before these things came up, the master minds had decided that a mild reorganization of personnel in the NRA, AAA, et al, was desirable. For some weeks Mr. Roosevelt has had scouts out looking over big league political prospects out in the country. His henchmen explain privately that he is eager to get "a better type of men" in some of the secondary government positions.

SMOOTHNESS

The President has a flair for handling his political family troubles. The way he smothered the Thorp case is an example.

The politicians forced Thorp out all right, but it was an empty victory for them.

The case had all the possibilities of a first class explosion. Democratic partisans worked everything around to where they induced the President to withdraw Thorp. At the same time, Assistant Commerce Secretary Dickinson threatened to resign unless a man of Thorp's qualificaations was selected in his place.

The politicians had a candidate whose name never has been divulged. They would have been satisfied also if Mr. Roosevelt had let Thorp's assistant serve for a while.

The President fooled them completely by naming Dickinson for the job. That kept Dickinson from resigning, and thwarted the efforts of those in Thorp's bureau who had stirred up animosity to him.

BET

Gen. Farley's righthand man, Emil Hurja was riding on a Senate elevator the other day, when he was introduced to Senator David Reed's righthand man, Theodore Huntley.

Mr. Hurja said he was mighty glad Reed had been nominated in Pennsylvania because he thought that made it certain the Democrats would win up there in November by 300,000 votes.

This roused Mr. Huntley's betting spirit. He offered to bet Hurja a $15 hat about that. Hurja pondered. He said maybe 300,000 was too high, but he would bet that Democratic Joe Guffey defeats Reed by at least 200,000. They shook hands on that bet.

A few seconds later, Mr. Huntley said:

"You wouldn't like to add a $15 pair of shoes on that bet, would you?"

Mr. Hurja said he would. They shook hands on that also.

The boys were saved from further wardrobe gestures when the elevator brought them both down to the ground floor.

The NRA people are planning to open up on publicity now to offset any harm done by the Darrow report.

In a few days, the first anniversary of the Textile Code will be celebrated by opening several mills in Alabama for public inspection. The idea is to let the people see the improvements brought by abolition of child labor, shorter hours, etc.

NOTES

Senator Van Nuys was complaining about his lumbago in a committee hearing the other day when Gen. Thatcher, Nevada attorney, suggested he knew a sure cure for it. Gen. Thatcher said he had long been a sufferer from lumbago, but finally got rid of it by catching small pox. Van Nuys indicated he would keep the lumbago. The political crowd here was surprised that the report of the Carnegie Foundation Commission of College professors caused no more commotion than it did. The report heralded the passing of the age of individualism and advocated collectivism. The Democrats all contend they carried Pennsylvania and Delaware in the 1932 presidential elections. They say that, if the national result had been close, they had enough data to force a recount which would have won those two states from Hoover.

BRITISH ACTION ON DEBT SEEN

LONDON, May 22.—(AP.)—Indications were seen in circles closely in contact with the war debts controversy today that the British government may be planning a new approach to the problem of the June installment due the United States.

Any such move, it was plainly seen, however, is contingent partially upon President Roosevelt's forthcoming message to Congress on the subject of debts.

Should the British take such action as is indicated it would represent a drastic change in the policy manifest in recent days.

Until today, official circles stoutly maintained that the first move in the debt situation must come from Mr. Roosevelt.

Whisky Worth $200 Taken by Burglars

Burglars stole whisky valued at more than $200, food, tobacco and two dollars worth of pennies from the Dutch Kitchen, 113-115 West Eighth avenue, Homestead, early today. Entrance was gained by jimmying a window. The total value of the loot was estimated at $400.

2 CAR ARBITERS PICKING THIRD

With two members of a board of arbitration chosen, both the street car operators and the Pittsburgh Railways Company had today agreed to give the board full power to settle their dispute over a new wage contract.

The two sides, deadlocked since last month, yesterday named their representatives on the board. The company named its counsel, Philip A. Fleger, and the men, members of Street Railway Employe Union, Division 85, selected Councilman John J. Kane.

Kane and Fleger will select a third member to complete the board today or tomorrow probably, Fleger said last night. After hearing both sides, the board will give its decision, which both sides have agreed will be final and binding, he said.

"Answer me please!" writes Ginger Rogers

[RECENT OLD GOLD CONVERT]

Dear Miss Rogers:—

A mild cigarette is not necessarily easy on the throat. Like a mild-mannered person, it may be flat, uninteresting and even irritating.

"Smoothness" is mildness with character. A smooth cigarette, like a smooth wine, has everything . . . taste-appeal, mellowness and purity.

Old Gold tobacco is not only mild . . . it has that combination of rich flavor and throat-ease which Nature grows only in her finest queen-leaf Turkish and domestic tobacco. It never taxes the throat or bores the taste.

Sincerely,

P. LORILLARD COMPANY, INC.
ESTABLISHED 1760

P. S.—Boiled down, the fact is this, Miss Rogers: No better tobacco grows than is used in Old Gold. And it's pure. That's why Old Golds are easy on the THROAT and NERVES.

BAR OR TABLE BEER SALE UP TO VENDORS

HARRISBURG, May 22.—(AP.)—The time is at hand for Pennsylvania's beer emporiums to decide whether they want to sell the foamy stuff over the bar or at tables.

At midnight, May 31, beer licenses issued last June expire and unless the proprietors renew them and do not handle liquor, they cannot sell the suds across their bars.

The situation is this:

Persons having only a beer license may sell across the bar and also may sell bottled beer to be taken out.

Persons having a liquor license may sell beer and liquor only at tables and may not sell bottled beer or liquor for consumption other than on the premises.

MANY HANDLE BOTH

At present, numerous establishments have both beer and liquor licenses. They began selling beer last June and also went into the liquor business after repeal.

After May 31 two licenses will be unnecessary, as a liquor license also carries the right to sell beer, and the combination does not give permission to dispense beer over the bar.

The Liquor Control Board has sent a warning to all license holders, telling them what they may and may not do after the end of the month.

Forty enforcement agents are in the field and the board plans to add 60 more within the next three weeks.

ISSUANCE TIGHTENED

County treasurers grant beer licenses, but liquor permits are issued only by the board.

Officials say that the treasurers, after a year in which to learn the "bad spots," are more careful in issuing licenses and, as a result, many who have been turned down are trying to get liquor licenses.

To date, about 1,500 liquor license applications have accumulated and about 100 are coming in every day. The board has enlisted the aid of the State Highway Patrol in making investigations in an effort to clean up all applications by June 1.

Sentiment among license holders distinctly favors the sale of beer and liquor across bars and many dealers say they will make an effort to have the law changed at the next session of the Legislature.

BEER TAXES UP, LIQUOR DOWN

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(AP.)—The drinker's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of beer this spring—and hard stuff isn't going so well.

That, at least, is the story told by the tax returns.

Income from beer set a post-repeal record in April—$14,366,000. Taxes from distilled spirits hit a record low—$6,843,000. But some thought the bootleggers might have had something to do with it.

March beer taxes were $13,175,000; February, $9,316,000; January, $10,226,000, and December, the first repeal month, $12,867,000.

Distilled spirits taxes were: March, $8,742,000; February, $7,708,000; January, $9,651,000, and December, $8,651,000. In December the tax rate was $1.10 a gallon. During January it went to $2.

Liquor Store Here Regains Sales Lead

Pittsburgh's state liquor store at 340 Boulevard of the Allies led all of Pennsylvania in the total of sales for the week ending May 12, it was announced today.

Sales totaled $19,675.05 here. The nearest approach to this figure for the same period was in one of the Philadelphia stores with a total of $19,090.15, or $583.90 less than the local establishment.

$900,000 RUM TAX FACES PA.

HARRISBURG, May 22.—(AP.)—Pennsylvania may have to pay more than $900,000 in federal taxes if a decision of the United States Supreme Court in an Ohio liquor case also affects this state.

So said Attorney General William A. Schnader when informed of the decision in the Ohio case, through which the state sought to enjoin the federal government from collecting taxes.

The Attorney General said it was apparent that the Supreme Court not only refused that permission, but also went into the status of liquor distributed by a state monopoly.

A Pennsylvania suit, involving $900,000, is pending in the Middle District Federal Court. Most of the amount represents a floor tax on liquor in the state's hands at the time a federal tax of 90 cents a proof-gallon was imposed. The remainder involves federal permit fees on retail and wholesale establishments.

Robert S. Gawthrop, chairman of the Liquor Control Board, said he expects a sharp curtailment in the number of both retail and wholesale stores if the Supreme Court ruling means the state must pay both retail and wholesale fees. Gawthrop intimated that certain stores in the state would be designated to sell at wholesale, but all of them would continue to sell at retail.

Navy Aide Lands In Porto Rico

Collegian Released In Student's Death

PHILADELPHIA, May 22.—(AP.)—Clifford Keane, 21, of Valley Falls, R. I., graduate student at LaSalle College, who is accused of killing Daniel Quinn, 18, Catholic High athlete, was released under $5,000 bail today.

60 POLICEMEN DEFIED BY PAIR

CHICAGO, May 22.—(AP.)—Sixty policemen subdued two men who, barricaded in a West Side flat, held six squads of officers at bay with shotguns today.

One of them, Harry Stroan, 45, was taken to a hospital as the result of a beating he received from the officers, and the other, Anthony Mrozek, an automobile mechanic, was taken to the station with Miss Rose Szczepanik, 21, who said she was a nurse for Stroan's 5-year-old daughter, Caroline.

The disturbance first came to the attention of police when complaint was made that a bullet had been fired through the floor of Stroan's second-floor quarters.

When the officers arrived, two men leaned out of the window. One jeered almost incoherently in broken English, while the other fired at the policemen over his shoulder.

Police refrained from returning the fire when the cries of a woman and child rose over the din.

With arrival of reinforcements, the call to surrender was again refused; then the officers stormed the flat and took the three and a little girl into custody.

Pittsburghers Go To St. George Meet

Pittsburgh delegates will go to Williamsport Saturday for the international convention of the Catholic Knights of St. George, which convenes Sunday. Among the Supreme officers from here who will attend are President, John Eibeck; vice presidents, John Lehrum and James Garrity; secretary, P. J. Hess; treasurer, J. G. Renvers; counselor, Leonard M. Boehm, and Dr. J. C. Heirhelzer, medical examiner.

Predicting that the nation will fall back on Catholic principles of education, Attorney F. W. Ries, Jr., past state deputy, last night addressed the annual banquet of the Knights of Columbus which closes a three-day convention here today.

Leo G. Griffith, past state deputy, of Pittsburgh, was toastmaster. The speaker was introduced by Albert A. Scholze, president of the Pittsburgh chapter and general chairman of the convention. The convention closes tonight with a ball in Duquesne chapter house, Fifth and Bellefield avenues.

Business sessions were being held today with the election of officers scheduled during the afternoon. A bridge luncheon for visiting ladies will be held in the Hotel Schenley.

Among the resolutions to be presented for approval will be one indorsing the stand of the Supreme Council, Knights of Columbus, on questionable motion pictures.

WAVE OF NUDITY LINKS POLICE AT RESORT

International News Service.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 22.—A popular wave of semi-nudity is sweeping Atlantic City and city fathers and police authorities of the "world's playground" are confronted with an embarrassing problem.

Briefly, the predicament is this: How to arrest and give jail accommodations to some 4,000 men, young and old, who defiantly prance about on the beach, clad only in three-ounce bathing trunks.

Two weeks ago Mayor Harry Bachrach warned that topless swimming suits "will not be tolerated." The police were ordered to seize male bathers who exposed their chests to the sun.

With 60,000 visitors thronging into Atlantic City Sunday, some 7,000 men and women donned bathing costumes and lolled about the beach. Policemen scanned the huge beach crowd, noted the thousands of men attired in the forbidden topless suits and threw up their hands, declaring:

"They'll have to build 5,000 new jail cells and hire a few thousand extra officers to enforce this edict."

NUDISTS SEEK TO BUY ISLAND

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, May 22.—Despite apprehensions of landowners in the swank Thousand Islands resort section, the American Gymnosophical Associates, nudists all, today confirmed plans to buy Iroquois Island, formerly owned by Harold E. Witteman, millionaire Brooklyn realtor.

Professing readiness to pay a "pretty fair" price, Herman Soshinski, director of the gymnosophists, said:

"We want a location where we can establish a high type summer colony for people of means. The colony would be available for all—summer residence, visits of a week or more, or even for week-ends."

Soshinski said the organization numbered college professors, scientists, writers and business men among its members.

MARINE CADETS TO GRADUATE

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, May 22.—Twenty cadets will be graduated from the Pennsylvania State Nautical School at exercises aboard the schoolship Annapolis in the Philadelphia Navy Yard, tomorrow, the Department of Public Instruction announced today.

The students have completed two-year instruction courses to prepare them for merchant marine service as deck or engineer officers. The graduates were:

Deck officers: Thomas M. Gaughan, Shaft; Arthur J. Hambleton, Butler; Wallace H. Jones, Leonard P. Larue, Paul J. Linton, John A. McGillen, John J. McQuaide, Holger J. Nyholm and Sherman G. Whetstone, Philadelphia; Louis J. Karas, Shenandoah; Paul Scherba, Monessen; George F. Schmidt, Jr., Upper Darby, and William J. Speidel, Franckville.

Engineer officers: William P. Adams, Bethlehem; William L. Crawford, Wynnewood; Carroll M. Hoover, Norristown; Burton T. Kyle, Jr., and Raymond G. Stewart, Jr., Philadelphia; Lester W. Neudorfer, Monessen, and Clarence E. Shick, Swiftwater.

Seven Get Decrees; Five Ask Divorces

Five new libels for divorce were on file in Common Pleas Court today and decrees had been granted in seven other cases.

Divorces were granted in the following cases in Common Pleas Court: Alfred C. Trudel from Beautrice P. Trudel; Sarah M. Crawford from Charles B. Crawford; Erma Nilles from Bernard Nilles; Ethel Fuller from Jack Fuller; Nellie M. Cademsey from Charles Cademsey; Marie H. Harvey from John H. Harvey, and Gertrude Campbell from William Campbell.

Divorce actions were filed by Verna Vernon against Claud Vernon; James J. Casson against Ruby P. Casson; Melissa Jondeleit against John G. Jondeleit; Michael J. Quinn against Catherine Quinn, and Mary Fortugno against Joseph Fortugno.

Big Heart Lands Him Behind Bars

MENOMINEE, Mich., May 22.—(AP.)—Russell Nelson is so bighearted that it gets him into trouble.

He was released from jail a few days ago after serving a short term for drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

But then he returned, the state charges, to visit his pals—and to treat them, to some whisky he smuggled into the jail.

New Nudist Colony Atop Oil Derrick

WINFIELD, Kan., May 22.—(AP.)—Nudists have solved the problem of how to practice their cult in Kansas, where some sections offer few trees for protection from the public eye.

They are taking sun baths on platforms at the top of idle oil derricks. Such spots, they say, are even more secluded than sylvan glades.

Total Vote Zero In Oregon District

BURNS, Ore., May 22.—(AP.)—The vote in Oregon's primary election was light throughout the state, and in Alvord precinct in the Southern Park—"it just wasn't."

Mrs. Walter Anderson, chairman of the election board, said that when no voters appeared, the four board members decided not to count even their own ballots.

The sealed ballot box was returned—empty.

SKYSCRAPERS IN LOST CITY

International News Service.

QUINCY, Mass., May 22.—Ancient cities in Guatemala, where civilization flourished thousands of years before Christ, where skyscrapers pierced the clouds and pedestrian subways tunneled the earth for miles, these are the object of a hunt to be launched this summer by Lawrence T. K. Griswold, noted archaeologist and zoologist, he had announced today.

According to Dr. Griswold there are 32 lost cities in Guatemalan jungles, of which he has already located two. One of these he says, flourished about 3,000 years B. C. In a high state of civilization, with huge skyscrapers, one towering 537 feet, while pedestrian subways extended for a distance of 48 miles. The population of one was more than a million, while the other was slightly less.

Petroleum Institute To Open Sessions

Sessions of the American Petroleum Institute were to start today in the William Penn Hotel. Devoted mainly to a study of problems of oil production, the institute was expected to hear of forecasts of striking developments in the industry.

The convention also expected to hear a discussion of further streamlining of automobiles to the extent of placing the motor in the rear of the car.

HEIRESS WEDS 3 BROTHERS

Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, May 22.—Mrs. Beverly De Tarr is unique among wives of the world.

She has been married three times, to three different men, but always has had the some mother-in-law.

Mrs. De Tarr's present husband is the brother of her first and second mates.

As Harryette Post, Denver heiress, she wed James De Tarr in 1919. They were divorced in 1922 on grounds of desertion. In 1924 she wed Arthur, from whom she parted via Reno divorce in 1928.

There's only one other De Tarr brother, Raymond, but he's already married.

CLOSED BANKS SEEN DELAYING RECOVERY

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, May 22.— The fate of the McLeod bank deposit payoff bill, "charter of justice for 10,000,000 people," rests with the citizens of the country, Representative John J. Douglass (Dem.), of Massachusetts, declared in a radio address.

Calling on the nation to demand passage of the bill, Douglass, chairman of the important House Education Committee, stated that complete recovery can come only with rehabilitation of the millions of persons who lost money in closed banks during the depression.

13 SIGNATURES NEEDED

This vigorous appeal came only a few hours after the House Banking and Currency Committee voted unanimously to report favorably the Steagall deposit insurance bill with its permissive payoff feature.

This bill allots the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation more than 1,000 million dollars with which to purchase assets of closed banks and provide for the pro rata payment of depositors. The action is a hard-wrung administration concession to the session-long fight of the McLeod advocates.

Meanwhile, the petition to force a vote on the McLeod measure June 11 had 132 signatures by adjournment. Only 13 more are needed. Among yesterday's signers are Schulte (Dem.), of Indiana; McGrath (Dem.), of California; Imhoff (Dem.), of Ohio, and Fitzgibbons (Dem.), of New York.

FIGHT FOR RIGHTS

The fight for a vote on the McLeod bill is a fight for the constitutional right of representative government, Representative McLeod (Rep.), of Michigan, said in introducing Representative Douglass.

Douglass bitterly assailed the campaign of his Democratic leaders in blocking a vote on the measure and said that failure to enact such legislation is "an amazing omission."

The bill is the "bank depositors' justice bill," Douglass stated, in that it would aid the millions of men and women who were "lured" by the government into placing their funds in "banks which had the soundness of tissue paper."

Administration efforts to choke the bill Douglass called "truly alarming to those who believe in the fundamentals of representative government." He added:

"Representative government becomes a mockery if the representatives of the people are not to be allowed to vote on measures which are of general interest to the people."

Cecile Sorel's Hubby Held in Auto Death

PONTOISE, France, May 22.—(AP.)—Count Guillaume de Segur, husband of the noted French comedienne, Cecile Sorel, was held today for investigation in connection with the death of a woman who had been struck by an automobile.

He declared he knew nothing about the accident.

THALIA HOME, INTEREST IN MASSIE GONE

International News Service.

JERSEY City, N. J., May 22.—Mrs. Thalia Massie, who in the depths of despondency attempted suicide aboard the liner Roma on her way to Europe some weeks ago, landed here today from the S. S. President Van Buren, of the Dollar line, apparently in the best of spirits.

She told a reporter that she had no desire to reconcile herself with her former husband, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, U. S. N., at whose request she obtained a divorce at Reno early in the year. She said:

"I am no longer interested in him."

Mrs. Massie was met by her parents, Maj. and Mrs. Granville H. Fortescue, and her young sister, Helene.

ENJOYED TRIP

"Coming back," she said, with emphasis on the back, "it was great fun.

"We all had a good time and enjoyed the trip thoroughly.

"We? Well, you see, I played a great deal of bridge with the MacArthur sisters. They were good company."

She was referring to Marion and Constance MacArthur, of Summerside, Prince Edward Island, Canada, whom she had met on the boat.

"I am going with my parents to Bay Port, Long Island, for some time. Then we will all go together to Washington."

SOMBER BEFORE CAMERA

Dr. F. M. Sutton, medico of the Van Buren, said that he had not been called in attendance to Mrs. Massie on the long voyage back from Marseilles, and that as far as he knew she had been in the best of health and spirits all the way over.

Mrs. Massie, who was dressed in a brown and yellow summer combination with a trim jacket and a chic hat, was very animated.

But as soon as the photographers' lenses were trained on her she lost all that for the somber expression which has been familiar to American newspaper readers since the Hawaiian tragedy in which she was the central figure.

Home and Happy

MRS. THALIA MASSIE

Mrs. Massie, arriving today in New York, eager to live again, no longer interested in her divorced Lieut. Thomas H. Massie.

A. K. Oliver Named Head of Red Cross

A. K. Oliver was re-elected chairman of the Pittsburgh Chapter, American Red Cross, at a meeting of the organization's executive committee yesterday.

Other officers named are J. Rogers Flannery, vice chairman; Richard K. Mellon, treasurer; Ernest C. Noyes, secretary; Frances Speer Reed, executive secretary, and L. N. Murray and Thomas Orr, assistant treasurers.

BROWN MURDER TRIAL DELAYED

International News Service.

MT. HOLLY, N. J., May 22.—The trial of three men charged with the murder of Bradway Brown, young and wealthy Philadelphia paint shop executive, has been deferred for five weeks.

Delay in completing arrangements for presentation of the case was given as the cause of the postponement yesterday.

The accused men — Solomon Lutz, 28, New York; Eddie Adamski, 29, and Adam Szewczak, 24, both of Philadelphia — were indicted jointly and will be tried together unless they insist on separate trials, Prosecutor Howard M. Eastwood declared.

Brown was slain on January 16, 1933, in his Cinnaminson Township home, where, according to the police theory, he was shot as he struggled with two of the men allegedly attempting to rob his house.

'LIVE BUDDHA' VISITS SHANGHAI

SHANGHAI, May 22.—(AP.)—Amid Asiatic splendor seldom seen outside Asia's most remote citadel, the Panchen Lama, exiled "Living Buddha" of that mysterious nation, arrived today for a visit in Shanghai—one of the world's most modern cities.

This pontiff of a nation still living within the Middle Ages and unacquainted with so-called modern civilization, for the last 10 years has not been permitted to return to his native land.

His exile was enforced by the late Dalai Lama, Tibetan secular chief, who accused the Panchen Lama of plotting to overthrow the former's political grip upon the superstitious Tibetans.

Now he hopes soon to return to Tibet—assuming both the secular and spiritual leadership of his people with the Dalai Lama no longer living to bar his way.

Bridge Tournament Planned Here May 29

Former Bank Cashier Given Jail Sentence

O. W. Brose, former cashier of the Pennsylvania Bank and Trust Company, Thirty-fourth and Butler streets, was under sentence today to serve two years in jail for embezzlement and forgery. Judge George V. Moore imposed sentence late yesterday, after Brose withdrew a motion for a new trial. He had been convicted of forging a $9,000 note to cover up embezzlements in a bank account.

Drivers Stomp Brakes of Test Cars Day and Night to Help Solve Mystery of Tread-Wear — Wider, Longer-Lasting Design Made Possible by Supertwist

LOOK RIGHT HERE

Watch the rest of the industry try to copy this amazing tire. Watch them try to duplicate Goodyear's claims. But, remember, you have to have "non-skid" before you can have "non-skid mileage." And to have "non-skid," you have to have GRIP where you see it here —GRIP in the center of the tread—the place where it counts, because it's the spot where the tire contacts the road. Look at the grip on this Goodyear Tire and ask yourself why buy any tire that lacks this safety? And keep in mind that you cannot successfully build this type of non-skid tire without the extra-durability of Supertwist cords.

"G-3" outran them all

THE test car drivers lost some sleep. Brakes on the test cars frazzled every 72 hours, had to be adjusted every 8 hours. But when the battle was over, everybody was happy. It proved that rapid tread-wear could be stopped—that a better tire could be built—and that the new "G-3" was the tire!

"G-3" was one of a number of new designs the engineers proposed to answer the mystery of fast tread-wear. All treads, all makes—even ours—were wearing too fast. The new, bullet-starting, red-light-stopping, swift-sailing automobiles were taking extra wear out of tires right when they needed to keep their grip more than ever before for safety on smooth highways.

Goodyear licked it. Not without a fight. It took granite grit and grinding roads, abuse, and patience to see what would wear out "G-3."

—all of which adds up to 43% MORE NON-SKID MILEAGE at no extra cost to you!

It gives 43% more non-skid mileage!

AND—this is important to remember—the wider, heavier tread was made possible by Supertwist, the patented Goodyear cord fabric, that easily accepts the additional strain put on sidewalls by the flatter, wider road contact. Only Goodyear could use such a tread—because only Goodyear can build tires with Supertwist as a carcass foundation.

See the "G-3" All-Weather at your Goodyear Dealer's. Get the prices on your size. Although it costs more to build, it costs you nothing extra to buy.

Notes About Radio Stars, Stations

By AIRCASTER

Col. Lemuel Q. Stoopnagle and his pal Budd, the Glen Gray orchestra and Connie Boswell, who have been rooting for their cigarette employer on WJAS, are calling it a day with the first week of next month.

* * *

The automobile presentation which has been featuring Harry Salter and his campus choir likewise takes a runout powder on June 26.

* * *

Tiresome Dobbsy's "Ship of Joy" will go into dock indefinitely when its time is taken, beginning June 4, by the Joe Cook show on WCAE. Cook will be heard thereafter at 9:30 instead of Saturdays.

* * *

It's supposed still to be a deep, dark secret that Damon Runyon, famous sports writer, fictionist and author of many movies, is being groomed as a commentator for the Columbia broadcasting system.

* * *

TEMPERAMENTAL

Every operatic singer who attains fame ultimately is accused of being temperamental. That is true also in the case of Rosa Ponselle, who holds forth on WJAS's most extravagant show.

Because Rosa insists that she won't rehearse on the same day that she broadcasts, because she putters around wth the microphone for half an hour to make sure it is in the right position, and is finicky about overworking her voice, and a hundred other little things, she has been classed with those prima donnas who have made the operatic stage the arena for flaming feuds and outbursts of tantrums.

Incidentally, Rosa is attaching as much importance nowadays to Amercan folk songs as she is to operatic compositions, because she has been taught by her radio experience that the vast majority of Americans like ballads along the lines of "My Old Kentucky Home," etc.

GLOBE TROTTING

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

This weekend will bring two pleasing broadcasts to the Globe trotters.

On Friday of this week, at 12:15, through the combined WJAS-WCAE facilities, John Quaill, the greenskeeper of the Highland Country Club, will be the guest of Henry Eby. He will tell how to plant and keep a beautiful lawn.

On Saturday at the same time Colonel Edward J. Gihon, high officer of the United Spanish War Veterans will speak to old friends and Comrades of the Spanish-American War.

The library at Mayview is growing by leaps and bounds. Director Hay just informed me that the Carnegie Library of Pittsburgh had donated over 500 volumes.

I am anxious to find out who he or she was so that the Director and the patients at Mayview know who to thank for the generous gift.

Klondike, the famous malamute, lead dog of many heroic expeditions in the Arctic arrived in town with his mistress Jean Dempster. They both appeared on the broadcast. Klondike demonstrated his newly acquired vocal skill by rendering (meaning to tear apart) an Eskimo solo.

The Globe Trotter also wishes to correct the idea that might have been conveyed in the broadcast that Father Hubbard's feet were burned in the exploration of the Alaskan volcano. It was Klondike's feet that were scorched. The malamute was the lead dog in Father Hubbard's expedition into the rumbling crater.

PRIESTS FLEE MEXICO

NOGALES, Ariz., May 22.—(AP.)—Catholic priests were reported fleeing from Sonora, Mexico, toward the United States today under an order by the Governor of the Mexican state.

Reports from the border state said religious services were at an end in all Catholic churches in Sonora and that many were closed.

Gov. Rudolfo Elias Calles, son of the former Mexican President under whose regime many Catholic dignitaries fled, charging religious persecution, said at Tucson, Ariz., his order merely enforces provisions of the Mexican constitution of 1917.

He said Mexican law requires that ministers of any church must be Mexican citizens, that the republic has provided all church property is state property and the government has limited the number of ministers in any community.

Rafael Ruiz, of Nogales, Sonora, said the order was caused by priests devling into politics and interfering with the government.

He said Gov. Calles told him the clergy had attempted to attack the new educational plan by claiming men and women would be disrobed in classrooms for purposes of eugenic education.

ASK TEACHERS TO OATH QUIZ

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Many noted educators from all over the country have been invited to attend the House Education Committee's open hearing Friday on the Kenney resolution requiring the oath of allegiance from all public school teachers.

Recent refusal of 700 teachers to support a similar New York State bill, subsequently vetoed by Gov. Lehman, has given added prominence to the hearing.

Representative Kenney (Dem.), of New Jersey, said:

"Every teacher in the United States should not only be willing but proud to take this oath to support our government. This oath is synonomous with every office of honor and trust in the national and state governments."

Ben Marshall Heard On WCAE Tonight

Ben Marshall, Chief of Pittsburgh Police, today opens a series of addresses on "Pennsylvania Highway Safety Week," from WCAE. He is heard at 5:30.

At 7:15, WCAE presents a new vocal duo—Mariam Young, soprano, and Howard Price, tenor. The station's string trio accompanies.

Life is not merely to live, but to live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, look well. What a glorious condition to attain, and yet how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble, rheumatism; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store which will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

PITTSBURGHER IN AIR CRASH

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Curry, social registerites of Coraopolis Heights, were flying to Sherman, Tex., today to the bedside of their son, William F. Curry, critically injured yesterday in an airplane crash in which a companion was killed.

The 22-year-old graduate of Shady Side Academy and Culver Military Academy, was to have been graduated today from a commercial flying school in Dallas, Tex.

The plane crashed near the Sherman (Tex.) Airport. Curry is reported to have suffered a broken back, a leg fracture and crushed skull.

Fight Against Jail Lost by Renaldo

LOS ANGELES, May 22.—(AP.)—Duncan Renaldo, tell brown-eyed screen hero, yesterday lost his fight to keep out of the federal penitentiary.

The United States Supreme Court denied the actor's petition for a review of the case in which he was convicted here on charges of perjury in connection with his application for a passport, and sentenced to two years at the McNeil Island penitentiary.

New Model Plane Builders Ready To Learn About Construction Materials

By LAWRENCE SHAW
National Junior Birdmen Director.

(Editor's Note—This is the third lesson in the Junior Birdmen Model Builders' Course for Beginners. Thousands of boys and girls who never before constructed model planes, but have long had the desire to build speedy craft of their own that could fly through the air propelled by rubber band, are following these instructions and will soon be able to see their wishes come true. Follow these lessons carefully, cut each article out, and save them in your Junior Birdmen Scrap Book. You may want to refer to them from time to time, or pass them on to your friends after you are building your own models.)

Our first lesson in this easy-to-follow progressive model builders' course was devoted to the proper type of a workbench for those of you who can find a place aside from the kitchen table to do your work. Our second lesson, published in this column last Saturday, described the few and inexpensive tools all model builders should possess. The only other items we need are the materials and plans, of course.

Today and Friday we will take up the topic of materials and then be ready, by the end of the week, to actually get under way with our first model, a baby all-Balsa glider.

In this modern age and time practically everything can be purchased ready-made, including all of the parts for the building of model airplanes, but undoubtedly the greatest enjoyment comes from making the various parts yourself.

There are many materials that a model builder should have on hand at all times, but all are not used in any one particular model. And only a very few will be needed to build our first glider. However, this article and the one to follow will deal with the materials used generally by model builders, and later on I will list exactly what you will need for your glider model.

Balsa Wood

Balsa wood, the lightest wood in the world, is used almost exclusively for the building of model planes. The word "Balsa" is Spanish, meaning "raft." Years and years ago the Spaniards who settled in South America made rafts of this particular wood because it was so light to carry and had such fine floating qualities. The name "Balsa" has remained with the wood ever since. It is found in abundance in South America, but also vegetates in Africa. It grows unusually fast, spreading from three to four feet in diameter in but four or five years.

Our models must always be very light, in order to insure excellent flying qualities. Balsa is therefore used extensively. Even though some types of balsa have been known to be as much as eight times as light as cork, the tensile strength of the wood is such to enable us to use it for our models.

All department stores selling model builders' materials, and all model supply shops throughout the country, carry balsa in all sizes, and usually in several grades of quality. The best grade for model airplane use is of white appearance, not too soft. After a little experience in observing textures you will readily be able to choose the proper grade to your taste. Now and then, however, you might want a very soft block to carve a propeller.

Balsa Strips, Sheets And Blocks

Balsa may be purchased in three ways. In strips (see figure 1 in today's illustration). In sheets, which look just like flat cardboard. In blocks (see figure 5). The strips are used for various parts of your models. The thicker strip for the motor stick which you will soon learn about. The thinner strips for wings and tail unit, spars and ribs.

The sheet balsa is used for the wings of all-Balsa models and the block for carving propellers. Later on, as you advance in model building, you will purchase your Balsa in large logs and cut your own blocks, sheets and strips. This is much cheaper, but for the beginning we will buy our Balsa ready cut.

Balsa strips and sheets can be purchased in various thickness from one or two inches to as thin as one sixty-fourth of an inch.

But so much for Balsa, except to state that it is reasonable in price. The average stick model, propelled by rubber band power, requires but 8 to 10 cents worth of Balsa. Our first glider model will require but about 10 or 12 cents worth of Balsa. Model building is an inexpensive sport. You will like it!

Other Materials

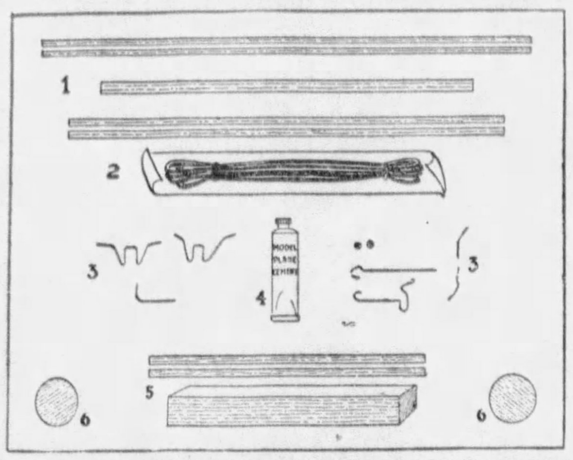
You will also use acetone, colored lacquers and bamboo later on.

I will continue the discussion of materials in our next lesson which will be published in this column on Friday, covering those mentioned above. We will then go into the construction of our first model which you will be ready to build and probably finish in but a few hours.

HAPPY LANDINGS!

Model Builders' Materials



MATERIALS USED IN THE CONSTRUCTION OF FLYING MODELS

Some of the materials needed by the model-builder: 1. Balsa strips for motor stick, wing spars and ribs. 2. Japanese tissue wing and tail unit coverings and the strand of rubber used for motor power. 3. Wire wing clips, fittings and washers. 4. Cement for holding members together. 5. Block of balsa fo carving propeller, and two extra balsa strips. 6. Wheels cut from a sheet of balsa.

STUDY PRINTS IN ROBLES CASE

TUCSON, Ariz., May 22.—(AP.)—Authorities today awaited a final report from G. L. Engbert, fingerprint expert of the Department of Justice, in hopes of gleaning from it corroboration of clues which may aid in solution of the kidnaping of 6-year-old June Robles.

Engbert returned to Washington with 15 prints he and Maurice Guiney, Pima County fingerprint expert, took from articles found in the desert prison box from which June was released a week ago, 19 days after she was kidnaped. Guiney said:

"Just one of those little prints might result in solution of the case. We have several ideas of a somewhat definite character we might be able to go ahead with after Mr. Engbert has forwarded his report."

Suit Against Former Follies Girl Settled

NEW YORK, May 22.—(Universal.)—Mrs. Edna Leedom Doelger, former Philadelphia salesgirl who spent a season with the Ziegfeld Follies before becoming the bride of Frank Doelger, heir to Brooklyn brewery millions, came briefly back to the spotlight yesterday.

Mrs. Doelger took the stand briefly in Supreme Court to tell a jury what she thought of George A. Hopkins' suit against her for $56,000 for legal services. After she had been on the stand a few minutes, Justice McCook dismissed the jury and announced a settlement out of court.

Two Face Court On Lottery Charge

Clarence Jackson, of 217 School street, Edgeworth, and Anderson Hill, of Coraopolis, Negroes, were held for court in $2,500 bail each last night after a hearing on a lottery charge before Mrs. Margaret M. Morgan, Sewickley Justice of the Peace. State police who arrested the pair at Jackson's home yesterday, testified that they confiscated adding machines and numbers books and slips.

GOOD OLD HEMSLEY COMES THROUGH

To the accompaniment of nodding heads and gesticulations of approval, the glistening white box was carefully unloaded . . . a royal reception indeed, to a regal representative of modern convenience. Electric Refrigeration had come to the Hemsleys, and with it the distinction of 100% Electric Refrigeration for the whole neighborhood.

In every neighborhood, everywhere, the trend is unmistakably toward Electric Refrigeration. More and more every year, more people are changing over to this modern method of food preservation . . . ushering-in this new era of convenience . . . discovering the many advantages that go along with these electric "boxes in white."

Those who have Electric Refrigeration display a pride of ownership seldom equalled in the possession of any other appliance. There's a thrill in being able to say you "own one" . . . but there's still a bigger thrill in the actual day-in and day-out use of one. Visit your Electric Dealer today . . . see the new 1934 models . . . then learn how easy it is to become an owner by the convenient-payment-plan method.

ELECTRIC REFRIGERATION BUREAU

In spite of the fact that this year's Electric Refrigerators have many new conveniences and refinements such as the Egg Compartment; Celery Tray; Butter and Cheese Container; special Freezing Sections, and many other features . . . and also in spite of the fact that prices generally are on the increase . . . the 1934 models are still moderately priced.

The Polish singer confided this at the Paris Theater where she is organizing a series of concerts. She explained:

"This is a friendly understanding."

La Walska, in a smart blue wool American-made costume with a four-strand pearl necklace and wearing huge rings of ruby and onyx, smiled mysteriously and added:

"It isn't true that Mr. McCormick will marry Pola Negri. I know, because I have just come from America and he himself told me he is not marrying her or anyone. Neither am I.

"We are still awfully good friends. He will visit me at my Chateau this summer."

Ambridge Ensign Goes to Pensacola

An Ambridge man, Richard D. Adams, an ensign aboard the Navy's plane-carrier Lexington, will be transferred to the Naval Air Station at Pensacola, Fla., early in June for a course in piloting various types of planes. Adams is one of the first in the Naval Academy's class of '32 to be sent to Pensacola. His ship, the Lexington, carries a crew of nearly 2,000.

The field will replace the club playground, eliminated by construction of an addition to the organization's headquarters.

Miss Aus, Painter Of Chicagoans, Dies

CHICAGO, May 22.—(AP.)—Miss Carol Aus, well-known portrait painter who numbered Chicago's most prominent families among her sitters, died today. A native of Bergen, Norway, Miss Aus came to Chicago 35 years ago.

POLITICS SPLITS ROYAL FAMILY

LONDON, May 22.—(AP.)—A difference of opinion has appeared in the royal family over internal politics in the British Legion, Great Britain's association of war veterans.

Prince George was scheduled to attend the Legion conference at Weston-Super-Mare, Somerset, Sunday, but refused because of reports of a controversy within the legion.

It was announced at yesterday's session of the conference, however, that the Prince of Wales, who is a patron of the Legion, has taken a hand in the affair and promised to try to persuade George to attend the meetings.

The heir to the throne had himself given the Legion his blessings after the controversy had been adjusted, it was stated. A vote of confidence in the Legion's executive committee had been passed and a message had been received from King George acknowledging the Legion's pledge of loyalty.

PLAN RITES FOR CIVIC LEADER

Representatives of the city's business and civic organizations this afternoon were to attend funeral services for Taylor Allderdice, former president of the National Tube Company, who died Sunday in his home at 5727 Wilkins avenue.

Services will be held at 5 p. m. in the Shadyside Presbyterian Church with Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr officiating. Burial will be in Homewood Cemetery.

Mr. Allderdice retired as president of the tube company in 1928, but retained directorships in a number of other companies.

NEW YORK, May 22.—(INS.)—Regardless of a slightly alcoholic breath, Linda, 8-month-old South American tiger kitten, got by customs officials when she landed from the Colombian liner Pastores. She came with her mistress, Miss Dolores Glass, of Sorina, Canada.

Miss Glass purchased the pet in South America when it was three weeks old. A veterinary told her to give Linda occasional jolts of whisky for her health.

French Importers Seeking Extension

PARIS, May 22.—(AP.)—Importers of American apples are seeking an extension of the lower tariff rates which expire May 31.

Fifteen hundred to 2,000 tons of apples, which it was feared would rot on the wharves of Havre, are being gradually admitted outside the quota as otherwise they would represent a dead loss to the French importers who bought them before they knew of the quota restrictions.

MAYOR'S FOSTER HOME 'PROOF' FAILS TO IMPRESS WOMEN

WAR LAUNCHED ON THEATER BOMBERS

Drive Follows Latest Outrage Injuring 4 In Movie

City and county law enforcement agencies merged forces today in an effort to end the "reign of terror" against operators of small motion picture theaters.

This action followed a two-hour conference between Police Supt. Ben R. Marshall and District Attorney Andrew T. Park and came as an aftermath of last night's bombing at the Garden Theater, 10 West North avenue, last night.

FOUR INJURED

Four persons were injured when the phosphorous "bomb" was discharged. One of them, Eugene Powers, 21, an usher, of 1206 Redhour street, is in Presbyterian Hospital. He was burned on the face, hands and legs in attempting to extinguish the flaming bomb. Three others were burned.

Marshall and Bell worked out a plan to have the county bomb squad, under Detectives Walter Monagahan and Peter Connors, and the city bomb and arson squad, under Detective Michael Tortorelli, co-operate in efforts to break up the ring.

UNION WAR BLAMED

The "bombing" of the theater was the third in the last four nights. The others "bombed" were the Strand, 1604 Carson street, and the Penn, Penn avenue, near Butler street.

The outrages against independently operated theaters began several weeks ago in what police said they believe is a war between two rival unions of motion picture operators. A series of phosphorous bombings in the city and county was followed by the dynamiting of four theaters early April 30. The dynamiting, resulting in heavy property damage, occurred while the theaters were unoccupied.

Honeymoon Delayed

The newlywed Snyders, pictured at Traffic Court today for their hearing—a hearing that cost the bridegrom $10 before they could proceed Chicago-ward, he said, on a honeymoon trip that was interrupted by policemen who arrested him for going through three consecutive red traffic lights on Squirrel Hill. MOORE RETIRES AS CITY PARK SUPERVISOR

Shadyside Man Named By Johnston; Wider Scope Aimed

James Moore, superintendent of parks and in the city's service for 40 years, today sent his resignation, effective June 1, to Public Works Director Leslie M. Johnston.

At the same time, Johnston announced the appointment of Ralph E. Griswold, of 4716 Ellsworth avenue, as Moore's successor, and stated that the bureau would inaugurate a program of increased development for parks and playgrounds.

Moore gave poor health and advancing age as the reasons for his resignation.

Moore has had wide experience as a landscape architect and won a national competition for a fellowship in landscape architecture at the American Academy in Rome.

M'NAIR OUSTS 2 ASSESSORS

The dismissal of three city assessors by Mayor McNair has reduced the city's assessment board substantially below the 11 authorized by law.

O. B. Hannon, 412 South Aiken avenue, and John Murphy, 2917 Zephyr avenue, the latter prominent in the regular ranks of the Democratic party for years, were discharged yesterday by the Mayor.

James P. Bailey, who has charged Mayor McNair and Secretary Theodore L. Moritz with intimidation aimed at forcing a change in testimony in the trial of Senator James J. Coyne for alleged violation of the election laws, was dismissed more than a week ago after a stormy scene in the Mayor's office.

Hannon, on a recent occasion, was dismissed for several hours until friends came to his rescue and persuaded the Mayor to rescind the action.

The Mayor at first declared there was no reason for his action in firing the two men yesterday. Later he declared it was done for "economy," and that the jobs will remain open for the time being.

The Mayor's appointment of Kermit McFarland, newspaperman, to the Traction Conference Board $12,000 chairmanship, was sent to committee yesterday in Council.

With it went a letter from McFarland informing Council that his name had been sent to them without his consent, asking them not to consider it, and referring briefly to the procession of Traction Board appointments which has appeared from the office of the Mayor.

COMPOSER'S KIN SHOWS NOTES AND MAPS

Conference Revealed McNairs, Fosters Close Friends

Four Pittsburgh clubwomen were at somewhat of a loss today.

A challenge to Henry Ford's stand that he bought the real Foster birthplace for his Early American Village was still a challenge.

Holding the theory that Ford is razing the wrong house to cart away, His Honor invited the women to listen yesterday while he proved the auto magnate was all wrong.

LADIES UNIMPRESSED

The ladies arrived. With William B. Foster, city assessor and nephew of the composer, they perused maps and booklets and old letters. They took notes and asked questions. And they departed, unimpressed.

McNair, who said little and ducked out of his office for the day after disclosing that the Foster and McNair families always have been "just like that," bases his opinion on documents owned by Mrs. Elizabeth Foster Morneweck, of Detroit, the city assessor's sister, and upon court house records. So does Assessor Foster.

There was talk of an old springhouse, where the composer and Foster's father, Morrison Foster, played as children, and there were readings from a scrap book of old letters and newspaper clippings. There were piles of books and pamphlets, too.

CRITICIZES CITY

But the ladies remained adamant.

Mathilda Orr Hays, one of their number, who in 1932 wrote a history of Foster which coincides with the Mayor's views, interrupted spicily during the proceedings:

The perusing of maps was still going on when the women rose to leave. Canvassed by Foster, three said they were convinced and one withheld decision.

Cavassed a few minutes later by newspapermen, three admitted their opinions were "still up in the air" and the fourth withheld decision. One decided to find out for herself. Another blazed:

"No matter which is right, I think Pittsburgh is very derelict in letting a man come from Michigan to claim Foster's birthplace."

The one who decided to find out for herself said:

RELYS ON FORD'S INTELLIGENCE

Another declared:

"Well, I certainly can't see how a man of Mr. Ford's intelligence—a man who's accomplished what he has—could have been wrong."

And there it stands. All that was proved, apparently, was that the McNair and Foster families have been—cross your fingers—"just like that!" So close, in fact, that one of Stephen Foster's brothers, Dunning McNair Foster, was named after one of His Honor's ancestors, Dunning McNair.

Foster's outstanding bit of proof lay in the original plan of Lawrenceville, made by William B. Foster, father of the composer, in 1815. It shows the Foster home was located on Lot No. 9, now 3600 Penn avenue, site of the city's Foster Memorial. Ford's house was located at 3414 Penn avenue.

The four clubwomen, the majority of whom decided as they left that they "knew just as much before as now," are Miss Hays, of the Stephen C. Foster Scholarship Foundation and the Congress of Clubs; Mrs. Oliver J. Haller, president of the Congress of Clubs, and Mrs. S. J. Corbett and Mrs. A. J. Jaegle, president and corresponding secretary, respectively, of the Outlook Alliance.

PITT WORKERS TO REPORT

Workers in the campaign to raise $1,650,000 for the completion of the Cathedral of Learning met at luncheon in Kaufmann's auditorium at noon today to report on the first results of their drive throughout Pittsburgh.

Thomas Fitzgerald, chairman, and 300 members of the citizens' committee, attended the luncheon, the first of four to be held during the drive which hopes to reach its goal by June 1.

Homer D. Williams, general chairman, said the comments made by outstanding personalities almost 10 years ago, regarding the "spiritual sweep" of the proposed cathedral have been amply borne out by the result.

At present the building is only 16 per cent occupied, and the campaign seeks to raise sufficient funds for immediate completion.

TRAFFIC LIGHTS DELAY CUPID

D. W. Snyder, 21, and his bride would have been on their honeymoon today if those radio patrolmen hadn't interfered.

Snyder, who lives in Hampton avenue, Swissvale, was hurrying into the city last night to be married when a state highway patrolman stopped his car. He was allowed to proceed when his license proved o. k.

Married in Swissvale to Rose Mary Cosgrove, he and his bride started for the Pennsylvania Station and a honeymoon in Chicago.

But the law knows no romance. At Forbes street and Murray avenue a radio crew saw a car speed through a red light. They gave chase. Two more red lights were ignored.

Finally they reported overhauling the honeymooners, Snyder, arrested, posted $50 bond, and was fined $10 today by Magistrate Charles F. Papale in Traffic Court.

The arrest occurred 45 minutes before midnight. The bridegroom explained that he was trying to catch the 9 o'clock Chicago train.

Bulgarians Play Game of Bridge, They Finesse King

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

That Bulgarian revolution was a pretty bit of contract bridge. They finessed the King.

The King was smart. Why should he be kicked off the parlor sofia?

It's pretty tough holding down the throne in Europe these days. Every morning Boris telephones the kitchen, "If the army and navy is still loyal I would like to have two eggs and a pot of coffee."

One by one the captains and the kings depart. But the captains come back generals.

Heat Speeds 'Army' Camp Opening Plans

Early arrival of summer weather has speeded plans by Pittsburgh officials of the Salvation Army to open the organization's camp for under-privileged children and their mothers. The 36-acre camp, near West View, will open next month and will be kept in operation throughout the summer.

200 DISTRICTS CANVASSED

The return board today had passed the 200-mark in its official count of the ballots cast in the 944 districts during last Tuesday's primaries.

The 90 tabulators and clerks completed 96 districts yesterday, after having completed 22 Saturday and 33 Friday. Both the latter were half days.

Eleven election boards were called to adjust inaccuracies in the tally sheets. The errors were minor and clerical, officials said.

18-Month Term For Counterfeiter

Frank A. Pizzillo, of Johnstown, was sentenced to serve 18 months in a federal penitentiary yesterday, when he pleaded guilty of passing counterfeit $5 and $10 bills in Johnstown, Somerset and Indiana.

Bernard Dresser, Martin Barber and Edward Scesney, of Buffalo, N. Y., were placed upon probation for 18 months each, when they pleaded guilty of transporting a stolen automobile from Buffalo to Fairview, Erie County.

CHURCH'S MAID ATTACKED

Knocked to the ground by a drunken man at Forbes street and Devon road last night, Helen Vavro, domestic at the residence of Samuel Harden Church, screamed and frightened her assailant away.

En route to the Church home, 4781 Wallingford street, she told police she was struck from the rear by the man, aged about 35. She screamed and he fled, police reported.

Miss Vavro made her way home and Oakland police were notified. They started a search of the neighborhood after obtaining a description of the man.

DIES MARTYR TO RADIUM

A martyr to the cause of radium research, Henry T. Koenig, 42, died Sunday in a Denver sanitarium. The body was en route to Pittsburgh today for burial.

Koenig, a graduate of the Universtiy of Pittsburgh, class of 1912, was said to be the last of 20 former associates of Mme. Curie, French scientist, in experiments to test curative properties of radium. All have died, presumably from effects of exposure to radium.

Koenig's death was attributed to a hip disease which is believed to have resulted from rays of the element.

Following his graduation Koenig entered the employ of the Standard Chemical Company, later becoming associated with the Colorado Radium Company. He subsequently went to Belgium, where he experimented with ore from the Belgian Congo. While there he aided Curie in a series of experiments.

STOLEN AUTO HOLDUP CLUE

AVONMORE, Pa., May 22.—Discovery of the still-warm automobile believed to have been used in the raid upon the First National Bank here today spurred the search for the three men who escaped with between $8,000 and $10,000. The auto was found abandoned at Braeburn, near New Kensington. Police reported that it had been stolen last Monday from James Glaber, of 870 Kennet avenue, New Kensington.

The holdup occurred early yesterday when two men, one wearing smoked glasses, walked into the bank. At the curb outside was their automobile, a Negro chauffeur at the wheel.

TWO CONFESS KILLING WOMAN

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., May 22.—(AP.)—Authorities here today said Cassius Chandler, 23, and his brother, Erwin Chandler, 20, of Monsey, N. Y., have confesesd that they murdered Mrs. Belle Harter, 77, of New Madison, O. The brothers were arrested here last night.

In the confession made public by police the brothers said they entered Mrs. Harter's home Sunday night for the purpose of robbery. They said they found the elderly woman in bed and gagged her with a pillow slip after choking her. The two then looted the house, returned to the bed and found Mrs. Harter dead, according to the confession.

The brothers said they then stole an automobile and drove to Terre Haute, where they were arrested.

FAZIO OFFERS BOMB ALIBI

Fazio denied he had left his beer garden, near the Seitz home, the night of the bombing, until he heard the explosion.

Fazio denied any part in the bombing or knowledge of who sent Dr. Seitz threatening letters because of the latter's fight on rackets in Swissvale.

Boy Seriously Hurt In Fall Near Home

Frank Stiburek 20, of 143 Holly way, is in a critical condition in St. Francis Hospital suffering from fractured ribs and possible internal injuries received when he fell near his home at midnight, hospital authorities reported.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., May 22.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

The big argument now is between Mr. Darrow and Gen. Hugh Johnson. Now there is a couple of tough babies to run together. Here is a thing that's in Johnson's favor, the report is 322 multigraphed pages, now there can be an awful lot of things wrong with a thing, but 322 pages is kinder rubbing it in. It would almost have to be Dillinger to have that many things wrong with it.

Will Rogers.

Poor old NRA. If we all had spent as much time observing it as we have arguing over it, it would have worked right or wrong. There is great good in it, and evidently great ills in it. Now if both sides are not broad-minded enough to see and admit it, then let the argument continue, but charge admission for it.

Yours, WILL.

Strikers Win Job Back for Principal

SCRANTON, Pa., May 22.—(AP.)—One of three demands of Old Forge's striking school teachers has been met with reinstatement of Joseph Connors as principal of the Lawrenceville grammar school.

Connors, whose suspension last Wednesday prompted the third teachers' strike since September, was put back on the job by the board of education's vote of six to one last night. The teachers have declared they will not work until they receive contracts for 1934-35 and three of the seven months' back pay due them.

Violence Continues In Dockmen's Strike

SAN FRANCISCO, May 22.—(AP.)—Striking Pacific Coast dock workers tightened their siege on police-guarded water fronts today as mediators awaited the arrival of Joseph P. Ryan, president of the International Longshoremen's Association.

New outbreaks of violence occurred here and at Oakland. A group of men who police said were strikers followed four replacement workers from the water front here and severely beat them. In Oakland 200 men stormed a pier at which Japanese sailors were loading scrap iron.

PRIZE HOG GETTING READY FOR ANOTHER FAIR

County Jail Farm Porker Goes in Training

Speaking of when that time comes, Warden McNeil said:

"It will go the way of all our pork—into the sauerkraut pot."

But in the meantime the warden is seeing that Blue Boy is well fed and cared for. There's another fair in the offing.

Blue Boy is a Berkshire, bought at a farm in Brookville a year ago. More than 700 pounds in weight and with all the ugliness that is evidence of blue blood in such animals, he was one of the chief attractions among the South Park exhibits.

Three youths wrecked a stolen car by driving into an iron fence of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Allegheny avenue and Juniata street last night, police said. Police reported the car was stolen from William H. Smith, Jr., 4016 Ewing street.

Open City Pools June 9, Johnston's Program

Public Works Director Leslie M. Johnston, as a result of the warm spring weather, plans to open the city swimming pools by June 9.

The usual opening date in former years has been June 30. Director Johnston has asked Council to transfer $8,775 from other funds in order that the city pools may be open on week days after June 9 from 4 p. m. to 9 p. m. and the full schedule on Saturdays and Sundays.

Director Johnston also has asked Council to create the position of Sanitary Supervisor in the Bureau of Recreation to keep a continuous check on sanitary conditions at the pools.

Council has referred back to committee an ordinance which would raise the age limit under which children may swim free at Highland Park pool from 12 to 17 and increase from 10 cents to 15 cents the admission for persons over the higher age.

Sweethearts' Quarrel Gives Clue in Murder

A sweethearts' quarrel today had led police to a possible solution of a murder four years ago and to the indictment of William (Wild Bill)) Wilson, a former Pittsburgher, in connection with the case.

The indictment of the fugitive suspect occurred after Gladys Newton, a former girl friend, went to Lieut. of Detectives Frank Ferris and told him her story of the murder of Bolislaw Koda, who was found slain here June 28, 1930.

She said that Wilson and another man robbed Koda, slugged him over the head, knocking him to the curbing. He died from a fractured skull.

On this evidence, the police obtained Wilson's indictment and instituted proceedings to extradite him from another state, the woman having told where he could be found.

ALIBI DEFENSE OFFERED BY WESTWOOD

But two defense witnesses, John E. Morgan, of McKees Rocks, and Constable Thomas Drexler, who works out of Westwood's office, testified otherwise.

They said that Westwood was holding hearings in one room of his office while Boyer, who was a defeated Assembly candidate, and Steedle were in another.

Between hearings Westwood dropped into this room for not more than 15 seconds, the witnesses related.

JUSTICE AS WITNESS

Before Morgan and Drexler took the stand Supreme Court Justice James B. Drew testified as a character witness for Steedle.

Prosecutor James I. March brought out that Drew had never lived in McKees Rocks—Steedle's bailiwick — but Drew explained that when he was practicing law he became well acquainted with the veteran McKees Rocks political leader.

He said he had known Steedle for 40 years.

Among the numerous other character witnesses for Steedle was blind Congressman Matthew A. Dunn, although the government contends that Dunn lost 44 votes in the ballot-fixing charged to Steedle and his co-defendants.

HAUS ON STAND

Another defendant to take the stand today was Robert S. S. Haus, wholesale beer dealer of Mt. Lebanon and bowling alley proprietor.

He testified that in Boyer's car he had accompanied Boyer to Squire Westwood's office for the Steedle conference. But, Haus added, he himself had remained outside the office during the meeting. He had gone, in the first place, simply to give Steedle the correct vote of Mt. Lebanon's First District.

On cross-examination Prosecutor James I. Marsh was able to bring out that in his grand jury testimony Haus had testified he didn't know in whose car he had gone to McKees Rocks.

FIVE CLEARED

After the government closed at noon yesterday, Judge F. P. Schoonmaker granted motions of defense counsel for binding instructions of acquittals for Attorney B. Robert Averbach, counsel for Republication county organization and supporter of State Senator James J. Coyne; Attorney John J. McGrath, Republican chairman of the Thirty-second Ward; Burton J. McKee, real estate dealer, and Capt. Frank Miller and Patrolman August Weisser, of the Stowe Township police.

At the same time the court denied similar motions for Steedle, Westwood, Justice of the Peace Paul N. Franks, of Stowe Township; Robert S. S. Haus, of Mt. Lebanon; Wallace Ray, clerk in the county delinquent tax office, and Chief Thomas Saunders and Sergt. William Schwartz, of the Stowe Township police.

STEEDLE ON STAND

Steedle was the first defendant to go on the witness stand. Under direct examination by Attorney John A. Metz, the legislator denied having held a conference with Boyer in the washroom of Westwood's office two days after the election, at which he offered to lend Boyer $200 to defray his part of expenses to have certain ballot boxes picked up and votes changed, as Boyer testified. Boyer testified Westwood was present.

Steedle said he met Boyer by appointment the night in question, but it was to discuss with him the matter of filing petitions in court for a recount of votes in some districts where there had been large Republican majorities in other elections. He said he asked Boyer to bring Haus along in his automobile, as Haus had received a corrected vote tally in a Mt. Lebanon district, where he had been unofficially reported as having received 97 votes instead of 197.

Poor Ex-Cossacks' Bid on Relics Vain

CANNES, France, May 22.—(INS.)—Once Cossack officers under the Czar, several garbage men today pooled their resources to bid, unsuccessfully, a total of $2 on the once highly-prized and costly harness and horse blankets of the late Grand Duke Michael of Russia.

Steamer Employes Pull Man From River

Tony Vimcheski, 44, of 47 South Fifteenth street, rescued from the Ohio River after, police said, he had jumped from the West End-North Side Bridge late yesterday, was reported recovering in Allegheny General Hospital today. Edward Gracamo and Frank Feuspal, employed on the steamer Marcus, docked near the foot of Chateau street, rescued the man.

MR. CARR, HIS GREAT-GRANDDAUGHTER AND 90 CANDLES

VETERAN MARKS 90TH BIRTHDAY

Celebrating his ninetieth birthday today, Mr. Carr welcomed friends who came to see him and talked freely of his adventurous past—mostly of his day as a "bluecoat" in the Civil War.

It was in 1862 that he, as a youth of 18, joined the Union Army. Two weeks later he was under the fire of Confederate guns at Nolansville, Ky. On an expedition into the South, he fought at Perryville, Ky., and Stone River, Tenn.

When peace was declared, Mr. Carr became a park and garden designer, and planned landscapes in cities in various parts of the country. Oglebay Park, in Wheeling, W. Va., of which his son-in-law, Milton C. Hine, is superintendent, is one of his works.

DRIVE TO DRY STATE BEGUN

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, May 22.—The drive to "repeal repeal" was under way today with the opening of a state-wide campaign by the Pennsylvania Anti-Saloon League under the direction of 100 representatives from 20 Protestant denominations.

Dr. Homer W. Tope, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, declared that "people everywhere are rising up against the 'New Deal saloon,'" and warned that "we now have the old saloon, plus women, plus the new tavern." He added:

"Our goal is state prohibition as soon as public sentiment will warrant it."

WOMAN IN ROAD, AUTOIST HELD

Reported to have been thrown from an automobile by a male companion, Rose Senneway, 32, of 91 Amanda street, sister of a former police captain, was found in Nobles lane, Carrick, last night, South Side police reported.

She was taken to South Side Hospital and held for observation, as physicians sought to determine her injuries.

Police later arrested Charles Kearns, 45, of 35 Briggs street, Overbrook, on a misdemeanor charge, after checking the license number of the car in which the woman was riding.

There had been a quarrel between the pair, police said. She is a sister of Philip Senneway, former captain of police and now a plainclothesman, they reported.

SMASH WINDOW IN FIGHT

Two men were in jail today charged with disorderly conduct after an alleged fist fight last night at Seventh street and Liberty avenue, during which William Quinlan, 28, of 1339 Penn avenue, is said by police to have broken a plate glass window, valued at $150, in the Sun Drug Company store. Francis Carlowski, Quinlan's opponent, also is held.

During the excitement, police said, Charles Madden, 26, of 1107 Chartiers avenue, McKees Rocks, reached through the broken window and took a box of candy and a box of powder. He was captured in a blind alley, a block away, after one shot had been fired at him.

The three were scheduled to be arraigned today in Central Police Court.

U. S. GRAND JURY TO SIFT M'NAIR 'FIX' CHARGES

an investigation of Bailey's dismissal.

DISMISSAL CHARGE

Bailey said the real reason he was fired wasn't, as the Mayor announced, that he had tried to obtain a job in the Public Works Department for a woman.

The reason, he charged, was that he had refused to change the testimony he had given before a federal grand jury which indicted Senator Coyne.

Why, Bailey was asked, should McNair and Moritz, Democrats, want to favor Coyne, a Republican leader?

Bailey replied that Moritz had won the Democratic nomination for Congress from the Thirty-second District last week on votes obtained in Coyne-controlled wards.

When pressed for details of his conversation with Mayor McNair and Moritz, Bailey told Council that he "was not at liberty to go further," and that "the whole story is in the hand of the United States government."

McNAIR'S COMMENT

When asked to comment on Bailey's charges Mayor McNair late yesterday said:

"I never talked to Bailey at all except about jobs. I don't think I ever talked about Coyne except during the campaign. I wouldn't talk to anybody about their testimony in a case. What do I know about it? I did talk to David Lawrence and others about the disgrace to the city if Coyne and other high officials were convicted. I never talked to Bailey about Coyne. I didn't know he was a witness and wasn't interested."

Moritz said:

"The charge is absolutely false. I didn't know Bailey was a witness. Coyne's name was never mentioned."

Council dispatched City Clerk Robert Clark to the Mayor's office to invite the Mayor before Council and answer Bailey. Clark returned to Council and reported that the Mayor had said:

"Tell him (Bailey) to tell the whole story. I'll answer when I see fit."

Later in the day the Mayor in a cabinet meeting said that Bailey had threatened bodily harm to him and Moritz.

ARRESTS MOUNT IN RUM DRIVE

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(AP.)—The revitalized federal bootleg drive made a post-prohibition record of 419 arrested and 357 still seized during the week ended May 12.

This showing, the best weekly figure since repeal, included only two days of the Treasury's new alcoholic-tax unit's existence. This unit was created May 10 and immediately threw 1,400 men into the task of curbing bootlegging.

The figures made public by Secretary Morgenthau, showed the previous week's total of arrests was 273 and of stills seized 227.

Morgenthau said retailers will be given to May 31 to turn in surplus supplies of red strip stamps used to distinguish tax paid from illicit liquor. These strip stamps were sold to retailers for a brief period after their authorization by law to take care of stocks on hand, but now the stamps are attached at distilleries.

20-Year Workers Enter Store Honor Society

Eighty-five employes of Kaufmann's department store who have worked there for 20 years or more today are wearing the insignia of the Stand-By Club, the honor society of the organization.

Assembling in Kaufmann's dining room last night for the first formal meeting in three years, the group inducted the new members into the club.

The ceremony was preceded by a banquet and addresses by Edgar J. Kaufmann, president of Kaufmann Department Stores, Inc., and Irwin D. Wolf, secretary. Charles A. Filson acted as toastmaster.

Guests of honor at the affair included: Mrs. Morris Kaufmann, Mrs. Edgar J. Kaufmann, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver M. Kaufmann, Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Clarkson, Dr. Lawrence Wechsler, Mrs. Irwin D. Wolf and Irwin D. Wolf, Jr.

RUM BOTTLES AID 'LEGGERS'

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Elimination of deceptively shaped liquor bottles will be attempted by the industry through cooperation with the Federal Alcohol Control Administration.

Several hundred distillers, brewers, rectifiers, importers and wholesalers today were preparing to attend a conference here Thursday arranged by the FACA.

While it was not believed that a standard shaped bottle would be sought, the industry hoped to get rid of containers which have the appearance of containing more liquor than their capacity.

Following repeal the bootleg business has continued, unabated in many sections. Both from the standpoint of protection against illicit operators and for advertising purposes, most of the distillers and blenders have adopted distinctive type bottles. Some are of peculiar design highly deceptive as to the amount of liquor contained.

In the Treasury's campaign against the illicit traffic it has been learned that there is a large business in the collection and sale of genuine liquor bottles by bootleggers who refill them with cheap impure liquor for distribution. This traffic is regarded as one of the big enforcement problems.

MOTORMAN LOSES 38 LBS. EXCESS WEIGHT—EXPECTS TO LOSE MORE

This veteran Street Car Man says: "Last year I lost 38 pounds on 3 jars of SYL-VETTE, yet all I did was to take it in place of one meal each day. Getting rid of this surplus weight surely helped me a lot in my work. I feel better, am more alert, and now get around fine. Originally I weighed a little over 300 pounds. During the winter I did not attempt to reduce, but I am now starting SYL-VETTE again and expect to lose from 40 to 60 pounds more. I highly recommend this tasty food substitute, which not only takes the place of a meal, but is so nourishing, too."

NO DRUGS — NO THYROIDS — NO SALTS — SYL-VETTE IS A FOOD

SYL-VETTE is a drugless, safe system of weight control, a condensed hunger-satisfying food substitute of which one teaspoonful equals a breakfast or a lunch.

SYL-VETTE not only satisfies hunger, but supplies nourishment and strength—also prevents sagging muscles, wrinkles, and that distressed, haggard look so common with other reducing treatments. That's because SYL-VETTE is rich in non-fattening proteins and carbohydrates.

HERE'S PROOF—19 out of every 20 users lose 3 pounds or more the first week—10 to 15 pounds a month — which is pronounced safe by doctors. Economical, too. 30 slenderizing meals $1.00.

REMBRANDT'S 'SOLDIER' ON VIEW HERE

By PENELOPE REDD

Gillespie's Galleries are exhibiting daily this week, Rembrandt's portrait, "A Soldier Adjusting His Cuirass." This portrait has a remarkable provenance, Dr. William Valentiner place it as about 1640-1642. Since 1791 when it was in the De Gueffier collection in Paris, it has been identified with famed collections. Later it was in the Robit collection of Paris, then early in the Nineteenth Century it was moved to England and was possessed successively by George Hibbert, Nathaniel Hibbert, Lord Holland and A. Holland Hibbert.

Miss Redd

Prince Demihoff held it at San Donato for a time in the Eighties, it was returned to Paris at the end of the decade to the Secretan collection. With the Nineties it came to the United States as part of the Suton collection.

Since early in the Nineteenth century the portrait has been hung in one after another of the renowned temporary exhibitions organized from time to time to celebrate Rembrandt and the other great masters.

The painting has been described by the Rembrandt experts, W. Bode, C. Hofstede de Groot, and Dr. Valentiner.

This painting shows a young man typical of the Dutch soldiers during the Thirty Years War. He wears a breast plate and greaves which contrast in texture with the embroidery of his coat. The warm glow on his hands is even more intensified on the face giving the luminous quality that seems to emanate from the head and not to be derived from the deception of paint.

The portrait exemplifies the best characteristics which we have come to regard as exclusively those of Rembrandt.

Hofstede de Groot in discussing Rembrandt's personal and dramatic use of light and shade so well demonstrated in this canvas states that his style "probably originated in the practice common in his (Rembrandt's) youth of painting not in a studio with large windows facing north, but in an ordinary room with side windows which could be closed at will by shutters at the tops or bottom. Then the artist sits fairly near the light and his model stands or sits in a well-lighted position, but the rest of the room is in half-shadow."

Thus a direct procedure results in one of the most mysterious styles of painting the world has seen, for the content is always as forceful and direct as the method is baffling.

PRESBYTERIANS MEET IN OHIO

International News Service.

CLEVELAND, O., May 22.—Early-arriving delegates to the one hundred forty-sixth general assembly of the Presbyterian Church today were being marshaled into four camps in the fight for selection of a moderator of the church.

All of the flavor but none of the bitterness of a national political convention was added to the impending meeting as supporters of candidates for the high office scurried about to obtain vote pledges.

The four leading candidates for the post were the Rev. Harold S. Laird, of Wilmington; Dr. William C. Covert, of Philadelphia; Dr. Herbert B. Smith, of Los Angeles, and Dr. John H. Finley, of New York.

Election of a moderator will be one of the first official acts of the convention, which opens Thursday.

AMERICAN SHIP BUSINESS UP

WASHINGTON — (Universal.)—Vast improvement in American shipping in 1934 is revealed in statistics by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

On January 1 of this year it is shown there were but 2,819,000 gross tons of shipping idle in the United States as compared with 3,243,000 tons on July 1, 1933 and a peak of 3,588,000 tons on January 1 of last year.

In the same report it was disclosed that idle shipping throughout the world totaled 8,891,000 gross tons on January 1, last as compared with 12,700,000 tons a year previous and a peak of 14,054,000 tons on July 1, 1932.

Man by Confessing Shows He Cares for Girl

So long as a man CONFESSES to you, you have him, Bleeding Heart. And you're in luck, since you are in love with him.

Little slips like taking a girl from out of town out for an evening, and being invited by an old friend for a ride aren't so bad, do you think?

Dear Miss Brunot:

I was engaged to a fellow for a year and a half. A few days ago we quarreled. The reason of the argument was this: A few nights ago he confessed he had been out with other girls a couple of times. About six months ago on his way to see me, he met an old friend and she invited him to go for a ride. He told her he would and for her to wait until he called. I really can't make this out. It seems to me if he loved me he would have said no, right away.

Miss Brunot

IGNORED HIS PLEAS

I didn't know about this until the other night. I told him then we were through. He almost burst into tears. I really felt sorry for him, but none of his pleadings could soften me. I just made up my mind not to see him again.

He always told me he never cheated on me. He is very jealous, and always says if I go with anyone else it will be just too bad. I won't believe another man, I have lost respect for all men.

Also he told me while he was confessing that he had gone out with a girl from out of town.

Please try and help me. What shall I do? I haven't seen him for three days, and it is unbearable. BLEEDING HEART.

When he demands such strict accounting from you, perhaps you were right to make such a to-do over his actions. A man sometimes when his engagement is not actually announced can't very well get out of treating old friends pleasantly. The fact that this fellow has cleaned his slate by confession should count in his favor with you.

I cannot see that what he has done is important enough for you to lose all faith in men. Of course you do right to show you do not like it. But sometimes one loses a great deal by raising dust over what, later on, may appear to be a trifle.

If I were you, at the first opportunity, I would restore him to favor. I feel certain he will make a try for you again.

BLIND DATE

Dear Miss Brunot:

My girl friend, who is the same age I am, has asked me to go out with her and two fellows she has just recently met. She and another of her chums were out with these boys the other night. The other girl does not care to go out on a Sunday night. So this friend of mine has asked me to go.

I never had a blind date before, and I do not know whether to accept it or not. I already have a date with my boy friend for Sunday. He was out last Sunday with me and cares very much. Should I disappoint him, and go out for the blind date?

Personally I think I should let the new fellows slide, and stick to the old boy friend.

Please answer soon.

BERTHA.

You are right, Bertha. And go ahead and remain satisfied with the boy friend already devoted to you. BLIND DATES usually are just for fun, you know.

LOSING BOY

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am a young girl in high school, well dressed and attractive. About five months ago I met a certain boy. We started to go together and grew to like each other terribly much. He used to like a certain girl and went with her a long time. But broke off last summer. When she found out he liked me she stepped back into the picture. Naturally I'm hurt, as he now seems to prefer her.

He still likes me, but I can see this liking waning. He doesn't see her often, but she calls him up. I still date him, and in other words, like him and want to know how to get him securely. BETTY.

I fear, Betty, you will never have this fellow securely until the other girl is OUT OF THE PICTURE. And you can't put her out . . . it is only the boy who can do this. So let matters drift, be at your best when you see him, and don't nag him about his old flame. Maybe since she is doing the pursuing, she will play herself out. Then you can go in for your security. BUT NOT UNTIL THEN.

GOOD LOOKS NO SYMBOL OF CHARACTER, FAY KING OBSERVES

By FAY KING

Handsome faces are not always "good faces." Homely faces are not always "bad faces." Yet some misjudge them so, especially if the faces are under suspicion.

It is never wise to judge so quickly by appearance only. In doing so, many become easy victims of good-looking, well-dressed, gracious "crooks," and will fail to appreciate worthy fellow beings.

Handsome faces may successfully conceal cruelty and cunning, scarred and broken features may hide good nature and fine impulse.

Knew of Kidnaping Plan

At my query as to Hugh Grantland's reason for telling my father of Lee Chow's crazy theories concerning Dicky and Hugh and me, the man who was at once my parent and the "chief," under whom I had worked in the diplomatic secret service during the World War, gave me a steady, searching look, which made me feel suddenly petty and stubborn.

"Because," he said gravely, "Hugh feared that Lee Chow might be insane enough to put his theories to the test and try to kidnap you."

"Oh!" I said lamely, and Lillian gave a low but expressive whistle.

"No wonder he had to tell somebody about it," she said, and my father gave an assenting little nod.

"Hugh did not dream, however," he went on, "that Lee Chow had any thought of putting Richard out of the way in order to smooth the pathway for the new union which he was so craftily planning. So Hugh threw all his safeguards about you, not wishing that you should even dream of Lee Chow's madness if it were possible to keep it from you.

"I think he dreaded Lee Chow's undoubted hypnotic powers more than anything else," my father went on after an instant's hesitation, "for he warned me especially to watch out for any attempt of the Chinese in that direction."

WHY HUGH LEFT

"May I ask a question, Chief?" Lillian interposed, much in the manner of a small school girl. I would not have been surprised to see her hand frantically waving in the air.

"Of course," he told her, smiling, and she spoke slowly, with a little pause after each word.

"Why, when Hugh feared that Lee Chow was going to make a mess of things, did he go off to the beach at Avis Arlen's invitation, and leave the Chinese at large, burdening you with the task of keeping him in order?"

Her word sounded indignant, but her tone was impassive, and my father answered her promptly.

"Because," he said, "Hugh was afraid that if he were here, Lee Chow might say or do something which would prove highly embarrassing to Margaret. With him out of the way, Hugh reasoned that Lee Chow would content himself with trying to hypnotize Margaret into going with him, an attempt which his warning had prepared me to frustrate."

He turned to me and spoke with slow emphasis.

"Do you see now, my darling," he asked, "that it was necessary for Hugh to acquaint me with this madness of Lee Chow's; that he could have done nothing else, and that he knew it could not be kept from you, although he naturally felt that he himself could not tell you of it if he could find anyone else who would take over the unpleasant task?"

MADGE UNDERSTANDS

"I see—everything," I said, my voice low, uncertain, because of my realization that I had misjudged Hugh, and that, as always, he had thought only of how best to serve me.

My father shot a keen glance at me, then thoughtfully began speaking again, rapidly this time.

"When Hugh came back from the beach to find Lee Chow gone, and learned from me that the attempt at hypnotic influence had failed, he began to have vague fears that the Chinese might attempt mischief in some other direction. When Richard did not return those fears crystallized, and he went with Harry in search of him. The rest you know."

"There's another question troubling me, Chief?" Lillian said.

"Then you would better ask it," my father told her, smiling.

"Have you any idea whether Hugh thinks Lee Chow is shamming or insane?" she asked slowly.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Formal Dance Attire

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—Is it correct to wear a long-sleeved gown with a high front and a low back to a strictly formal dance?

2—If a corsage is worn, on what side should it be pinned? I always thought the left side was proper, but I think the corsage will be crushed while dancing.

3—If dance programs are distributed, should you ask your escort's permission before reserving a dance with another young man? If so, how should it be done? W.

1—If this is really formal dress, it will be more or less appropriate, but even more appropriate for a dance, and more comfortable for dancing, would be a sleeveless dress of a formal dancing type.

2—You may wear a corsage on either side you wish . . . there is no rule about this.

3—So that there will be no confusion as to the filling in of the program, you should inform your escort at once when you give a dance to another partner. It isn't necessary to ask his permission, but it is necessary to inform him.

How to Keep Well

Hay Fever Season Soon, Take Precautions Now!

Hay Fever is a distressing affliction. If you are a victim of this annoying condition you will agree that continued attacks of hay fever are feared and unwelcome experiences.

Dr. Copeland

It is due to a sensitivity or "allergy" of the sufferer to certain plant pollens or to other protein substances. Most victims are sensitive to plant pollens, but they may also be sensitive to certain foods. Fortunately, in most instances, the "sensitivity substances" can be determined correctly by the so-called sensitivity tests. When discovered, the sensitivity to it can be decreased or entirely eradicated by vaccination against the offending substance.

This is the time of the year when victims of hay fever should consult with their physician about hay fever injections. Control can be expected only by those who receive the injections well before the hay fever season begins. It is advisable to receive injections at least a month before the attacks are expected. They rarely occur later than August 15.

The vaccination or treatment consists of hypodermic injections of extracts of the pollen or other substances to which the patient is sensitive. Small doses are given at first. They are gradually increased. By the time the hay fever season arrives the patient is receiving large doses of the vaccine and in a favorable case receives protection against the bad effects of exposure to the offending pollen.

Of course, not all sufferers receive complete relief. In fact, many complain that they are not benefited by the injections. Unsatisfactory results are perhaps due to insufficient injections, or to receiving them too late in the summer.

The injections should be given over a considerable period of time and, as I have said, they should begin long before the hay fever season starts. Many specialists believe the injections should be given all year around.

This form of treatment is especially indicated in stubborn and prolonged cases, particularly in the perennial form of hay fever.

If you have received the injection treatment against hay fever with poor results, do not become discouraged. Repeat the injections in hope that you will receive protection against all pollens and foods to which you are sensitive.

It must be said in all frankness that many disappointments follow the various types of hay fever control. It is such an annoying ailment, however, that it is well worth while to make every effort to end it.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Making the Best Call

When an opposing player has opened the bidding and the player next to speak has a tremendous hand, it is sometimes the case that a bid adequately picturing the great holdings is hard to find. If the player has length in the suit adversely bid he cannot well make the immediate Overcall in the opponents' suit, as this call is dangerous if partner also has strength in the hand and length in the suit bid by the adversary. In such cases, of course, a Double is to be recommended. With hands in which the player is void of the suit bid by the opponents and has the other cards to warrant it, the Immediate Overcall in that suit is far and away the best call available.

South, Dealer.

	♠ 92 ♡ 943 ◇ 8654 ♣ J843
♠ — ♡ AKQ82 ◇ AKJ1097 ♣ A10	West / North / East / South	♠ J86543 ♡ 105 ◇ Q32 ♣ Q7
	♠ AKQ107 ♡ J76 ◇ — ♣ K9652

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ♠ (1)	Pass	2 NT (2)
Pass	6 ◇ (3)	Pass	7 ◇ (4)
Pass	Pass	Pass

1—This hand was apparently made to order for this bid.

2—Of course, the only response. East has no suit of any length whatever except the adversely bid suit and he does hold a scattering of honors.

3—Inasmuch as the hand was scored on a match-point basis, West determined not to offer his partner a choice between suits, but to fight it out on the diamond line, regardless of results.

4—A very brilliant bid. The holder of the East hand was Waldemar von Zedtwitz. He afterwards stated that the Raise to seven was based upon the holding of two doubletons in his hand, together with the Queen of trumps. On the bidding he felt quite sure that West could avail himself in some way of these holdings.

The Grand Slam, of course, was made because of the fortunate break in the heart suit. North opened the spade nine, which West ruffed and laid down one round of diamonds to test out the situation. When South failed to follow suit on the trump, West then led three rounds of hearts, discarding a club from Dummy. He then laid down the Ace and another club, which was ruffed in Dummy, and now proceeded to draw the trumps.

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ♠	Pass	Pass
Pass

and the player, even though he hadn't a spade in his hand and though he had to concede 100 points for honors, made two spades for a plus score of 10.

At still another table the bidding went:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Double	Pass	Pass
Pass

and South was set 500 points, a very fine result from his standpoint. The hand is not of the type with which a Takeout Double should be made. There is the strong danger that the very thing will happen which did happen—namely, that partner will have a long string of trumps and no other tricks in the hand.

CROCHETED ACCESSORIES PATTERN 743

If you are crochet-minded and what needlewoman today isn't, here is your chance to have a choice bit of crochet that is easily and quickly done. It is called the Feather Medallion and makes a variety of lovely and unusual accessories. The medallion—it measures 10 inches the long way—has a feathery lacey look that makes it so effective. It is practical for a variety of lovely centerpieces, in-between cloths, buffet sets, and scarfs as well as a bedspread or medallion trimming on a scarf end as shown. The illustration shows a section of the bedspread, the joining of the medallions making a continuous pattern.

Pattern 743 comes to you with detailed directions and material requirements for making the medallion and forming a great variety of articles and illustrations of the stitches.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York, N. Y.

Companionship of Dale Welcome But Pippin Dislikes Wooing

CHAPTER LXXVI.

They were hidden by great, hulking granite rocks past which the trail wound, Pippin climbed to one of these and sat down, Dale stood beside her, resting his elbows on the crag.

"Look!" said he, pointing to Dadee and the little gypsy maid who now rounded the ledge.

Dadee, with one hand clawing into the cliffs, reached the other and pulled Irene upward. The girl leaned against him, breathless. She looked up; Dadee looked down. They laughed. Their faces were very close.

"All the world thinks it's sweet!" said Dale, reaching his arms about Pippin's waist and looking up to her.

He went on, his eyes teasing and wooing her: "Why do you set yourself apart and disagree with all the ages?"

She answered with a vague excitement: "You speak of kisses and such?"

"Of what else does one speak on a glorious day to a glorious girl?"

"Summer lasts such a brief space. You can't afford to throw the priceless moments away. They never come back, Pippin!"

She looked out to the clear, crystalline sky. A white, delicate cloud like a bird of ecstasy flew over the mountain tops. Ridge after ridge of gray and purple swept onward bearing in diamond saucers and bowls of emerald the many glimmering mountain lakes.

Seem Not to Count

Pippin murmured, wistful, feeling her heart swell with the beauty: "We are so small!"

"But for us is all the grandeur! All this mighty sculpture made for us!"

"I can't think that. We seem not to count at all."

He drew her toward him and lifted her down, holding her a brief moment in his arms. "I think we count, Pippin. If not to ourselves, perhaps to another. You count—enormously—to me!"

"Please don't! It's been such fun tramping about with you. You've been so awfully nice!"

She looked up with a quick smile; saw his black eyes glow, impetuous, full of desire. She turned her glance sharply to the far distance where, outspread and seeming vast as an ocean, the blue, clear waters of Tahoe flashed.

He let her go but kept hold of her fingers.

He said softly, lightly: "It's more than three weeks since I saved your life in the storm, Pippin."

"I do appreciate it. I'm glad to be here on this great, wild pyramid."

"Why do you turn your back on sweet, happy things? Why may I not say that I think you—"

She interrupted, agitated: "I don't want to hear of love. I'm not in the mood for lightness."

"Nor am I—I do not feel at all like trifling. I've seen you nearly every day. We've spent hours together. I've watched you and thought about you. How long do you think it takes before one knows—"

Likes Companionship

She turned and looked in his face—but it was warm and pleading. Something boyish in his eyes, a hurt, sweet look made her heart rush—made her soften.

He saw it and pulled her to him. He said, laughing: "All right—I'll be good! But you do like me, Pippin? You wouldn't care if I kissed you? I'm not going to—not now. But you do like being with me?"

She nodded.

"Why, I love being with you! That's all right, isn't it?"

They heard Dadee and Irene who were now shouting to them.

Dale said: "Listen, Pippin—I meant what I said, but I won't bother you. So don't go taking trails in the opposition direction to my trails. Understand!"

She blinked and laughed: "I don't want to be alone, either!"

She thought about him. She wondered with hot, distended heart why a tremor ran along her nerves when he put an arm about her, when he leaned down in the dark and sang softly, warmly: "Dream a little dream of me!"

Sometimes when she lay in bed and looked at the thronging stars, so brilliant in the blue of a midnight sky, her eyes would grow wet. With hard, young defiance she would blot Kevin's image from her mind. She would let herself soften, with a little bitter yearning, to Dale.

Keeps Promise

pleasant, carefree, entertaining. He did kind, joyous things without even knowing it. He cooked steaks on a griddle at the edge of his lagoon. Dadee with Irene—Kate Stone and a guest, Kathleen and Scotty Campbell, who were up for a week-end, sat about the great bonfire and waited.

He wouldn't let anyone help him. He had a great pot of raviolas. When Kate went up and insisted on stirring them, he gave her a resounding whack, took her by the shoulders and turned her about.

"You're burning them!" she insisted.

"Darling—you're going to eat them as I serve them, burned or not burned!"

Afterwards they sang, some of them entirely out of tune and these, of course, sang loudest. They went into the cabin, shoved all the furniture to the walls. Dale played. They danced.

Wants to Dance

When Pippin sat on the bench with him, he said insistently: "Can't your friend play? Even one waltz? I want to dance with you!"

But no one else could play. Kate sat in a corner, reading a magazine and chuckling with mirth. Suddenly she gave a deep, ringing laugh. She came over to the piano.

"Here's an article says we can be rejuvenated, caper about at seventy with the ardor of youth in our veins. Pippin, what chance will a girl of eighteen have against a wild old woman like me, who has the stored-up wisdom of the years, when I get my second wind?"

"Oh Kate, would you want to go back to all the anguish and uncertainty?"

"Would I! And will I know how to live the next time!"

She read on. Suddenly she drew a deep, audible sigh and tossed the magazine to a chair.

"It won't be any use! They can't resecre the youthful form or face. What good would it do me with this ensemble to have young ideas?"

She spoke mirthfully but underneath the breezy swagger was a hunger—a yearning for the dreams that are lost.

Dale reached over, took Kate's hand and pulled her to the bench at his side: "I'll bet on you, Kate, shaggy hair and all! Here—bang along one, two, three, like this! I want to dance!"

Again Avows Love

Kate played the Blue Danube which she had learned as a girl. She remembered three or four bars. She played these over and over.

"Never mind—I'll sing!" said Dale. He took Pippin in his arms. All the others kept on dancing. They whistled and hummed.

Dale swept Pippin to the porch. "I've been wanting to dance with you for ages. You look beautiful tonight!"

She said, softly, feeling his eyes on her: "That was a nice thing you said to Kate."

"I think it's true. I think she must have been very attractive as a girl. Only she didn't know it. That's a great handicap—you've got to believe in your own power. Why do women crave beauty so? The really perfect face is rarely warm or interesting. Please turn yours up, Pippin, I want to look at you."

She laughed nervously. But he put his chin in her hair and moved her head up.

He said softly: "I just want to tell you I love you."

"That's all right! You don't, of course!"

He led her to the edge of the porch. He kept his arm about her. An immense harvest moon rose over the hills; it laid a mile-wide path across the lake.

"The moon is gold and streaming gently on the water as you like it, Dale."

"Why do yon deny what I tell you, Pippin?"

"I don't want to be loved."

"You do! You ARE loved. I love you!"

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Rinses to be used after the shampoo are having a great run. Have to be applied whenever the hair is washed, but what's that in the cause of beauty.

There are preparations that put the golden glow in drab hair, those that redden brown crowns, others that high light the blonde halo. Always something new. Always something interesting.

Large hips can be reduced. There is a way—many ways—but there is seldom the will. Exercise must be done at a certain time, every day, week after week. If there isn't a regular time for it, it won't be done.

Get down on the floor on all fours; lift the right leg high, stretch it with a hard muscle pull. Five times, then five times with the left. Repeat until you begin to feel tired.

Tuck feet under radiator of a heavy piece of furniture. Lift the upper part of the body without using the hands. Weekly measurements will be encouraging.

Household Hints

Stale pastry which has been brushed over with milk and thoroughly heated will taste like new.

A little coarse sugar stirred into soup that has been made too salty will render it more palatable.

Never throw away old coffee grounds. Dry them in the oven, add a pinch of bicarbonate of soda, and you will have an excellent knife powder.

Junior Patrol Mail Box

Pittsburgh was not always the way it is now, fellows!

Sometimes it is hard for us to realize, when we look around us at the big buildings and travel over the fine roads and railroads and cross the bridges and ravines on great bridges, that not so long ago all this country was a wilderness.

From the Alleghenies west, there was scarcely a single white man to be found. Now and then some of the brave Frenchmen, up to the North, around the Great Lakes, would venture into the Western country to buy furs and to trade with the Indians. Now and then a brave Englishman would cross the mountains and come to Pittsburgh to begin a journey further west. But only the Indians really lived here, planting a few fields and hunting for their meat and game.

And then the settlers came pouring over the mountains. In just a few years much of the land was occupied, farms started and cities begun. Pittsburgh was just a little hamlet at first, like all frontier settlements. From here many people "jumped off" into the Ohio country. Many loaded supplies and tools on flatboats and floated down the Ohio River.

Life was hard in those days. There were no running water, gas, electric light in the pioneer homes. Many of the houses were built of logs, chinked with mud or straw. The Indians were often on the warpath—ready to kill and scalp the unwary.

As we live today, in modern homes and cities, it is a good idea to remember once in a while how the people who lived here first had to exist. The city is great now, and the Indians departed long ago. But we can still be pioneers. We can do our best to make the city a finer, better place in which to live.

There are many, many more things to know. There are many more things to do, and great works to be done, before the city will be the happy, neighborly place it should be. Junior Patrols can help.

One of the gayest cabaret dances roundabout this year will be that to be given by young socialites, members of the Sewickley Child Health Association, a week from tonight in the Edgeworth Club, all for the benefit of the association's work for Sewickley Valley children.

Girls of the social registerite set, who work at the clinic in the Sewickley Valley Hospital, will be chorines that evening.

Young dancers will include Janet McKinney, Margaret and Frederick Holdship, Mary Elizabeth Floyd, the Doyle sisters, Rebecca, Virginia and Nancy; Martha Yost, Althea Robinson, Anne Rose, Margaret McCready, Bertha Brooks, Rosamound Fitch and Georgianna Collin.

Miss Howley To Wed on June 12

At an informal party in their home recently Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Howley, of Homestead, made known the betrothal of their daughter, Miss Adelaide Howley, to John D. Matthews, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Matthews, of Eighth avenue, Homestead.

Miss Howley has chosen June 12, the date of her parents' wedding anniversary, as the day for her own marriage, to take place in St. Mary Magdalene Church. Miss Mary Louise O'Donnell is to be the maid of honor and Rodger Howley, cousin of the bride-elect, will be best man.

Katherine Miller John W. Faber, Married

At 9 o'clock this morning in St. Wendelin's Church, Carrick, the Rev. Julius Utecht solemnized the marriage of Miss Katherine Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Miller, of Carrick, and John William Faber.

The bride wore ivory satin with a tulle veil and carried white roses and lilies of the valley. Her sister, Miss Marion Miller, as maid of honor, wore blue taffeta, and Miss Adele Smith, the bridesmaid, wore pink taffeta. Both carried pink roses and blue delphinium. John Miller, the bride's brother, was best man.

After a honeymoon in Miami, Fla., Mr. and Mrs. Faber will be at home in Clairmont avenue, Brentwood.

Lydia J. Ramsey Plans June Wedding

At a bridge-luncheon given by her sister, Miss Mary Esther Ramsey, on Saturday, announcement was made of the engagement of Miss Lydia Jane Ramsey, daughter of the late James H. Ramsey, and of Mrs. Anna L. Ramsey, of Munhall, to John Pollins, of Greensburg.

Miss Ramsey is planning a June wedding. For several years she has been a teacher in the Greensburg schools.

Crafton Girl's Marriage Is Announced

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Hutchinson, of Crafton, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Marion M. Hutchinson, to Lea B. Perrin, also of Crafton.

The ceremony took place Friday morning in the First Presbyterian Church. After a short trip Mr. and Mrs. Perrin will be at home in North Grandview avenue, Crafton.

Kolasinski Speaker At Press Club

Victor Paul Kolasinski, of the United States Lines, will give a talk before the Women's Press Club on Monday afternoon, June 4, in the Woman's City Club. Mr. Kolasinski will describe "Far Countries Through the Eyes of an Artist," sketching remembered bits of his travels as he talks.

Benefit Planned For Sisters

Sponsored by Miss Madeline Gatz, of Carrick, and Miss Anne Obringer, of Overbrook, a card party will be given at the Monongahela House on Thursday for the benefit of the Sisters of Divine Providence.

Wells Group Shannon Guests

Members of the Wells College Club and their husbands will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Shannon at dinner in the Edgeworth Club on Friday.

Harmar D. Dennys Back in Town

The junior Harmar D. Dennys, who have closed their home on Ellsworth avenue for a time and gone to their summer place at Muncy, Pa., are in town again.

They plan to spend several days with Mrs. Harmar Denny, Sr.

* * *

Among those enjoying a spring holiday are the H. R. Potters and their young daughter Susan, of Sewickley. They are vacationing at Virginia Beach, Va. They are guests there at Maryland Cottage, Cavalier Hotel.

* * *

Nancy Byers Painted on Horseback

She'll enter Red Roberts in the Allegheny Country Club horse show June 7, 8 and 9.

* * *

Pittsburgh society is going to lose the popular Clark Millers, of Park Mansions. They plan to leave June 1 to make their home in New York. Mrs. Miller's family lives there, by the way.

Eugene Perry, Ohio Girl Engaged

At a luncheon at the South Hills Country Club, of Youngstown, O., Saturday, Mrs. Eloise Hartenstein, of Youngstown, announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Jean Hartenstein, to Eugene Perry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank V. Perry, of Youngstown, formerly of Pittsburgh.

Eugene Perry is a brother of Mrs. Marshall L. Benn, of Carnegie place, Pittsburgh.

Betty Bisceglia Honored by Sister

Miss Mary Bisceglia, of Morewood avenue, East End, entertained Thursday evening in honor of her sister, Miss Betty Bisceglia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bisceglia, of Morewood avenue, whose marriage to August Altmeyer, of Sharpsburg, will take place June 6.

Decorations at the party were in pink and yellow, and favors were bridal corsages. There were 42 guests.

Uniontown Girl Is Honored Here

Mrs. J. Howard Wood, of Clinton place, Bellevue, entertained 20 guests at a bridge luncheon in her home Saturday in honor of Miss Dorothy Jane Lentz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Lentz, of Uniontown. Miss Lentz has chosen June 13 as the date for her marriage to Richard Douglass Wood, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Howard Wood, to take place in Uniontown.

Congress Plans Diversified Program

A diversified program has been arranged by Mrs. Stewart McFarland, chairman, for the final meeting of the literature department of the Congress of Clubs tomorrow. Luncheon will be served at 12 o'clock.

Kay Dean, from station KDKA, will talk on "Radio and Women;" in celebration of National Poetry Week G. W. Gordon will discuss "Pittsburgh Poets;" Mrs. McFarland will tell in verse the story of Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata" and Mrs. George Taylor will give piano selections.

Federation Sessions Open

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., May 22.—(AP.)—Two candidates to succeed Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, of Brockton, Mass., as president of the General Federaton of Women's Clubs at the federation's annual convention in Detroit next year, were revealed here.

They are Mrs. Eugene B. Lawson, of Tulsa, Okla., first vice president of the federation, and Dr. Josephine Peirce, of Lima, O., now serving as second vice president.

Inaugurating a change of policy allowing discussion of controversial public questions for the first time in the history of the organization, the sixteenth council meeting of the federation opened here yesterday.

Only routine reports and board meetings were on the opening day's program. More than 1,000 delegates from all sections of the nation were on hand.

Delegates of the Junior Department of the general federation in which approximately 50,000 are enrolled are meeting with the council this year for the first time.

Mrs. Poole will inaugurate the change in policy to allow discussion before the delegates of birth control, unemployment, old age insurance, selective sterilization and the women's equal rights amendments.

MRS. SANGER TO SPEAK

One of the principal speakers on the birth control question will be Mrs. Margaret Sanger, national birth control advocate, who sent word she would fly here from Washington. Dr. Theodore H. Aschman, of Kansas City, will present the negative side.

Mrs. Laura Macham Marlowe, of Newcomerstown, O., was announced as the winner of the national essay contest, conducted by the federation on "Hitlerism and the Isolation of Germany."

Two writers tied for second place, Mrs. G. A. Stevenson, of Harvey, Ill., and Mrs. John B. Harvill, of Dejart, Tex.

BILL ADVOCATED

President Roosevelt was urged by the council to sign a House bill giving to American mothers the right to transmit their nationality to children born abroad.

A message to the President urging favorable action on the bill was forwarded by Mrs. S. Blair Luckie, of Chester, Pa., chairman of the federation department of legislation, after the council board of directors had endorsed the move.

Both Houses of Congress have passed the bill which now is on the President's desk. The present law gives the child the right of nationality through the father.

'Y' Institute To Have Fair

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

What promises to be an exceptionally colorful affair is the "Old World Market Scene and Street Fair" to be held Saturday afternoon, June 2, by the International Institute of the Young Women's Christian Association. It will open at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and continue until midnight. Colorful exhibits of arts and crafts from other countries will be shown, some of the articles and nationality pastries being placed on sale.

Different nationality groups at the Institute have undertaken the various projects. For instance, the Athena Club is busy on displays which will represent both ancient and modern Greece. The Samovar Club is arranging a travel booth and street movies. A dramatic presentation called "The Enchanted Princess" will be produced by the Czecho-Slovakian group. It's to be a typical puppet show such as one sees on the streets of Prague and is based on an old Czecho-Slovakian legend.

Other interesting features will be the French street cafe the Polish exhibit, music and dancing. The purpose of the affair is chiefly educational, for it affords an opportunity to learn of the customs and cultures of foreign countries. It is an annual inter-club affair at the Institute.

Catholic Group To Play Bridge

Mrs. J. A. Fillinger will serve as chairman for the bridge tea to be sponsored by Pittsburgh Council of Catholic Women for its activities fund on Saturday afternoon at the Council House.

Assisting the chairman will be Mrs. Edward L. Scanlon, Mrs. David L. Lawrence, Mrs. R. A. Rodgers, Mrs. Thomas P. Moran, Mrs. John J. Kane and Mrs. L. P. Shea.

A "Roosian" exhibit! A chance for you to come downtown and ogle the results of the famous five-year plan with a critical American eye!

And it's a nice exhibit! With everything from all-wool challis paisley printed shawls for grandma on through to nests of fat-tummied dolls fitted one inside the other until you finally end up with a diminutive one!

Especially were we impressed with the swellish tea cloths and matching napkins that appeared for sums like $5.95 (which is what you'd pay for a much less inspiring one of mediocre type). In two grades of linen . . heavy and medium . . . and three colors green, gold and neutral. All hand-made and loomed, of course . . . with strange cabalistic signs worked into them. Size 54 inches square with 6 napkins . . . and excellent for that tea party on the front porch or the lawn!

P. S.—Be sure to see the genuine "drosky" driver with his webbed shoes and his fat wife! He's a doll.

Barely a week until you'll be tootling off on a Decoration Day spree . . . which means new fandangles . . which means tall, tinkling glasses . . . which means any number of delightful things now that you're starting Summer more or less officially!

And these sandals are the very thing to clasp over dancing feet and twinkling toes. Newly arrived too . . . we just snorted right in and literally dug them out of their boxes! Such numbers as Carioca—a skeleton of an oxford . . . strips and straps . . . no toe, no heel, and the whole thing of dyed doeskin—purple, orange, lipstick red, blue, and green! South America and the dance craze at its height! And oh, what these do for your feet!

Plenty of others in dyeable fabrics . . . in doeskins . . . in colors . . . with the new flat heels, heelless and toeless . . . devilishly "soulless" in their crazy designs, and priced at $7.50. Decorate yourself with these on Decoration Day!

* * *

Of course, you must have a new bag . . . a white bag! And probably . . . a washable bag! Whereupon, we spring up brightly beating the air with our waving arms, and announce that we have them . . . we have them!

White or natural glazed linen ones . . . in all styles including the popular vanity bag. Spill things on them . . . stain them . . . soil them . . . and then do a little washing stunt and reclaim them without a quiver!

With coin purses, mirrors, combs, inside. And priced $1.00.

Now for the long, cool drinks! Brought to you on a white wrought iron stand with tile top . . . the ideal little gadget to lug 'round over the lawn . . . because it has a handle.

Your green or pink glass pitcher sits securely in the middle . . . and six matching glasses are ranged three on a side. Quite an easy way to serve on warm days . . . and the whole set, glasses and all, is $1.98.

FASHIONABLES FROM KINDERGARTEN

By PRUNELLA WOOD

Right, a pink organdie frock for the first dancing school revel. It is frilly and ingenue, but not even the most ambitious jeune fille could tag it as a little girl's costume.

ONCE UPON A time little girls' frocks were turned out by the family seamstress twice a year—spring and autumn—with good hems on all of them to take care of any growing that might go on between her visits. It would take a flower girl job at a family wedding or a fire to get the child anything new in mid-season—but those days are gone forever.

There is a tremendous amount of sturdy, well styled clothing turned out into the shops every day, with everything from a band and a gertrude for the baby to first evening dresses for the big sisters to be had for the asking. The infant clothes keep up with modern findings in baby culture, the play clothes give a nod to modern recreational demands and the clothes for the awkward age admit frankly that Sister will soon be grown up and she might as well learn how to wear adult things.

* * *

SMOCKING WILL never go out as long as pretty children are the apples of their parents' eyes. Even the least expensive clothes in children's shopping departments turn to this trimming for play-time and dress-up models. Boys and girls together share it in their romper days; girls keep right on with it until well grown. This year smocked organdie is very beguiling in little dresses that fall straight from the shoulders beneath tiny collars of fine embroidery and lace.

Gingham, dimity, chambray and linen remain the most useful and popular materials for warm weather frocks. But it is always well to have a snug outfit, even in summer time, and the light knitted outfits are very pretty. Boys and girls of close age can be dressed in twin outfits—a jumper for both, pants for the boy and a brief skirt for the girl. They are stunning in navy blue and white, with a red stripe or two on the white jersey somewhere.

Nearly all cotton fabrics are fast color in this day and age, so a mother gets as much value in her ready-made buys as if she made children's clothes from materials she had tested herself for shrinking and fading.

Things I Never Knew 'Til Now

(And which you didn't, either!)

Grant once held a cigar (which he didn't smoke) during a battle. A newspaper correspondent saw it—and wrote a story around it, and three weeks later admirers had sent the General 11,000 stogies. (That's how Ulysses became a heavy smoker.)

Henry III of France, who couldn't stay in the same room with a cat, owned 2,000 lap dogs at one time . . . When Bosquet was informed that he had been appointed Marshal of France, he broke down and cried like a baby; Napoleon loved ghost stories; Nelson kept his coffin in his cabin—and Wellington's mother called him the fool of the family.

Nicholas I of Russia hated smoking and Frenchmen so much that when the saw the two together on the street in St. Petersburg, he had the poor visitor arrested and sent 1,000 miles to the Turkish border. (All of Nick's relatives today now have to work for a living.)

The original John Law was a Scotsman, who started a system like the NRA in France a few hundred years ago. He had his own bank and was permitted to issue his own currency.

Speculation in his notes took gambling out of high society and into all classes. Investors would haggle and bargain in the street before his bank—thus starting the first curb market.

Washington had decided that if England won the American Revolution he would gather as many soldiers as would come and establish a republic on the Mississippi . . . Robert E. Lee called the Union troops "Gen. Grant's people"—and here's one of the reasons why Napoleon was great. He put his wife's milliner in jail when her bill was too big.

The Stuart portrait of Washington is the second version. When the first President complained that the sittings for the picture were too long, the artist explained that it was because the paint took so long to dry. That evening a stupid servant, who overheard the talk, put the portrait before the fire, baking it beyond repair.

Here's a story that's been hung on every famous playwright since Shakespeare. The fourth night of his new drama the writer asked his father if he would care to see it again.

"What!" exclaimed the old man, "is it still running?"

When John Jay retired, and someone asked him if it wouldn't be boring, he replied: "No; I've a long life to look back on—and an eternity to look forward to." (A crack I wish were mine.)

One of the most daring swindles in European history was performed by the Prince of Chios and his son, Justininia, of Greece, who had been ousted by the Turks—and came to the Court of Louis the XVI . . . For 10 years the prince received a swell pension, and his son commanded a crack regiment. Then they were introduced to the Comte de Maurepas—who recognized them as a couple of peasants from a yokel district.

Louis Philippe, while in exile, learned to slice ham like an expert cook. And when he returned to the throne he always had ham served at dinner. One night he handed a slice to Count von Beust, who was seated on the other side of the Queen. But another slice was hanging to the first and it fell, unnoticed, on the Queen's dress front. So the Count diverted her attention—lifted off the slice and pocketed it.

The custom of rising and singing "The Star Spangled Banner" was started by Daniel Webster—who got up and chimed in with Jenny Lind at the Castle Garden, New York. (In Detroit, by the way, it is against the law to play it in part—it must be played all the way through.)

Wellington, at Waterloo yelled to his men: "Up and at 'em!" (Showing you how far back that slang goes.)

Add silly red tape: At Windsor Castle, in Queen Victoria's time, the outside of the window panes were cleaned by one department (Woods and Forests) and the inside by another (Lord Steward's Office). But they never got together, so the windows were always dirty.

When his Drury Lane Theater was burning down, Richard Brinsley Sheridan sat calmly watching the fire from a nearby coffee house, saying: "A man must be allowed to take a glass of wine to his own fireside" . . . At an annual banquet given by Wellington to his officers, to commemorate Waterloo, a valuable snuff box belonging to the Duke disappeared. A search was suggested but one officer refused to submit and suspicion rested on him . . . A year later, at the next banquet, Wellington told how he found the snuff box in his own pockets—and sent for the accused officer, who had been under a cloud . . . The latter confessed that his family at the time were starving, and he had refused to be searched because his pockets were stuffed with food.

A bill was introduced in the Nebraska Legislature to name the capital city Douglas City, after Stephen A. Douglas. For 10 years nothing was done—but the matter was finally settled by calling the place Lincoln—after the most bitter enemy Douglas ever had!

Scandal of a bygone day: Two ladies, in officer's uniforms, were attached to Washington's staff. . . . Stonewall Jackson couldn't make the grade as a flute player. . . . Charles II, of England, took $350,000 voted by Parliament for a monument to his father, and spent it on his girl friends. . . . Anne Boleyn introduced hanging sleeves because she had a double nail on her little finger, and the suggestion of a sixth finger . . . Josephine got rich from putting on the pressure in behalf of army contractors . . . Queen Victoria's real name was Alexandrina Victorina . . . Wellington conquered Napoleon but got sick on his first and only cigar! . . . When he was losing—Napoleon sent fake news of victories back to Paris . . . A descendant, Nap III, was arrested and fined for shooting a pig—in—of all places—Jersey City . . . And girls were just as safe with Lord Byron, William Shakespeare and Sam Pepys—as they would be with white slavers.

The tombs of the Washington family at Adwick-le-Street, England, start with the date 1579, when Dominus Jacobus Washington Armiger was buried. On the tomb is a shield—covered with stars and stripes!

Rex Ingram In Huddle On Film

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, May 22.—Hello! Even in faroff London they seem to have movie news snoopers. At least, one with his ear close to the executive doors of the Alexander Korda outfit (produced "King Henry the Eighth," you know), cables the MOST IMPORTANT news that a deal is on the fire (or maybe it's over the teacups there), whereby Rex Ingram, who made Hollywood history with his direction of "The Four Horsemen," may again pick up his megaphone.

At any rate, Col. Lawrence, author of "Revolt in the Desert," a sensational and literary best-seller of some years ago, Producers Korda and Ingram have been in a huddle over production plans. If the deal is closed Ingram will not only direct, but also play the stellar role. Lawrence, of course, will prepare the script and act in an advisory capacty.

* * *

Well, this must be our London film news days. Here's another note from the land of the dropped aitches—J. Walter Ruben, who is directing "Java Head" for a British outfit, quite accidentally found a copy of the now extinct "Jungen Magazine," and in it he read a yarn, "Solitary Silence," by the late Renfrew D'Arcy, formerly one of Scotland Yard's most famous detectives.

After much trouble on his part, Ruben finally located the heirs of D'Arcy's estate, purchased the movie rights (although quite unnecessary as the story is now public domain), and is trying to make a deal to remain in London long enough to film it for RKO's British company.

* * *

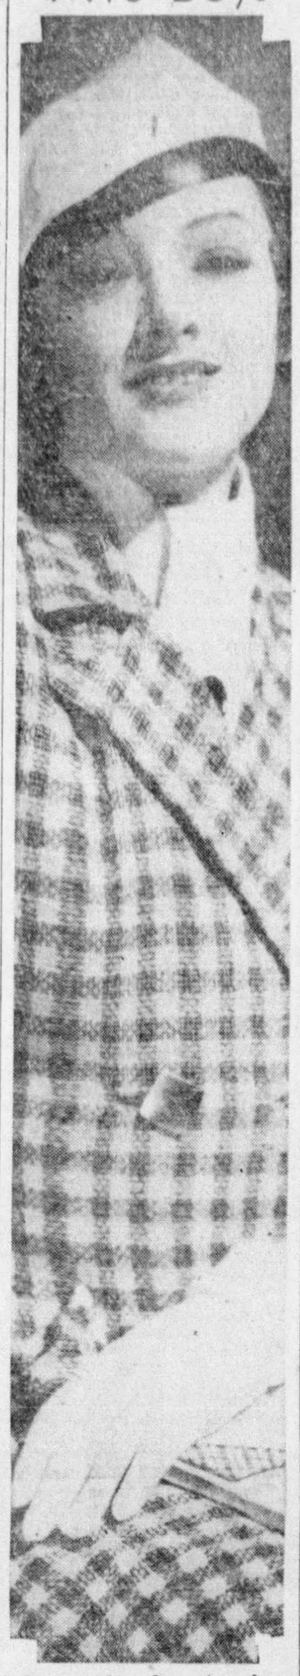
Wanderings around Hollywood: If you think Kay Fancis isn't seeing SO MUCH of Maurice Chevalier these evenings you're wrong! . . . Mary Carlisle, who is affecting an ultra and reserved attitude, Dick Powell and Harry Ruby are making it a strange trio for night-lifeing around town . . . Ann Harding has had more pictures than she knows what to do with, her agent is THAT mixed up. If things can be straightened out, Richard Wallace might direct her in "The Fountain" for RKO . . . Ben Bernie LEAPED out of bed too quickly after that separation from his tonsils, and is between the sheets again . . . Verree Teasdale is SO sun-burned that she can CRACK a smile! . . . Nils Asther has signed with Universal to be featured in two productions. . . . Frank Lawton, who is to play Diana Wynyard's sweetie in "One More River" for Universal, played her SON in "Cavalcade."

* * *

The Buzz Berkeley-Sam Goldwyn-Warner court battle to decide who gets the former, has registered on Ruby Keeler's mind as something terribly annoying.

Ruby was all set to canal-boat it to New York with hubby, Al Jolson, for a nice vacation—but the delay caused by legal thingamuhjigs puts back her schedule. She has but one number to finsh in "Dames" and Buzz is supposed to direct it. Ruby was all for forgetting the number and skipping off, but Al, sticking to the traditions of the stage, says "Nay, nay!" She must stay and finish the number.

Two Boys



Myrna Loy has two boy friends in "Manhattan Melodrama," coming to Penn screen Friday, one being Clark Gable, gangster; the other William Powell, district attorney, friend of Gable, too.

Players and Plays

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The Pittsburgh Civic Playhouse, now busy with preliminaries for its summer season at Arnold School, has decided upon a tentative list of plays from which its productions will be selected. Under consideration are "The Dark Tower," "The Left Bank," "The Lake," "Naked," "The Curtain Rises," "Broomsticks Amen," "Pursuit of Happiness," "Her Master's Voice," "Payment Deferred," "Oliver Oliver," "Success Story," "The Shining Hour," "The Green Bay Tree," "Gentlewoman," "American, Very Early" and "Sailor Beware." M. E. Fierst continues as business manager of the group, which is an outgrowth of the summer theater activities of last year in the same place and at Fox Chapel. William Herman Liveright will act as business manager and there will be a production board including Martha Jamison Arnold, Elmer Kenyon, Rosemary Casey, Chester M. Wallace, Lsabella Jones, Harvey B. Gaul, Mrs. Maurice Davis, Richard Rauh, Beatrice Lewis, Henry Hornbostel, Madeline Skelly Foust, Arista E. Fisher, Eloise Campbell, Mrs. K. W. Todd and James W. Macfarlane.

* * *

Pleasant acquaintanceship sometimes begins strangely. For instance, that of a prominent Pittsburgh priest and one of our foremost American comedians. Our clergyman, returning from a trip to the Holy Land, was conversing with a couple of young ladies aboard the ship when one asked him the name of the bishop in Pittsburgh. "Hugh Boyle," he replied, and as he did so he noticed a man passing look quickly at him and continue his walk. Later the man approached him and asked him if he knew him. The clergyman replied that he did not, and asked the reason for the inquiry.

"I heard you speak my real name, as I passed a while ago, and thought perhaps you were someone who knew me in my young days, or knew my parents."

It developed that the man was Hugh O'Connell, the latter being the name of his foster parents, and one that he has made famous on the stage, his most recent success being in "The Milky Way," a comedy hit that is just two weeks old in New York. His two previous hits were in "Once in a Lifetime" and "Face the Music."

As a result of mentioning the name of Bishop Hugh C. Boyle at probably the only time that ever would have brought these two men together, a friendship was struck up that has continued.

* * *

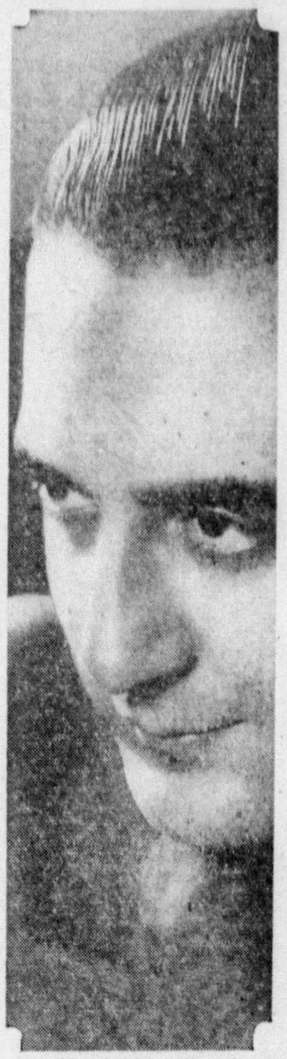
"Uncle Tom's Cabin" will be presented tonight and Wednesday night by the Irene Kaufmann Settlement Players in the Theresa L. Kaufmann auditorium, one of the best-equipped Little Theaters in the country. A large cast, including bloodhounds, as a matter of course, will be seen in the grand old play, now dead, that has been the training school for veritably thousands of actors. The following note appears at the bottom of the program for the performances:

"Bloodhounds used in this production are genuine and full-blooded. The gentlemen in the audience will kindly assure the ladies that they (the dogs) are in the hands of an experienced trainer."

* * *

Katharine Cornell will end her 17,000-mile tour of the United States and Canada, June 20, in Brooklyn, with the conviction that the movies have not killed the legitimate theater.

In Person



Guy Lombardo will make a personal appearance, with his Royal Canadians, Friday, on the stage of the Stanley, where the screen feature will be Spencer Tracy, Jack Oakie in "Looking for Trouble."

YOUR THEATER AND MINE

By KARL KRUG

There isn't much in life, but this:
A baby's smile, a woman's kiss.
Some books, a pipe, a sturdy friend,
And just a little cash to spend.

THE PRODIGAL

Mr. Mark Hellinger, the column writer, was musing over his tea in Dave's Blue Room one winter evening, and, as I recall, his philosophy of a happy existence was based to a great extent on the lines of the unknown poet quoted above. He also mentioned something about good brandy being back, and the fact that he was still a newspaperman.

Which leaves but little for me to say. For over two years I have been "on the other side of the fence" as the boys of the Fourth Estate so aptly describe it. From newspaperman to publicity director and back again is a cycle I hope I will never complete a second time. It was ole Massa Belasco, who prefaced his "The Return of Peter Grimm" with a line that went like this:

It isn't likely the ole Massa had the journalists in mind when he gave vent to his pretty speech, nevertheless to have it over with as quickly as possible, I would rather feel the hum and throb of a city room under my feet than sink to my ankles in the plush floor covering of a motion picture executive department. In other words, it again becomes my pleasant duty to write ABOUT the talkies instead of FOR them, and so to work.

"SLIM" GOES WEST

There are those who say that the late Karl Dane lived for years in the hope that M-G-M would remake "The Big Parade" as a talking picture, and give him back his old role of "Slim," who could extinguish a candle flame at 25 feet with a load of tobacco juice. When such a possibility for renewed screen fame faded the lovable Slim gathered his memories and scrapbooks around him, and ended his worldly troubles with a revolver.

Fate and the years have not been kind to that great cast of "The Big Parade." Renee Adoree, after a long fight against tuberculosis, is dead; John Gilbert, the star of the picture, has practically passed from the screen, and Tom O'Brien, the bartender turned doughboy, is heard of no more. Somehow, I like to think that perhaps little Renee as Melisande, and big Karl as Slim, are somewhere reminiscing over the earthly glory that each once knew, and contemplating with tolerant sympathy both the futile and successful efforts of those hundreds of humans battling to "arrive" on the screen.

AS I LIKE IT

Leo Carrillo's crisp portrayal in "Viva Villa" in the Penn. Ditto for Spencer Tracy in "The Show Off" in the Fulton. Those haunting lyrics of Lew Brown's "Carolina Hideaway." That great flicker, "The Lost Patrol," which, if you missed on its first run, be sure to see at your neighborhood house. The catchy "Cocktails for Two" in Earl Carroll's "Murder at the Vanities," a better talkie than it was a stage play. Billy Lorette making friends with the kids at Kennywood. The 12-year-old Mary Small on the radio. John Harris' tales of Hollywood. Earl Carroll kissing lady columnists. The hokum horror of Lugosi and Karloff. Hugh Williams in "Sorrell and Son."

* * *

Green Room Gleanings: The Stanley has put back "Murder at the Vanities" from June 1 to June 8 . . . "Stingaree," with Dix and Dunne, gets the June 1 date . . . Frank Morgan's performance in "The Affairs of Cellini," not yet released, will make him one of the most sought-for players in filmdom. He steals the picture, adapted from "The Firebrand," from both Connie Bennett and Freddie March . . . GeorgeArliss' new one, "The Last Gentleman," a honey of a film, will have to be seen from the beginning for complete enjoyment, and if 20th Century is smart it will call attention to this in its advertising . . . Sam Goldwyn may change the title of "Resurrection," Anna Sten's next photoplay . . . Mott Shea, owner of the Fulton, will open a stock house, with guest stars, in Akron early next month . . . What this town needs is a summer stock company . . . Henry Ford's showmanship removed the Stephen Foster home from Pittsburgh, which recalls that the Frick paintings and Carnegie letters are also gone . . . Joe Feldman reports a good start for the double feature policy in the Warner . . . The new arrival in the Donn Wermuth domicile has been tagged Agnes after the Missus . . . Bob Senft of the Penn is still baching, the head of the house continuing her visit with the home folks in Florida . . . The movie palace cooling plants are in operation about three weeks early this year . . . They cost from $150 to $200 a day to operate . . . Ben Kalmenson, Warner booker, is home from New York . . . Harold Cohen, the critic, is still ailing . . . The Harry Kalmines are vacationing in Bermuda.

WILL 'WRASSLES' WITH DRAMA

HOLLYWOOD, May 22.—(AP.)—The movie colony today accepted Will Rogers, film comedian, as a stage actor following his first appearance here in Eugene O'Neill's "Ah, Wilderness."

As he was drawn from backstage by applause as the last curtain dropped, Rogers said:

"I wonder what Barrymore would say now.

"The cast does all the work and I take all the bows. I don't know what drama is all about but I am trying to 'wrassle' with it. It's the only racket I've never been mixed up in before."

Adam was never tempted like this

Had Eve presented Adam with a B/G apple pie, his fall would have occurred much earlier.

We are convinced of this because so many B/G guests fall for it every day.

In Which the Customers Do the Work.

"IT'S BEEN some time," writes Alderson Fry, of Nashville, Tenn., "since you gave us anything about Tennessee. Maybe, if you haven't heard it too often, you'll go for this story of the fast bull. It's one of the tallest yarns we ever had around this section.

"A plantation owner who was attending a convention in Memphis bragged to some friends about a prize bull that he owned. He told of the animal's many merits, particularly its ability to run.

"In a minute and graphic detail, he described a mile-long pasture that ran along the railroad tracks on which the Dixie Flyer made its run. And he told how, every morning, the bull raced the Flyer from one end of the pasture to the other and always beat the train with ease. To prove his story was true, he invited his friends to visit him at any time and see this marvelous bull. They agreed to do so.

"Several months later, while the owner was talking to Jim, his favorite servant, one afternoon, a large car containing six men pulled up in front of the plantation. Jim peered out.

"'Boss,' he said, 'Ah knows dat car. Dey're de same men yo' told dat lie to 'bout dat bull yo're supposed to have. What does we do now?'

"The boss, realizing that it would be better for him not to be at home, told Jim to advise the visitors that he had gone to Washington or Philadelphia, or somewhere.

"'Tell them anything, Jim,' he said hurriedly, 'but be sure and say that I'm not here.'

"The colored man walked outside and greeted the men. They explained that they were in a hurry, and that they were just stopping for a moment to see the plantation owner and his remarkable bull.

"Jim shook his head.

"'Sorry, gem'men,' he explained, 'but mah boss is not at home. He done left dis mornin' fo' Florida—Tampa, Ah believes—to see his son. He's havin' breakfast dere, and den he goes on to Washington fo' some business. After dat, he has a 'pointment fo' dinnah in New York—and Ah 'spects him back heah late tonight.'

"The visitors looked at each other in amaztment.

"'Good Lord, man,' cried one, 'he can't possibly do that. But it doesn't make any difference, anyhow, because we're really here to see that bull.'

"Jim looked rather sad.

"'Ah'm sorry yo' doubts my word, gem'men,' he said, 'cause mah boss really can make dat trip. Ah'm also sorry, gem'men, dat yo' can't see our bull. 'Cause you see, gem'men, de boss is ridin' dat bull!'" . . .

"DEAR Mark," writes Ed Lowry, "I'm certainly happy that Repeal is with us now because, toward the latter part of Prohibition, a bootlegger friend of mine was working his way toward a nervous breakdown.

"He used to cut his liquor with water—and the poor guy was broken-hearted because he couldn't think of anything to cut the water with!" . . .

"BELIEVE it or not, Mark," ripleys Hugh Wedlock, Jr., "they are thinking of opening a nudist night club over in Jersey."

"And the beauty of it is there will be no cover charge!" . . .

"IT was night," short-stories Arthur Murray, "and Joe Doakes was drunk. So it was only a matter of time until some kind cop hauled Joe off the streets to face His Honor in night court.

"Ahead of him, dressed in evening clothes, were three men who had been arrested in a raid on a fashionable gambling house. They pleaded guilty and the judge passed sentence. An orderly walked over and escorted the prisoner to his cell. But Joe Doakes refused to go.

"Pointing at the door through which the three men had just passed, the judge cried:

"What's the matter with you? Why don't you go in there?"

"Doakes looked very apologetic.

"'I can't, judge,' he hiccoughed. 'It'sh full dressh in there!'" . . .

Echoes From Cabarets

By THE ROUNDER

If you should detect any sour notes in the dance music of the Mundy Orchestra in Lew Mercur's Villa Royale, blame them on Isabelle Phillips, the new blonde cigaret girl-hostess who has the boys dazzled. Miss Phillips, who is from Carmichaels, Pa., is said to be a tap and toe dances par excellence, having entertained in many of the Los Angeles clubs, including Fatty Arbuckle's and the Midnight Revue.

Harry Fishbein, the song and dance comic in the Villa Royale haunt, can crack wise in your many languages, including Russian and Yiddish. He came to the Villa direct from a long run in "225" Club, Chicago.

The appearance of Ozzie Nelson's Orchestra, with Harriet Hilliard, at Eddie Peyton's on June 5 is said to herald a long line of name bands on their way to the popular Steubenville pike rendezvous. Ozzie, only 28, and the director of one of the youngest bands on the air, was honored by having his band designated the most popular in radio in a recent New York newspaper poll. His vocalist, Harriet Hilliard, is rated among the most beautiful of radio performers.

The Rounder takes the liberty of predicting a brilliant future for little Mary Jane, the 13-year-old acrobatic dancer who made her cabaret debut last week at Bill McDonald's Walrose Night Club, near Ambridge. Although she seldom left the club last week before 1 or 1:30 in the morning, she was up in time for the school bell at 8:30 the next day.

The final indoor dance of the season at the Hi Hat Club, Aspinwall, will be held Saturday night. Next Tuesday, May 29, the new Hi Hat Patio, with a capacity of 1,000 persoos, will be opened, and will continue to be the dancing spot of this rendezvous throughout the summer, except when inclement weather prevails. Dancing then will be held inside. Manager Fred Sanders will provide an orchestra of 11 for his new pavilion, and there will be two floor shows of 55 minutes duration each night.

HONOR STUDENT PHONES SPEECH

DALLAS, Tex., May 22.—(AP.)—Jane Anne Slaughter, 14-year-old bed-ridden honor student, held her mother's hand in a hospital room here last night and delivered via long distance telephone her valedictory address to students of the Hollis (Okla.) Junior High School.

Cheerful and smiling, the girl, recovering from a spinal injury received in an accident at the Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago last summer, sent a simple message to her classmates.

Peace in Arabia Waits New Treaty

CAIRO, Egypt, May 22.—(AP.)—Reports reaching here from Yemen said that a peace treaty between King Ibn Saud, of Saudi, Arabia, and the Imaman Yahya, of Yemen, is expected to be signed today.

Representatives of the two rulers have been conducting peace negotiations for more than a week after fighting was suspended by a truce.

Woman 'Burglar' Given Stiff Sentence

A sentence of 10 to 25 years in the workhouse was imposed yesterday on Mrs. Lillian Smith, Negro, of Reiter street, who was convicted last week on five charges of entering buildings and stealing money, clothes and jewels.

She was sentenced by Visiting Judge R. L. Hildebrand, who also ordered that after completing this terms the woman must serve seven years more of a three to ten-year sentence on which she had been paroled two years ago.

Appreciation Day Set By Monessen

BRAIN HYGIENE TALKS LISTED

Problems of mental hygiene and the care of the mentally ill will be explained tomorrow to members of the Pittsburgh League of Nursing Education, in co-operation with the state organization, in a program at St. Francis Nursing School Auditorium.

Dr. Harry M. Little, director of the Child Guidance Center, Pittsburgh, will speak on "Safeguarding the Child," and Dr. Carl H. Henninger, neuro-psychiatrist at St. Francis and Children's Hospitals, has selected as his topic, "Our Approach to the Mentally Retarded and Abnormal Child."

Dr. George J. Wright, psychiatrist at St. Francis and Mercy Hospitals and Sisters Dolores Mary and M. Cordia, St. Francis supervisors, are other scheduled speakers. The program will open at 1 p. m. and close at 5 p. m.

RATTLE WENDEL 'SKELETON' IN NEW CLAIM

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, May 22.—Skeletons rattled in the musty old Wendel mansion on Fifth avenue today as affidavits describing a Eugene O'Neill "Mourning Becomes Electra" plot in real life were filed to support the claim of Thomas Patrick Morris, penniless Brooklyn house painter, to the $23,000,000 Wendel estate.

The affidavits, sworn to by a man and two women, declared Morris was the son of John Gottlieb Wendel—not by a Mary Ellen Devine, as he claimed before being sentenced to 33 months' imprisonment as an imposter—but by Wendel's sister, Mary Ellen Wendel.

The three new witnesses are Mr. and Mrs. Herbert C. Miller, of Westminster, Md., and Mrs. Vernon Frock, of Camp Hill, Pa. The two women are sisters and claim to be third cousins of the Wendels. They said their father, Lewis James Little, herb doctor and obstretician of the rural hill country, delivered the offspring in the gloomy New York mansion.

SWORN TO SECRECY

Sworn to secrecy, he told only his daughters and son-in-law, Miller, according to the claim. He died in 1914. Mary Ellen Wendel, surviving all other members of her immediate family, died September 26, 1932.

At his trial, Morris, said to bear a striking resemblance to John Gottlieb Wendel, admitted he never had been certain who he was or how he got the name of Morris. The only existence of the "Mary Ellen Devine" he claimed was his mother was the certificate of an alleged marriage of John G. Wendell and Mary Ellen Devine in New York, June 11, 1876. This certificate was branded by the prosecution as spurious.

Mrs. Miller in her affidavit swore that just before her father died he told her of "the awful sin of John and Mary Wendel."

'FAMILY SKELETON'

Her father told her, she said, that if the story became known John Wendel would have been arrested. He told her also, she continued, that John Wendel forged the "Bible certificate" and obtained a false marriage certificate.

In his affidavit, Mrs. Miller's husband said he recalled many of the statements cited by his wife. He said his father-in-law often called the family around the table and told them of "the horrible family secret."

Mrs. Frock told substantially the same story about a baby, and added that "Morris was that baby." The baby, she said, was kept in an attic of the Fifth avenue home and then sent to Scotland to be kept on $2.50 a week.

All three said that lack of money prevented them from coming forward with their story during the Morris trial some time ago.

Boy, 2, Spreads Havoc by Fall Of 30 Feet

PHILADELPHIA, May 22.—(AP.)—Francis McGuire, 2, leaned too far out the third floor window of his home and fell 30 feet, suffering a slight concussion of the brain. In addition:

An awning through which he plunged was wrecked.

Mrs. May Mitchell, who ran to his aid, fainted twice and had to be taken to a doctor.

Francis' mother, Mrs. Mary McGuire, is being treated for shock.

Physicians said the awning and the sign broke Francis' fall.

NAZIS MOBBED; JAIL HAVEN

International News Service.

IRVINGTON, N. J., May 22.—Three hundred avowed Hitlerites were held in jail for their own protection today as an aftermath of bloody riots between Nazi and anti-Nazi sympathizers.

Dozens were injured and others arrested as reserve police squads from Newark and this city battled with tear gas bombs and night sticks to quell disorder which raged for several hours.

The 300 Hitlerites had been attending a meeting sponsored by the Friends of the New Germany and were taken to police headquarters in heavily guarded patrol wagons. Police planned to keep them under guard until some time today, when all possibility of their being set upon again had passed.

When it was learned that the Friends of the New Germany were to hold their meeting a large crowd of anti-Nazi sympathizers collected outside the hall. When the first group of uniformed men attempted to enter the auditodium they were set upon.

PRISONCROESUS HAS REUNION WITH WIVES

By WALLACE X. RAWLES
International News Service.

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., May 22.—High drama was written today in a meeting between two women, and a man who made $3,000,000 while serving nine years behind prison bars for manslaughter.

The women were Mrs. Davis No. 1 and Mrs. Davis No. 2.

Davis is making a comeback in business on the wings of animal tendons from which he manufactures sinew tennis racquet strings he claims are the fastest in the world.

HIT WITH NO. 2

The first Mrs. Davis, the Countess Henrietta R. Davis-Tuszynski, today was the guest of Davis and his second wife in Beverly Hills. Said the first Mrs. Davis:

"I was divorced Saturday in Reno from my second husband. Charles wired me to come and see his new tennis string factory and to meet his wife before returning to the East.

The present Mrs. Davis accompanied her husband while he showed his former wife around his two plants here, and said:

"I think she's charming. I'm awfully glad Charley asked her to visit us."

'ALL FOR BEST'

Davis declared of the first Mrs. Davis:

"I have the most respectful regard for her. I am only sorry that her marriage to Count Cornelius Tuszynski didn't result more happily.

"I look back on my difficult decade of imprisonment and litigation as a great experience and realize that as to final results everything happened for the best.

"My marriage to the present Mrs. Davis, four years ago, has resulted in great happiness and contentment."

THRILLING CAREER

Davis' career has been thrilling—marked by hard early struggle—and by tragedy, love and success. He said:

"In 1921 I was convicted for manslaughter brought about by trying to eject from my office an abusive intruder who tried to kill me."

The "Catch of the Town" is none too Good . . for the Girl with a CAMAY COMPLEXION

"And he said he liked my outfit, and I think he liked my eyes and I hope he liked my skin."

Tailored Suit, Courtesy Milgrim's, Inc., N. Y.

Her lovely skin sets fire to his heart and brings words of love to his lips.

It's visible in your mirror—it's evident when you touch your cheek—that a clearer, softer skin makes you a more attractive woman.

For with Camay, the Soap of Beautiful Women, dull, dingy skin acquires new freshness. Your skin looks better within a few weeks. Your whole appearance is improved by the use of Camay on your face.

A CAMAY COMPLEXION AND ANOTHER BEAUTY CONTEST WON!

Beauty Contests of the bathing-girl kind may seem theatrical and undignified to a lot of women.

But even the most modest woman, of the most modest tastes, cannot escape life's daily Beauty Contest. Her beauty is judged whenever someone glances at her face, takes note of her skin. More the reason, then, for acquiring a lovely Camay Complexion. It's one charm that is always admired and praised.

"I'd be just commonplace looking, if it weren't for my soft, delicate complexion," said a buyer for a big department store. "Naturally I give my skin the best care. I use Camay because it's so mild."

Try Camay—and convince yourself! Fact is, you'll regret it if you don't. For hundreds of thousands of good-looking women have discovered that Camay is a wonderful help to feminine beauty!

PIRATES ELATED AS FRENCH FINALLY GOES ROUTE

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

French May Repeat 1932. Fine Streak After Slump. Poor Spring for Hurlers. Lary's Loss of Spirit. Turf Earnings to Grow. McLarnin Dislikes Ring.

All the more so because his first complete game of the season in seven starts was pitched in the Phils' watch-charm park, the toughest spot in the majors for a hurler, Pirate followers are encouraged to believe that Larry French is at last in stride and may be depended on in the future for slabwork consistently up to his old standards. It spells a heavy loss to a club when its ace pitcher isn't able to go the route until five weeks of the season have elapsed, the first time French has been so late in turning in a complete game since he joined the Bucs in 1929, but there is comfort in the possibility that yesterday's success may mean the southpaw is now ready to make up for his slow start.

Larry French

French may do just that, if history repeats. His poorest previous beginning here was in 1932, when his first 10 games found him winning only two while losing eight. But Larry turned right in to win seven of his next eight games, and 16 out of 24 for the remainder of the season. It will help a lot if another streak of that kind follows the left-hander's lame start of 1934. French's value to the Bucs lies not only in the games he wins himself, but extends to an uplifting influence on the rest of the staff when he is in top form.

TOUGH SPRING FOR MANY STAR PITCHERS

It is doubtful if any previous spring ever brought woe to so many headline pitchers in the major leagues as did that of 1934. You could win a couple of pennants with a slab staff made up of the established aces who have been practically useless, either because they were put out of commission altogether by injury or illness, or were unable to attain their normal effectiveness. What manager wouldn't go into ecstacies over a mound corps composed of Lefty Grove, Bud Parmelee, Larry French, Wes Ferrell, Schoolboy Rowe, Alvin Crowder, Watson Clark, Ted Lyons, Ben Cantwell, Si Johnson, Bill Walker, and Bob Brown? Yet that array of stars, worth several fortunes normally in the baseball market, has delivered little or nothing.

Grove, the victim of a sore arm, didn't pitch a full game until almost five weeks had gone. Parmelee will be out for two months more or longer as the result of an operation. As the result of a salary kick, Ferrell never even reported. Ailing pitching wings left Clark, Rowe and Brown unserviceable. Walker is on the shelf with a broken arm, hit by a batted ball. Crowder appears to have worn out his arm pitching the Senators to a pennant last year. Lyons can't get going in any semblance of his true stride. Cantwell didn't win a game until Sunday, and Johnson has scored only two victories against five defeats.

LARY HURT BY PURCHASE OF CROSETTI

Sometimes a ball player with plenty of mechanical ability is rendered almost worthless because of something that involves a blow to his spirit. In that connection, baseball men are wondering whether the transfer of Lyn Lary from the Yankees to the Red Sox will have the effect of pulling that infielder out of the slough of despondency and putting him back on his feet. For Lary, with the Yankees, was an exhibit of loss of spirit, and his slump is said to have been due entirely to the purchase of another pastimer playing the same position.

Lyn Lary

Lary played bang-up ball for the Yanks in 1929-30-31. He hit .309 the first year, .289 the second and .280 the third. But when the New York club paid $75,000 for Frank Crosetti and brought him up in 1932, Lary suffered a blow to his morale from which he has yet to recover. The action of his employers in paying so much money for another shortstop was a jolt to either Lyn's pride or his self-confidence, and whether it was because he quit on himself or resented the coming of Crosetti the fact remains that he slumped to .232 in 1932 and to .220 last year.

SLOANE HORSES MAY DOUBLE WINNINGS

Turfmen are speculating as to the amount of money likely to be won by Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane's horses for their owner this year if the luck of the Brookmeade stable continues. Up to date, Mrs. Sloane's winnings for 1933 and 1934 amount to $232,605, and the consensus of opinion is that, barring illness and accident, her thoroughbreds will double that sum before the close of the season. For the stable includes potential winners of all the rich stakes yet to be decided, including the American Derby, Withers, Belmont, American Classic, Detroit Derby, Hopeful, Futurity and Travers.

In a little more than one year, Mrs. Sloane has won 19 important stakes. This means in particular she has enjoyed greater success than any other sportswoman in the history of American racing. This year only six stakes have been run, and the owner of the Brookmeade stable has made a clean sweep of them, taking the Florida Derby with Time Clock, the Chesapeake and Kentucky Derby with Cavalcade, the Wood Memorial and Preakness with High Quest, and the Toboggan with Okapi.

FIGHTING HAS NO APPEAL FOR M'LARNIN

You would never guess from his actions in the ring or from the way he goes about his training work that Jimmy McLarnin doesn't like to fight, but the welterweight champion himself declares he will be glad when the time comes to hang up his gloves. And Pop Foster, his manager and closer to him than anybody else, gives the assurance that Jimmy means every word of it. Baby Face doesn't say the Barney Ross fight next Monday will be his last if he is defeated, but he does serve notice that he will quit the ring as soon as the big money stops coming in to him.

Pop Foster

McLarnin explains that fighting with him is wholly and solely a business. He grants that boxing is a fine form of exercise, and he means to continue using it for that purpose after he retires from competition. He admits also that the game has been kind to him in a financial way, and he is more than grateful for that, and has no regrets for his choice of a career. But Jimmy repeats that he is not fond of fighting, or of the hard work and self-denial it requires, and the minute the big money ceases he intends to drop out, rather than be slapped around for several years after passing his peak. Jimmy is in a position to make good his words, as he has two annuities, interests in several sound businesses, owns a lot of real estate, and altogether is well fixed for the rainy days.

Class and experience scored again in the 10-round main bout of the opening show of the outdoor boxing season at Hickey Park, Millvale, last night, and, as a result, Dominic Mancini, local lightweight prospect, today is a wiser, if not a somewhat disillusioned, young man.

Things have been going along very well for Dominic in his recent bouts, and both he and his manager, Gus Camp, permitted themselves to become overly enthusiastic. They almost got a match with Barney Ross, the lightweight champion, in Louisville, and sought to attach themselves to Jimmy McLarnin's camp, and looked at the future through rose-colored glasses.

RUDE AWAKENING

The awakening was a rude one when Dominic last night tried to continue his march against Harry Dublinsky, tall, rangy, ghost-like, seasoned Chicagoan, who has beaten the best.

In the first round, Dominic stormed about the ring throwing left hooks to the body and rights to the head as Dublinsky broke ground and sized him up.

In the early part of the second round, it was the same story. Then Dublinsky went to work and from there on in it was strictly a Dublinsky fight. Harry was too fast on his feet and too rapid with his hands. He fairly sprayed punches all over his inexperienced foe, hitting him at will and bewildering him. In the last two rounds, in answer to the pleas of some ringside fans, he cut down the zip in his punches and just slapped his way through to the final bell, toying with his opponent.

DUKELSKY-HOLT DRAW

Mancini wasn't disgraced in the fight. He simply was outclassed by a fellow who has been beaten by very few opponents. He still

NEW LEAGUE'S PLAYING CARD COMPLETED

The complete schedule for the Pennsylvania State Baseball Association will be forthcoming on Thursday, according to Elmer Daily, president of the circuit. Daily announced that the teams will play 110 games this year, completing the schedule Labor Day.

Plans already are under way toward enlarging the league next year, with Canonsburg certain to be granted a franchise and Connellsville, Uniontown, Scottdale, Wilkinsburg, Braddock and Donora under consideration.

In last evening's tussles, McKeesport bowed to Jeannette at Jeannette, 11 to 4, and Washington trimmed Monessen by the same count at Monessen. Greensburg and Charleroi battled to a 9-9 deadlock at Charleroi.

REDS GET POOL, REPORT

OAKLAND, Cal., May 22.—(INS.)—Harlan Pool, heavy-hitting right fielder of the Oakland Club of the Pacific Coast League, was reported sold today to the Cincinnati Reds. Owners of the Oakland Club refused to deny the report of the deal, said to involve an unnamed sum in cash and two players. Pool's batting average has been .350.

Shaw, W.-J. Star, In Grave Condition

WASHINGTON, Pa., May 22.—Grave concern was felt for Joe Shaw, Wash-Jeff athlete, who is suffering from double pneumonia at his home here. He was taken ill last Tuesday.

FIGHT RESULTS

At Hickey Park, Millvale—Harry Dublinsky defeated Dominic Mancini, 10 rounds; Solly Dukelsky and Billy Holt drew (referee's decision), 8 rounds; Jack Dalcherone won by technical knockout over Steve Levine, 3 rounds; Ralph Glarry and Al Farone drew, 5 rounds; Johnny Birek defeated Ray Eberle, 5 rounds.

At Milwaukee—Tait Littman defeated Frankie Battaglia, 10 rounds.

At Miami, Fla.—Reds Barry defeated Tony Cancella, 10 rounds; Russell Gonzales won by a technical knockout over Sammy Tisch; Cari Guggino defeated Clever Moro, 8 rounds; Jimmy Reed defeated Joe Bernoya, 8 rounds.

HARRY DUBLINSKY

Mancini, local lightweight boxer, on the offensive during the first round of his battle with Chicago star, featuring the opening of the outdoor boxing season at Hickey Park, Millvale, last night. Beginning with the second round, Dublinsky's experience gave him a clear margin of victory in the fast-fought 10-round encounter. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

PHILADELPHIA, May 22.—There was a vast improvement in the mood of the Pirates today as compared with their feelings of yesterday. The Gibson Clan felt keenly their one-sided defeat of the Sabbath, but they gave the Phils a receipt for that licking yesterday in the form of an 11-4 setback.

The Pittsburghers, moreover, were jubilant inasmuch as Larry French had really gone the limit in a ball game. The fighting southpaw chose the hardest park of the circuit in which to travel the full route, but French's feat did not surprise his mates, who knew his temper regarding his previous failures.

ARKY, COOKIE STAR

The hitting of Arky Vaughan and Cookie Lavagetto played a big part in the Pittsburgh success of yesterday. The two youngsters who patrol the shortstop-second-base area were in a distinctive mood for slugging the ball. Including in their slugging foray were two homers.

The Bucs moved to win the ball game at the outset when they nicked Frank Pearce for four hits and three runs. Cookie's double, coming with the bases loaded, accounted for two of the markers.

LINDY'S DOUBLE TIMELY

The Pirates added two more runs to the string in the sixth when Austin Moore uncorked a wild throw on L. Waner's bounder. One run went over on the misplay and Lindstrom's double tallied the other. Lavagetto's double and Thevenow's single of the seventh provided another Pittsburgh run.

The Buccos called it a day after batting in the eighth when they copped two more markers. Singles by Lindstrom and Vaughan, a double by Suhr and Lavagetto's fly picked up these counters.

The Quakers scored a single tally in the third and they annexed two more in the fifth. The home boys managed to get another run across in the eighth.

Sweeney Loses To Sammy Angott

WASHINGTON, Pa., May 22.—Sammy Angott, local amateur star, defeated Leo Sweeney, of Pittsburgh A. M. A., featherweight champion, in the feature bout of a boxing show here last night. Other results:

Billy Miller defeated Bobby Cummins, J. Mace defeated Johnny Madio, Emil Josephs defeated Wimpy Wellington, Joe Mattis defeated W. Ford, Frank Synga technically knocked out Eddie Caumo, two rounds; Mushy Boren defeated Guy McCorrell, Plumer Rush technically knocked out Mike Kurek, two rounds; Ben Malone defeated Dave Williams.

Don and Campbell Trail in England

LONDON, May 22.—(AP.)—England's two famous speed drivers, Kaye Don and Sir Malcolm Campbell, had to play second fiddle to lesser known racing car drivers yesterday.

Don's car threw a tire, forcing him out of a 150-mile race, while Campbell was led in by W. E. Harker in a six-mile mountain climb.

GOODMAN, DUNLAP, WESTLAND WIN IN BRITISH AMATEUR

GUS MORELAND BEATEN BY FISCHER

PRESTWICK, Scotland, May 22. — (AP.) — America's golfing Johnnies—Goodman and Fischer—today led the invaders' parade in the British Amateur championship. Goodman, the United States Open champion, defeated W. M. Robb, of Moseley, 5 and 4, while Fischer conquered Gus Moreland, a compatriot, 3 and 2.

Goodman, the betting-odds favorite, played sound, but not spectacular golf and won much as he pleased against Robb in their first round match, which was postponed from yesterday owing to the size of the field. The Omaha youngster, who negotiated the first nine holes in 37 to establish a three-hole lead, will not play his second round match until tomorrow. If he gains the third round he will be forced to engage in another match in the afternoon in order to catch up with the field.

FISCHER VICTOR

Fischer, the tall and spare golfing son of a Cincinnati letter carrier, closed out his second-round match with Moreland on the sixteenth green. The two young members of the 1934 American Walker Cup team battled on even terms for the first nine holes, Fischer gaining a lead of one hole at the second and Moreland erasing it with a win at the eighth. The Ohioan re-established his lead at the twelfth and thereafter kept steadily adding to it. He finished with two successive birdies.

Jack McLean, 23-year-old Scotch star and the second betting choice, defeated H. M. Gow, of Prestwick, by 3 and 2 and qualified to meet Fischer in the third round.

Despite the unique experience of having to play with half a ball at the sixth hole, Jesse Guilford, of Boston, a former American amateur titleholder, advanced to the third round at the expense of Lister Hartley, of Kent, a member of the 1932 British Walker Cup squad. The big Bostonian won, 4 and 3.

WESTLAND, DUNLAP WIN

After getting off to a shaky start and playing spotty golf for the first nine, Jack Westland, Chicago broker, settled down on the inward holes and defeated Col. A. W. Tait, of St. Andrews, 4 and 3.

George Terry Dunlap, Jr., American amateur champion, had to struggle to score a one-up victory over a fellow countryman, A. W. Breault, of Detroit.

Dunlap's second round victory over Breault was the second close shave the New Yorker has had in two days. In the first round against G. P. Packenham Walsh, of Calcutta, Dunlap came back after being 5 down at the thirteenth to win, 1 up, at the twenty-second.

Breault remained calm throughout the ding-dong match despite the fact a stampeding crowd of 5,000 Scots crowded behind the players on the last four holes.

P. A. Valentine, of New York, was defeated by E. W. Layton, of Walton Heath, 6 and 4.

But brother, what a story!

Excursion trains out of Pittsburgh and bound for Cleveland carried many a baseball fan Sunday. The magnet was Babe Ruth, who held forth at the home of the Cleveland Indians. Youngstown fans in droves made the trip just to see the Bambino. The overflow crowd swarmed on the playing field.

Billy Evans, general manager of the Indians, announced several days in advance that the reserved seats for the game were all sold for the Sunday game featuring Babe.

To many it seems strange that Babe can pack 'em in whether it be a championship struggle or an exhibition contest. When the sport was at its lowest ebb in Pittsburgh one year ago, Babe came to town on a week day and was greeted by 10,000. With better conditions prevailing here, the Dodgers last week drew 800 to the Oakland Orchard.

MICHIGAN TEAM LEADS PLAY

CHICAGO, May 22. — (AP.) — Charles Kocsis, Michigan sophomore, and a big wind all but blew the Big Ten golf championship struggle to bits at Kildeer Country Club yesterday.

As the wind blew the other scores out of par's range, the hard-driving Polish boy from Michigan put together a pair of the smartest rounds of golf in the history of the water-spliced course along Chicago's north suburban course. He galloped far ahead of his rivals with a brilliant 66 on his first round and then drilled back in the afternoon with a par breaking 70, a grand total of 136 blows for 36 holes and a performance that beat perfect figures by six shots.

Kocsis' rounds sent him seven shots in front of his nearest rival and teammate, Woodrow Malloy, in the 72-hole medal-play struggle for the crown.

By TOM BIRKS

Owing to the threatening weather, the Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania team matches, scheduled for today at Westmoreland and Butler, were postponed. Section I teams were to have met at Butler and Section II at Westmoreland.

The intercollegiate program ends two matches scheduled. The University of Pittsburgh aggregation is at Nemacolin to play Wash-Jeff. Capt. Claude McKee and his Panthers appear to be in for a tough afternoon.

The Dukkes, who tried yesterday to round up a team to meet Kiski and failed, are playing West Virginia at Oakmont.

With the long fairways of the Merion Cricket Club in mind, Vince Eldred and Sam Parks opposed Ted Luther and Emil Loeffler in a four-ball, best-ball match over the Oakmont Country Club links yesterday and the end of a hectic battle found Eldred and Parks the victors, 2 up.

The pros were tuning up for the national open grind at Merion, scheduled for the first week in June.

REESE MARKS WINS

Even golf was played on the outgoing nine. Eldred, the West Penn open champion, from the Highland Country Club, was hot on the last nine, shooting 33, two shots under par.

Reese Marks, a boy that learned the rudiments of the golf game over the Highland Country Club course, but later transferred his affiliations to Wildwood, stopped off at his old stamping grounds yesterday long enough to win the second caddie masters tourney of the season. He shot a 38-40—78 to lead the field by one shot. Johnny Johnstone, of Stanton Heights, was one shot behind, while Mike Swisdeck, of the Edgewood, and Frank Benick, of Castle Shannon, shot 80's to share third money, and also grab the kickers handicap.

TO SEEK FUNDS

At a meeting held at the Fort Pitt Hotel last night, a committee was appointed by the general committee in charge of the National Public Links golf tourney, slated for the South Park course July 30 to August 4, to solicit donations to finance the event.

Walter Heimert, Al McBride, L. A. Schaefer, William Fox, Louis Zierheller, Dr. H. E. Cantor, Walter Loeffler, Fred Robinson, Walter Phillips, Robert G. Gumbert and Walter Mesing were named on the committee.

The qualifying round to select the local entries in the tourney will be held at South Park July 10.

Warren Brown scored a 77 to win the Traffic and Transportation Association of Pittsburgh tournament at the Chartiers Heights Country Club.

Dawson Clark made a hole in one on the 151-yard No. 17 at South Park yesterday.

MEMORY TEST

TODAY'S QUESTIONS

How good is your memory of sports events, heroes and dates? Can you answer these questions?

2—What is the longest forward pass play on record?
3—Name the first P. G. A. golf champion.
4—Where was the first national public parks golf tournament held and who was the winner?
5—What was the largest purse ever won by a horse in a single race?

remains a good prospect, but he will have to be nursed along a bit and developed naturally. He can't expect to beat the Barney Rosses, Harry Dublinskys, Tony Herreras and Wesley Rameys over night.

A good-sized crowd turned out for Promoter Bus Vogel's initial offering and saw a fine action card. The main bout, while one-sided, was fast and interesting for the contrast it offered.

Solly Dukelsky, Chicago middleweight stablemate of Dublinsky, shaded Billy Holt, of Homewood, in the eight-round semi-final, but the judges disagreed, one voting for Dukelsky and the other for a draw, and the referee's decision also was for a draw. Dukelsky's better work inside, which made Billy hold on, won him the edge.

DALCHERONE SCORE KAYO

Referee Al Grayber had to stop the Jack Dalcherone-Steve Levine (formerly Levandowski) bout in the third round to save Levine from further punishment. It was Levine's professional debut. Ralph Gizzy and Al Farone fought to a bristling draw in the second five-rounder, and Johnny Birek, subbing for Teddy Movan, who had an infected foot, bested Ray Eberle in the opener.

Next week's show will feature Solly Dukelsky against Anson Green and Mike Barto against Harry Weekly in two 10-round bouts.

NETTERS CARD EXHIBITION CONTESTS

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Greensburg and Rochester, Pa., are listed as scenes of the first pair of exhibition net matches of the district outdoor season. The Greensburg affair has been fixed for next Sunday afternoon, with the Rochester engagement on the bill for Friday, June 1.

Local varsity racqueters are idle today, but will see general action tomorrow, when Carnegie Tech will conclude its campaign by entertaining Grove City, Pitt will hazard its unblemished tri-state record in fracas with Wash-Jeff at Little Washington, and the Dukes will strive to attain in invasion of Waynesburg their second victory of the season.

Pitt, already in possession of the crown, wound up the tri-cornered local college premiership chase yesterday by downing Duquesne, 7-2, on the Bluff. The Pitt Freshmen beat the Dukes' Yearlings, 7-0. The varsity summary:

VARSITY MATCH

Honus Says:

By HONUS WAGNER
Former Star, Now Coach of the Pirates.

To the Sports Editor:

I notice the Society of Friends is glad Dillinger isn't a Quaker. Now, I don't blame them for feeling that way, but, even if he was, I don't think it would hurt good Quakers. Certainly nobody who is fair can blame a whole church, no matter which one it is, if a person who was born in that church goes wrong. There are fine people in all churches. Anyway, I think it is true that a person who goes to the bad certainly isn't being a real member of any church when he commits crimes, because if he was a real follower of any church he wouldn't be a criminal. Let's treat all criminals as individuals and not brand any church just because he happens to be born into that church.

Perry Easy Winner Over Andre Merlin

PARIS, May 22.—(AP.)—Fred Perry, apparently smarting under the defeat administered yesterday by Christian Boussus, today turned on Andre Merlin, Boussus' French Davis Cup teammate, and pounded out a 6-0, 9-7 victory in the French-English annual tennis series at Stade Roland Garros.

H. W. (Bunny) Austin added another point for England with a 6-4, 6-1 victory over Marcel Bernard, and C. R. D. Tuckey won from Jacques Brugnon, 6-3, 3-6, 6-2.

R. Rodel, of France, defeated H. G. N. Cooper, England, 6-0, 6-3.

SCHOOL NINES PLAY TODAY

Although both the sectional leaders, Westinghouse and Oliver, are enjoying an off day as far as City Scholastic League baseball is concerned, the remainder of the league will attempt to gain some ground on the leaders.

In Section I, Schenley takes on Peabody and in Section II, Langley meets Carrick at Carrick and South Hills tackles Allegheny Vocational on the North Side.

The Junior League also has a full card, Gladstone meeting Arsenal, Washington taking on Baxter, Latimer facing Herron Hill and Knoxville engaging Prospect.

Crafton clinched the Section II title in the W. P. I. A. L. yesterday, nosing out South Fayette, 5 to 3, in a well-played game. Edgewood won over Wilkinsburg by a count of 8 to 4 as Garbark limited Wilkinsburg to six scattered hits and fanned 13. Trinity won over Avella, 9 to 2.

Schenley's track and field squad defeated Westinghouse, 70 to 65 in a dual meet yesterday, while Bellevue won over Aspinwall, 70 to 43.

BOXERS SUSPENDED

LOS ANGELES, May 22.—(AP.)—Frankie Wallace, Cleveland, and Johnny Pena, New York, were given 60-day suspensions by Harry W. Marth, chairman of the State Athletic Commission, on the grounds they did not give their best efforts in a 10-round featherweight bout at Hollywood last Friday.

YANKEES STRIKE TROUBLE IN WEST

INDIANS GAIN IN RACE FOR LOOP LEAD

Associated Press.

All but invincible in their own bailiwick on the banks of the Harlem, the New York Yankees have met with a warmer welcome on their first trip into the West than they had bargained for.

The collapse of Joe McCarthy's pitching staff was further emphasized yesterday when the Cleveland Indians hammered George Uhle out of the box in less than two innings, shelled his successor, Russ Van Atta, joyously thereafter, and handed the Yanks their fourth defeat in five games in the West, 9-5. More to the point, the Indians, in second place, shaved the losers' American League lead to two and a half games.

UHLE CHASED

Once a Cleveland pitching idol, Uhle weathered a three run attack, climaxed by Earl Averill's home run with two on, in the first inning, but went to the showers with only one down in the second after the Indians had pushed over two more counters. Van Atta was freely peppered the rest of the way, Averill solving him for a single that drove in one of the two runs the Indians scored in the fourth, and for his second homer of the game and fifth of the season in the sixth.

Manager Mickey Cochrane's single with the bases filled in the ninth gave Detroit a 6-5 decision over Washington and strengthened the Tigers' grip on third place. Three home runs, including Jimmy Foxx's eighth, paved the way for Philadelphia's 7-3 triumph over the St. Louis Browns, who thereby dropped from fifth to seventh place, the Athletics moving up to the sixth rung. The Boston Red Sox gained fifth place with a 13-10 victory over the Chicago White Sox in 10 innings.

BUCS TAKE SECOND

Developments in the National League were marked by the return to second place of the Pittsburgh Pirates after they had yielded that post for one day to the St. Louis Cardinals. Arky Vaughan contributed a home run, double and two singles to Pittsburgh's 17-hit attack which netted an 11-4 decision over the Phillies. Larry French, Pirate southpaw ace, went the route for the first time this season.

The Cardinals, meanwhile, dropped a 5-2 verdict to the New York Giants as Joe Bowman pitched effective ball after a shaky start. Summoned for starting duty after Fred Fitzsimmons had been injured by a flying bat during pre-game practice, Bowman was nicked for two runs and five hits in the first three frames, but blanked the Cardinals with three hits the rest of the way.

The Chicago Cubs remained in first place by winning a 10-9 victory over Brooklyn in a game that lasted three hours and 20 minutes. The Boston-Cincinnati duel was rained out.

Believe It Or Not (Reg. by U. S. Patent Office) By Ripley

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE PERENNIAL SECRETARY—An illustrious family in the history of the state of Connecticut is that of the Wyllys, three generations of whom occupied the office of Secretary of State for a period of 97 years in succession. George Wyllys (1710-1796), grandson of a Governor of Connecticut, was chosen Secretary of State of Connecticut during the illness of his father, Hezekiah, from 1730 to 1734. After the latter's death, in 1734, he was elected to the same office and continued to be elected annually until his death in 1796. His father had held the same office from 1712 to 1730. George's son, Samuel, continued the family tradition by holding the office from 1796 to 1809, making 97 years of uninterrupted succession in which three generations of the same family have held that office. STEEPLE THAT POINTS TO HEAVEN—In Port Gibson, Miss., there is an old church which has a steeple in the shape of a great hand with one finger pointing directly skyward. The huge hand is nine feet high. The church, of Presbyterian denomination, was constructed in 1859 and the hand at that time was made of wood. A few years ago, the wooden hand was replaced with one made of sheet iron, which is kept brightly colored with aluminum paint to make it glisten in the sunlight. It is indeed a delightful and consoling signpost to the faithful. PERCENTAGE OF TIN IN A TIN CAN—Only 1½ percent of a "tin" can is really tin; the other 98½ per cent is iron. Tin really is a less abundant element than many of those less familiar to the average person and usually is ranked with the scarce or rare elements such as cerium, yttrium, beryllium and vanadium. The surface of the rolled iron in a "tin" can is very lightly coated with tin.

STOCKS WAIT WHITE HOUSE SILVER NOTE

NEW YORK, May 22.—(AP.)—Stocks shuffled about in a moderately irregular manner today pending publication of the President's message to Congress on silver legislation.

While speculative circles anxiously awaited details of the forthcoming note, the impression in Wall street was that it would not be of a particularly inflationary nature and probably would do little more than reiterate the Chief Executive's ideas on the purchase of present holdings at about 50 cents an ounce, the placing of a substantial tax on profits and the mapping out of further steps toward international co-operation.

There was some selling of the metal shares. United States Smelting, American Smelting, Howe Sound and Cerro de Pasco were off 1 to around 2 points at one time. Silver futures were just about steady and the bar metal was unchanged at 45⅛ cents an ounce.

Grains showed signs of improvement, with wheat getting up about 1 cent a bushel before relaxing under realizing. Cotton was a little better. Bonds were mildly mixed. The European gold currencies improved in terms of the dollar.

Trading was still dull. Some of the dairy issues advanced on reports of higher prices for produce. A firm tone was shown by American Telephone, Western Union, Du Pont, Borden, Corn Products, Curtiss-Wright, Armour, Santa Fe, General Foods and Postal preferred. United States Steel lost a point and General Motors, Chrysler, Case, Consolidated Gas, American Commercial Alcohol and Bethlehem Steel were down fractionally to around a point or more.

Declines in the production and sales of automobiles recently have been attributed partly to code difficulties as well as seasonal considerations. Labor difficulties were also said to have been a factor. Production of motor cars last week was estimated at 75,550, a drop of 3,755 from the preceding week, but an increase of some 35 per cent over the corresponding period of last year.

Followers of the utilities were forecasting some recession in the present electric power output. Utility companies in the drought area were said to be experiencing increasing costs and lower hydro-electric production as a result of dry weather and low streams.

Coincident with the administration's silver recommendations, it was announced that the tender yesterday of 1,225,000 ounces of silver for delivery against May contracts brought the total tenders against this month to 36,125,000 ounces, a new high record for the Commodity Exchange, Inc., and its predecessor market. The previous record was 35,500,000 ounces tendered against December contracts. Prior to last year the high mark was 12,100,000 ounces delivered in December, 1932.

WHEAT EDGES UP FROM LOW

CHICAGO, May 22.—Cooler weather and partial relief from drought served to make grain prices average lower early today. For the time being, trade lacked volume.

Opening unchanged to ⅜ down, July 88¼-½, wheat later scored some advance. Corn started unchanged to ⅜ off, and subsequently altered little.

Get Back To Normal Life

By B. C. FORBES

YEARNING TO return to something approaching normal life, normal conditions, normal legislation is not confined to the East, but is beginning to appear throughout the whole continent.

Mr. Forbes

Washington tries to create the impression that criticism comes almost solely from towering corporation heads, bankers and other "malefactors of great wealth."

Read this outspoken declaration made by a Western business man, George I. Cochran, president of a life insurance company, when I ran across him yesterday in New York:

"As a lawyer, I have been much interested as well as amused by the glib way in which judges have decided, because an emergency is supposed to exist, that therefore the Constitution of the United States—which they have sworn to support—is suspended.

"This simply means that when any unusual conditions arise or are supposed to exist, we have a dictatorship.

"Unemployment is the problem of our age, and the sooner nature is allowed to take its course the sooner will most people who wish to work find plenty to do. Some people urge that half the unemployed be hired by the government to try to find work for the other half—all to be sustained by the thrifty.

"Our so-called high standard of living is at the base of our depression. We can't pay excessive wages and have any foreign trade or any market for our farm products abroad.

"I think that within a reasonable time matters will adjust themselves, that we all will be happy again, that our good old American customs and ways of living will reassert themselves, that the Constitution will again be respected, and that, instead of being ruled and enslaved by a horde of amateurish, inefficient officeholders and taxeaters, we will be managing our own businesses and living our own lives unhampered by intricate laws which only increase the cost and difficulty of life and would end eventually in the worst form of national slavery."

THIS CHEERING:

"All our plants are running to capacity and shipments for the last 12 months have been greater than in any other year in the long history of our business."

I get that from Victor Allen, of Buford, Ga., whose concern sprang from an industry founded before the Civil War, to tan leather and make crude shoes and harness for the immediate vicinity. Today it employs 2,200 operators, manufactures 5,800 pairs of shoes daily and also 1,800 horse collars a day, as well as $2,500,000 of harness a year. It manufactures one-third of all the leather harness and one-third of all the riding saddles made in the United States. It still is managed by direct descendents of the founder.

"Our plant has operated continuously all during the depression and 99 per cent of the employes, from the president down, are natives of Georgia. There has been no reduction in wages, except one 10 per cent cut in 1932. All our employes, except about 150 in the tannery department (who receive the same wages) are whites.

"All our plants operate under NRA."

The horse has not passed entirely from the American scene. As a matter of fact, since depression struck agriculture, the horse has been coming back and the tractor going back.

BUSINESS on the New York Stock Exchange has come almost to a standstill. This is not the unmixed blessing many politicians imagine. A dead securities market doesn't go hand-in-hand with lively industrial and other activities.

Since Congress began to formulate a law to "regulate" stock speculation and corporations, the market value of American shares has shrivelled some 10 billions, equivalent to over 11,000 tons of gold, or enough to build 2,000,000 homes costing $5,000 each or 10,000,000 thousand-dollar automobiles.

UNTIL CONGRESS scraps, expect hesitation to grip the country.

OIL ALLOWABLE UP FOR JUNE

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(AP.)—Allowable crude oil production for June was set today by Secretary Ickes at 2,549,400 barrels daily, 183,200 barrels more than the April and May figure.

Ickes said the increase was permitted to meet a larger seasonal demand and that the new allowable would be effective June 1 at 7 a. m.

Increases were announced for all states except Illinois, whose allowable will remain unchanged at 12,500 barrels. The largest increase was authorized for Texas, whose allowable was raised 51,600 barrels to 1,032,300.

TULSA, May 22.—Daily average production of crude oil in the United States during the week ended May 19 totaled 2,564,954 barrels, an increase of only 279 barrels over the preceding week, according to the Oil and Gas Journal.

Cotton Crop Shows Slight Variation

WASHINGTON, May 22.—The Department of Agriculture reports the revised 1933 cotton crop for this country totaled 13,047,000 bales of 500 pounds gross weight each, compared with the revised 1932 figure of 13,002,000 bales.

Ginnings from the 1933 crop as reported by the Census Bureau in bales of 500 pounds gross weight totaled 13,047,262. The yield of lint cotton per acre, as revised by the board was 208.5 pounds and the area picked was 29,978,000 acres. The area in cultivation on June 1, 1933, was 40,852,000 acres.

Thermoid Proposal Gets 90% Approval

NEW YORK, May 22.—(AP.)—Holders of more than 90 per cent principal amount of approximately $2,700,000 in 6 per cent notes of the Thermoid Company, which matured February 1, have agreed to a plan for extension of the notes to February 1, 1937, the company said today in a statement issued in answer to a recent action for receivership against the company in Jersey City, N. J.

The receivership complaint was filed in behalf of Paul Salzman, of North Bergen, holder of five $1,000 notes.

R-K-O Had Profit In First Quarter

NEW YORK, May 22.—The receivers of Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation report for the first quarter of 1934, before income taxes, shows consolidated profit of $498,131, after full interest on secured debt but before interest on unsecured debt.

Timken Gets Order From St. Paul Road

CANTON, O., May 22.—The Timken Roller Bearing Company has received an order from the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railroad for bearings and boxes for 50 passenger coaches.

CITIES SERVICE WRITE UPS BARED

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Organized in 1910 by investing about $12,000,000 in three public utilities, Henry L. Doherty's Cities Service Company utilities empire in 1930 had recovered in excess of $100,000,000 in cash of its initial investment in the companies and properties which were consolidated and merged or transferred from one company to another within the system, the Federal Trade Commission was told today.

Examiners of the commission stated this $100,000,000 recovery was "largely as a result" of the concurrent "writeups of the plant and investment accounts of subsidiaries."

REINVESTED CASH

Ramifications of the Doherty-Cities Service for-flung utilities network was bared before the commission in its general investigation of public utilities authorized by a Senate resolution. The examiners' report said:

"The amount so recovered in cash was reinvested in additional securities and properties, thus contributing to the system's growth. Cities Service Company was able to effect ties which were received in part or whole payment, or the cash received in payment, from the acquiring companies for the securities or properties which were transferred to them.

"For the most part, these consolidations and mergers resulted in an increase in securities issues with a consequent write-up in plant and investment, or a refinancing of companies resulting in a greater proportion of outstanding senior securities and a smaller proportion of common stock after the merger than before, all of which permitted Cities Service Company to exeercise the same degree of control over the merged companies and properties with a smaller investment and in some instances without any investment."

EXPANDED FAST

1—Cities Service was organized on September 2, 1910, and its investment in three companies at that time amounted to about $12,000,000.

2—On December 31, 1930, the ledger value of the company's investments exceeded $273,000,000, due to acquisitions and expansions since 1910.

3—By the end of 1930 its investments represented the control of 160 companies, of which 50 were holding, or operating electric and other utilities, 42 were holding or operating natural gas utilities, 54 were holding or operating petroleum companies, and the remainder were operating as realty and construction companies.

COMMON VOTES

"At March 14, 1931, there were outstanding and in the hands of the public 34,172,158 shares of voting capital stocks of Cities Service Company, which were held by 543,306 stockholders. The stock is widely distributed as indicated by the fact that 536,847 stockholders, or 99 per cent of the total, held 20,611,947 shares, or 60 per cent of the total, in share lots of from 1 to 500 shares. All of the capital stocks of Cities Service Company have voting privileges though some classes of the stock have greater voting privileges than others.

"The common stock which constitutes, as to number of shares, over 92 per cent, of 31,687,108 shares, of the total outstanding has but 1-20th of a vote per share which gives the common less votes in total than the remaining 2,485,050 shares of the outstanding voting stock.

Wardman Realty Suit Dismissed

NEW YORK, May 22.—(AP.)—A $12,000,000 accounting suit brought by Emil Nassauer, of New York, against Wardman Real Estate Properties of Washington, D. C., Harry Wardman, the founder, and Hasley, Stuart & Co., bankers, and others for alleged services in refinancing the Wardman companies in 1928, was dismissed by Supreme Court Justice Edward J. McGoldrick yesterday.

Nassauer, a promoter, immediately announced through his counsel, that he will appeal.

Steel Industry to Show Better Earnings

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor

STEEL COMPANIES are expected to report better earnings for the second quarter than they did for the first quarter, but prospects for the third quarter are regarded as dubious.

While demand has started to show a seasonal decline, steel production early in May was at the high point for the year. It appears to be quite certain that production for the present quarter will be considerably greater than in the first three months of the year.

The help from increased output is being partially offset, however, by higher wages and greater costs for materials used by the steel industry. Nevertheless, the expansion in volume has been sufficiently great to permit most companies to show improved results when the statements for the three months ended June 30 are published.

* * *

Many Factors Make Outlook Doubtful

THE AUTOMOBILE industry has provided the principal support for the steel industry so far this year. This industry has passed its peak season for production. Other industries also are reducing their output.

This usually takes place during the summer, but the absence of activity on the part of industries which ordinarily provide steel orders in the latter part of the year makes steel men dubious about prospects for the third quarter.

The fact that many consumers have bought steel in anticipation of future requirements in order to take advantage of prevailing lower prices leads to the belief that there will be a sharp drop in production after June 30, when existing contracts will expire and consumers will start to use their accumulated material.

* * *

Steel Must Change Code

ONE UNCERTAINTY facing steel is found in the probability that more tinkering must be done with the NRA code. In addition there is some possibility that the industry may have more trouble with labor.

Reports from Washington indicate that the administration wants more liberal treatment of labor and objects to some aspects of the industry's system of price fixing. The present steel code will expire on May 31.

The Thin Man

By DASHIELL HAMMETT

Nick Learns Slain Secretary Served Six Months for Working Badger-Game

"Don't I know it." He put a forkful of food in his mouth "Where was I? Oh, yes, about Wynant. He gave up his apartment when he went away, and put his stuff in storage. We been looking through it—the stuff—but ain't found anything yet to show where he went or even what he was working on, which we thought maybe might help.

We didn't have any better luck in his shop on First avenue. It's been locked up, too, since he went away, except that she used to go down there for an hour or two once or twice a week to take care of his mail and things. There's nothing to tell us anything in the mail that's come since she got knocked off. We didn't find anything in her place to help." He smiled at Nora. "I guess this must be pretty dull to you, Mrs. Charles."

"Dull?" She was surprised. "I'm sitting on the edge of my chair."

"Ladies usually like more color," he said, and coughed, "kind of glamour. Anyways, we got nothing to show where he's been, only he phones Macaulay last Friday and says to meet him at two o'clock in the Plaza lobby. Macaulay wasn't in, so he just left the message."

"Macaulay was here," I said, "for lunch."

Not Seen at Plaza

"He told me. Well, Macaulay don't get to the Plaza till nearly three and he don't find Wynant there and Wynant ain't registered there. He tries describing him, with and without a beard, but nobody at the Plaza remembers seeing him. He phones his office, but Wynant ain't called up again. And then he phones Julia Wolf and she tells him she don't even know Wynant's in town, which he figures is a lie, because he had just give her five thousand dollars for Wynant yesterday and figures Wynant's come for it, but he just says all right and hangs up and goes on about his business."

"His business such as what?" I asked.

Guild stopped chewing the piece of roll he had just bitten off. "I guess it wouldn't hurt to know, at that. I'll find out. There didn't seem to be anything pointing at him, so we didn't bother with that, but it don't ever hurt any to know who's got an alibi and who ain't."

I shook my head no at the question he had decided not to ask. "I don't see anything pointing at him, except that he's Wynant's lawyer and probably knows more than he's telling."

"Sure. I understand. Well, that's what people have lawyers for, I guess. Now about the girl: maybe Julia Wolf wasn't her real name at all. We ain't been able to find out for sure yet, but we have found out she wasn't the kind of dame you'd expect him to be trusting to handle all that dough—I mean if he knew about her."

Julia Has 'Record'

"Had a record?"

He wagged his head up and down. "This is elegant stew. A couple of years before she went to work for him she did six months on a badger-game charge out West, in Cleveland, under the name of Rhoda Stewart."

"You suppose Wynant knew that?"

"Search me. Don't look like he'd turned her loose with that dough if he did, but you can't tell. They tell me he was kind of nuts about her, and you know how guys can go. She was running around off and on with this Shep Morelli and his boys too."

"Have you really got anything on him?" I asked.

"Not on this," he said regretfully, "but we wanted him for a couple of other things." He drew his sandy brows together a little. "I wish I knew what sent him here to see you. Of course these junkies are likely to do anything, but I wish I knew."

"I told you all I knew."

"I'm not doubting that," he assured me. He turned to Nora. "I hope you don't think we were too rough with him, but you see you got to—"

Nora smiled and said she understood perfectly and filled his cup with coffee.

"Thank you, ma'am."

"Hop-head."

She looked at me. "Was Morelli—"

"Primed to the ears," I said.

Guild asked: "You going to prosecute him for shooting you?"

Not to Prosecute

"Not unless you need it."

He shook his head. His voice was casual, though there was some curiosity in his eyes. "I guess we got enough on him for a while."

"You were telling me about the girl."

"Yes," he said. "Well, we found out she's been spending a lot of nights away from her apartment—two or three days at a stretch sometimes. Maybe that's when she was meeting Wynant. I don't know. We ain't been able to knock any holes in Morelli's story of not seeing her for three months. What do you make of that?"

"The same thing you do," I replied. "It's just about three months since Wynant went off. Maybe it means something, maybe not."

Nora came in and said Harrison Quinn was on the telephone. He told me he had sold some bonds I was writing off losses on and gave me the prices.

"Have you seen Dorothy Wynant?" I asked.

"Not since I left her in your place, but I'm meeting her at the Palma for cocktails this afternoon. Come to think of it, she told me not to tell you. How about that gold, Nick? You're missing something if you don't get in on it. Those wild men from the West are going to give us some kind of inflation as soon as Congress meets, that's certain, and even if they don't, everybody expects them to. As I told you last week, there's already talk of a pool being—"

Orders Mine Shares

"All right," I said and gave him an order to buy some Dome Mines at 12½.

He remembered then that he had seen something in the newspapers about my having been shot. He was pretty vague about it and paid very little attention to my assurances that I was all right. "I suppose that means no ping-pong for a couple of days," he said with what seemed genuine regret. "Listen: you've got tickets for the opening tonight. If you can't use them I'll be—"

"We're going to use them. Thanks just the same."

He laughed and said goodby.

A waiter was carrying away the table when I returned to the living room. Guild had made himself comfortable on the soft. Nora was telling him: "... have to go away over the Christmas holidays every year because what's left of my family make a fuss over them and if we're home they come to visit us or we have to visit them, and Nick doesn't like it." Asta was licking her paws in a corner.

Telephone Calls

I sat down and said: "We were just about up to the murder, weren't we?"

"Just about." He relaxed on the sofa again. "That was on Friday the 23d at some time before 20 minutes after 3 in the afternoon, which was the time Mrs. Jorgensen got there and found her. It's kind of hard to say how long she'd been lying there dying before she was found. The only thing we know is that she was all right and answered the phone—and the phone was all right—at about half past 2, when Mrs. Jorgensen called her up and was still all right around 3, when Macauley phoned."

"I didn't know Mrs. Jorgensen phoned."

"It's a fact." Guild cleared his throat. "We didn't suspect anything there, you understand, but we checked it up just as a matter of course and found out from the girl at the switchboard at the Courtland that she put the call through for Mrs. J. about 2:30."

"What did Mrs. J. say?"

Synopsis

Nick Charles, noted detective, who tells the story of "The Thin Man," and Nick's wife, Nora, meet Dorothy Wynant, daughter of a former client, in a speakeasy. Dorothy asks where her father is and Nick refers her to Herbert Macaulay, Wynant's attorney. Macaulay, calls on Nick and tells him Mimi, Wynant's divorced wife, is hunting him.

Next day Nick reads of the murder of Julia Wolf, Wynant's secretary. Mimi found the body when she went to get Wynant's address.

While a Mr. Norman is telephoning to Nick a loud report as of a shot is heard and his words end abruptly.

Dorothy appears at Nick's apartment and flashes a gun which she says she got in a speakeasy. She is drunk and Nora puts her to bed. Morelli, a gangster, is suspected in Julia's murder.

Nick is shot by Morelli. Police find Dorothy's automatic in Nick's apartment. Dorothy, beaten by Mimi, seeks shelter at Nick's, and tells new story about gun. Nick and Nora visit Jorgensens', but leave suddenly. Detective Guild visits Nick.

WRECK OF THE U. S. BATTLESHIP MAINE—SPANISH-AMERICAN WAR (1898)—BATTLEFIELDS—LEADERS

The sinking of the battleship Maine in Havana Harbor, Cuba, attributed to Spanish plot, caused U. S. Congress to declare Cuba free, demanding Spain's withdrawal. Spain not complying, war began.

Capt. W. T. Sampson blockaded with U. S. fleet, Matanzas, Northern Cuba, April 27, then steamed eastward closing in Spanish Admiral Cervera's fleet in Santiago Bay.

June 20 Gen. Shafter landed with 17,000 men at Daiquiri. Battles at Las Guasimas, San Juan Hill and El Caney were the most important in the drive on Santiago, Gen. Wheeler and the volunteer cavalry known as "Rough Riders" under personal command of Lieut. Col. Theodore Roosevelt played a distinguished part. July 3 Admiral Sampson (promoted from captain) destroyed Cervera's ships or forced them on the banks. Cervera surrendered July 16, Gen. Toral in command of Santiago, July 26.

Gen. N. A. Miles with U. S. troops landed in Porto Rico, July 25. His campaign was terminated by the armistice, August 13.

The Spanish-American War also extended to the Pacific. Admiral Dewey destroyed in Philippine waters a Spanish fleet of Admiral Montojo. Aguinaldo, leader of insurgent Filipinos, co-operated with American forces. His attitude, however, gave cause for caution. So Dewey waited for Gen. Merrit's troops to enter Manila August 13 upon a preliminary treaty signed the day before. (United States History)

USES OF ALUMINUM—BOON FOR TRANSPORTATION

Due to its low density (about 2.7) the use of aluminum is daily increasing. Mixed with magnesium, copper, manganese, aluminum alloys were developed possessing lightness and strength needed in airship, auto, railroad construction. SILAS MARNER, WEAVER OF RAVELOE

In this masterpiece of George Eliot (Mary Ann Evans, 1819-1880) Silas Marner, a weaver—expelled from his home town on false charges—toils with numbed mind in Raveloe, treasuring the hard earned gold in his cottage among stone pits. Silas' gold is stolen one night as Dunstan Cass, worthless son of the landowner, disappears.

Dunstan's brother, Godfrey, had secretly married a bar-maid. She, en route to reveal the marriage to her father-in-law, perishes in the snow, due to her addiction to opium. Her little daughter crawls into Silas' cottage. He, believing her golden curls an exchange for his stolen gold, raises her as beautiful Eppie.

After 16 years Dunstan's skeleton and the stolen gold are found in the drained pits. Godfrey, remarried and childless, repentingly offers Eppie adoption; she chooses to stay with old Silas and marries Aaron, a playmate. Above: The wedding processaon. (English Literature) (8411I-A)

ELECTRIC RANGE AND HEATING UNIT

RUSSIANIZING ASIA—BUILDING OF TRANS-SIBERIAN RAILROAD

Russianizing Asia advanced greatly with the construction of the Trans-Siberian Railroad (1891-1902), running from St. Petersburg, 5,481 miles across Manchuria to Vladivostok on the Pacific, costing nearly 200 million dollars. It branched southward to ice-free Port Arthur (taken by the Japanese in 1905). This railroad opened great territories to colonization.

Russia annexed Turkestan, expanding into Central Asia, not welcomed by Great Britain. Their interests were fixed in the Anglo-Russian convention (1907) declaring Persia, Afghanistan, Tibet buffer states, dividing them into Russian, British and neutral interest zones. Siam (southwest of Indo China) filled the same purpose between France, Great Britain.

A Mansion in the Skies

In order to get into New York society, you have to live in a roof penthouse and throw lighted cigarets on your neighbors' awnings.

This pentshack business is getting to be the most exclusive canned goods. There was a time when all we wanted was a roof over our heads, now, we want it under our feet.

We will give you a tip on the whole thing. In the old days the penthouse was where they quartered the servants. No room downstairs for all the help. So they built a dog box on the ridge pole and the servants lived there. It was the best place to park in the whole diggings.

But the servants tipped nobody off. They kept quiet about it and lived there. One day, when everything was lovely, the butler copped a quart of the duke's whisky, took it to his little penthouse, drank it and started barking at the moon.

There was no radio in those days. But the butts was doing all right with his barking. He was getting fan mail from as far west as Los Angeles and as far south as Tierra Del Fuego.

Well, the master heard him. Who didn't? The old massa decides to investigate. When he gets up the ladder and pokes his schnozzle out of the turret he sees it is the butler who is broadcasting the canine serenade.

"If it's that much fun to live on the roof," says the master, "I'll live there myself."

So, the servants were given practically bomb proof rooms in the cellar, safe from air raids. The master and his family moved to the roof. And they have been there ever since with their store clothes, city ways and grade A milk.

Now, the master drinks his own whisky and does his own barking at the moon in the adjacent skies. He has a very fine cooking voice, but develops static on the second bottle. His friends scamper around the enchanted mesa dropping large chunks of Della Robbia pottery on pedestrians' hats and dealing out bridge hands from right to left against the grain.

The whole thing is happy days in Dixie and don't forget to write. Add Chinese lanterns, weeping willows, a blue lagoon and the soft clicking of bridgework. Musicians lurk behind the potted palms, playing sweet music upon zithers.

They really graduated in law, but found the profession overcrowded. All you need in New York is a penthouse and three chins. Then your folks can boast that you married well.

ODD FACTS

A telescopic steel mast which can be raised to a height of 210 feet in 25 seconds, and which is mounted on a motor car, is a newly designed "eye" for the artillery. The observer on the platform at the top will have a visual range of 18 miles.

Explorers in south Polar regions have found that human voices could sometimes be heard a mile and a half away, and dogs barking eight miles away.

The best patients for surgical work are the lower class Chinese, who are said to be less liable to shock than other races.

False teeth were formerly carved from ivory. A set, a hundred or more years old, recently exhibited in Chicago, had such a complicated mechanism of springs that they were liable to stick open, refusing to close.

The Foster Memorial

Pittsburgh Is to Render Our Great Native Song Writer Due Honor.

There is a belated disposition to protest against the purchase and removal by Henry Ford of the house in which Stephen C. Foster is reputed to have been born. Pittsburgh has long cherished as a public memorial the building in Lawrenceville which was Foster's home; but nobody showed much interest in his birthplace until Ford came along and bought the structure for his outdoor museum near Dearborn, Mich.

Aside from the fact that there is no use in crying over spilt milk, we can regard with composure the loss of this structure with its somewhat dubious claim to genuineness, because we already possess a Foster shrine and are soon to have another which will make every loyal Pittsburgher's heart beat with pride. We refer to the Foster Memorial that is to be erected on the University of Pittsburgh campus.

This building is being designed by Charles Z. Klauder, of Philadelphia, the same architect who designed the Cathedral of Learning, and will be a Gothic edifice harmonizing with the Cathedral. The Foster Memorial will cost about $500,000 and will stand at the corner of Forbes street and Bigelow boulevard—that is, across the boulevard from the Hotel Schenley. It will stand back 50 feet from Forbes street and 190 feet from the boulevard. It will contain an auditorium seating 750 persons, and rehearsal and reception rooms.

Connected with the main building by a cloistered passage sheltering a garden will be a hexagonal shrine 40 feet in diameter, in which will be housed the most complete collection of Fosteriana in the world. This collection contains original manuscripts and first editions of Foster's songs, was accumulated by Josiah K. Lilly, of Indianapolis, at a cost of $162,000, and donated by him to the university.

The Foster Memorial was originally proposed by the Tuesday Musical Club in 1927, and promoted by the Foster Memorial Building Fund Association, of which E. T. Whiter was chairman. The entire amount sought has been raised. Two thousand one hundred and sixty persons in 26 states contributed; Pittsburgh school children gave $7,000.

The story of the new Foster Memorial is reviewed, because some people are talking as if Pittsburgh, by neglecting to forestall Ford in the purchase of the questionable Foster birthplace, had not been properly appreciative of the composer.

Let Ford have the old structure. It will help to promote Foster's fame to have him thus remembered in the auto manufacturer's great collection of early Americana. Kentucky has a Foster shrine at Bardstown, which Pittsburghers helped to dedicate. Let us sympathize with Ford in his desire to do honor to our distinguished native son.

After all, it is not material things but the songs themselves that have enshrined Foster in the hearts of people the world over.

The Appalachian Trail

Pittsburghers Who Like to Hike Should Try the Footpath on the Mountain Ridges

Recent references in these columns to the Appalachian Trail brought so many inquiries from Pittsburghers who would like to spend their vacations in a walking trip that it seems desirable to explain in somewhat greater detail what this trail is. It is a continuous marked footpath extending from Mt. Katahdin, in the wilderness of Central Maine, through 14 states, 2,050 miles to Mt. Oglethrorpe in Northern Georgia. It follows the mountain ridges and at its highest point, on Clingman's Dome in the Great Smokies, is 6,641 feet above sea level.

In Pennsylvania the trail passes through some of our regions of greatest scenic beauty, including the Mont Alto and Michaux State Forests. The Department of Forests and Waters has co-operated whole-heartedly in the development and maintenance of the trail.

Numerous walking clubs, naturalists' clubs and other organizations of people who love the outdoors are interested in the Appalachian Trail, and already there is a voluminous literature about it. The best guide-book is the one just issued by the Potomac Appalachian Trail Club, 609 American Security and Trust Building, Washington, D. C., for its members. It is called "Guide to Paths in the Blue Ridge," covers in detail the 612 miles of the Appalachian Trail from the Susquehanna River, near Harrisburg, to the Virginia-Tennessee boundary, and sells for $3.

The surprising interest shown by Pittsburghers in the trail and the opportunities it offers for hikes and camping trips in beautiful regions where one does not have to dodge automobiles bears eloquent witness that here, as elsewhere, there is a widespread desire to spend one's vacation in retreat from a mechanized world.

American 'Queen-Mothers'

We Have Many.

If America were a monarchy Mrs. James Roosevelt would be Queen-Mother by virtue of being mother of its ruler.

It is not yet a monarchy, exactly, but Mrs. Roosevelt already is a Queen-Mother, one of many thousands of whom our country can be proud, by virtue of her life-long help and compassion for needy and suffering children of the less fortunate mothers of the nation.

She was the other day a guest at a luncheon given by 3-year-old Helen Bonanos, a patient for more than a year in the babies' ward at Post-Graduate Hospital in New York City. And she was the object of little Helen's adoring gratitude not because of her great name and high position, but because she is a personal friend of Helen's and of thousands of unfortunate children.

Mrs. Roosevelt has served for a quarter of a century on the ladies' auxiliary committee of the hospital's wards. At present she is active as the committee's secretary, and honorary chairman of a committee raising money for the wards.

A Good Guesser

But Let's Hope He's Wrong.

There's something disquieting and also something comforting about the fact that H. G. Wells stands by the prediction he made six years ago that another, and more terrible, world war will begin in 1940.

Of the legion of literary and political guessers, Wells is one of the best. In books he wrote more than a generation ago, he accurately foresaw marvels and terrors which later took shape in reality.

But the date 1940 gives us five or six years of leeway to make this Wells' guess a bad one. Wells is pleasant enough to lend a helping hand to all those determined to spoil his reputation as a guesser.

In Fourth Place!

(Copyright, 1934.)

And yet if a national emergency were to occur America would be in FOURTH PLACE in defensive aviation among the great Powers.

As of December 31, 1933, the statistics show France first, with 4,000 fighting planes; Great Britain second, with 2,500; Italy third, with 2,300, and America with only 1,700 planes for the Army and Navy combined.

Moreover, the Year Book warns:

"The advisability of adopting aircraft procurement programs more in keeping with universal unrest and uncertain conditions prevailing in various quarters of the world was receiving attention among increasing numbers of officials and others who recognized the apparent hopelessness of any constructive disarmament plan up to the present time . . . The proposals, so far as they concerned the United States, could not find the slightest favor among Americans familiar with true conditions."

What America must have for national security and continued peace is a Navy equal to the largest, a sufficient and modernized Army and SUPREMACY in all branches of aviation.

CALIFORNIA DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

TRIUMFO, Cal., May 22.—This is a page from the picture story book—the wondrous Hidden Valley. One turns from a bright notch of the Ventura road abruptly upon a chain of Rhine Valley hills with a clear blue lake sparkling below. The films "Robin Hood" and "Tarzan" were made here.

In a sheer semi-circle of wild beauty the Watterson Rothackers have fashioned their ranch house. And come the revolution—what a spot! In the center of the patio an age-old white oak droops like a great flaring parachute over the slits of cool pebbly paths.

The ranch itself rambles about in a burst of epic grandeur. On its uper ridges are wire fences to keep deer away. Sunny breakfast rooms overlook fronded ponds and waterfalls gurgling over logs. An enormous 14-feet-deep swimming pool has been blasted out of solid rock.

The house is modernly equipped as a Ritz royal suite is yet beglamoured by ancient aureole. One would not be surprised to step through the massive timbered door to the veranda and hear the gravelly crunch of a coach, the sharp crack of a whip and shouts of a postilion.

* * *

I say the ranch house is modern, yet it has eliminated one diablo of torment—the telephone. Will Hays, most indefatigable user of the period, was at first like a chameleon on bright snip of plaid. Then, beguiled by surrounding serenity, he settled down to perhaps the greatest complacency he has enjoyed in years.

We grouped about after the luncheon in the deep-cushioned divans before roaring logs that flickered like an adder's tongue. Small jets of conversation languished to mere murmurs. Through the window on a far-flung peep of hillside a baby lamb was nuzzling its mamma. And save for the faint unredcurrent of birdsong and the tick-tock of a pendulum all became quiet. Unconsciously, the ancient Spanish siesta was upon us. We dozed.

* * *

The Rothacker's lovely daughter Virginia took me down to the white stables to see their riding horses, which galloped hopefully across the corral to the fence for carrots. A young cavalier photographed Virginia and me against the background of a toss of barnyard hay. Rothacker suggested a caption: "The Farmer's Daughter and the Traveling Salesman."

* * *

The wire-enclosed aivary perches high on a rocky rise along one of the innumerable trails. In it fluttered owl-faced pigeons, ring-necked doves, finches, button quail, Javanese sparrows and such. Birds are unconscious actors. When they saw an audience they began pecking about, dusting themselves and skirling parabolas.

* * *

Love interest for the ranch day was provided by Francis Lederer, Hollywood's newest imported Romeo, who dropped in while scouting for a hacienda to rent during his stay. Hand-kissing comes as natural to this exquisite as the American hand-shake. I saw him long before his American debut in the Berlin production of "The Wonder Bar." Theda Bara phoned she was motoring over, but we had to go before she arrived.

* * *

There was a grocery store opening (the only phone in the community is there) down at the village last night. Cowboys and cowgirls, booted and spurred, rode in from neighboring ranches to dance and enjoy a free repast. Boarding school daughters of ranch owners waltzed with the gauchos and sturdy young blacksmiths. Everything ran clean, like the surrounding rivers and hills. The almost lost national mood called for "gaiety" was ardently recaptured. A puny little predicter of world doom from the Madison Square soap box would have looked a bit silly in this crowd.

* * *

The Rothacker collection of dogs, of course, instantly won my affection. Five in all—two spotted coach dogs, a Cairn, shy dachshund and cocker spaniel. The Cairn and a coach came to snarling grips once in the center of the big living room. Out waddled Peter, the old established cocker, nosed himself between them as much as to say, "Not before company, you mutts! Beat it." And they slunk away.

* * *

And, dogs remind me, that if for nothing else I shall always think of Los Angeles with a rosy glow for this. Igling in front of a smart dog shop window in the Wilshire district, a slightly crocked gentleman wandered up. Opening a slit in the door, he called: "Selling your betters, eh?"—and teetered off, bless him!

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Love Comes Like That

I have come to love a place. But it was a hard job.

That statement would surprise you, if you could see the place of which I am speaking. It is beautiful, with such powerful, passionate beauty that it clutches you, at first glance, as an alluring personality clutches you.

With just such fascination the beauty of this place clutched me at first. For days—weeks—I could think of nothing else. Literally, I fell in love with it. I felt it with all my senses.

The sharp, sweet air, in which one smelled the breathing of the soil. The tangled song of whispering grasses, tinkling water, murmuring pines. The glory of pure color—tumbled peaks as black as midnight, heaved against a turquoise sky; vast shadows, flooding canyons with their ruddy wine; pale glint of dawning, clinging to the rocks in bright webs. The feel of yielding earth beneath my feet. The taste of living light along my lips. The nightly wonder of the wheeling stars.

For weeks I was drunk with beauty. At last, I was sure, I had found a place with which I could be happy forever. I would build a home in this place. I would adore it, serve it, give myself to it utterly. I would spend all the money on it I could earn. Ecstatically, I started.

Then one day, as suddenly as though a bell had clanged, I realized that the delight was over. I had been growing a little restless. Tired, perhaps? Now, definitely, I knew that I was bored! Fed up!

I couldn't believe it! I looked around me with shocked and startled eyes. Nothing had changed. There was the same incredible beauty and glory which once had filled me with such peace and joy . . . which once had seemed the perfect answer to all my hunger and discontent. But it no longer meant anything to me. I could still realize its loveliness, but that loveliness did not warm me. I had only one desire. I wanted to get away!

I wanted to get away—yet I was horrified to admit it. I felt disgusted with myself . . . ashamed . . . as though I had betrayed some sacred covenant. But that didn't alter the fact. I wanted to get away—and kept on wanting!

However, I couldn't get away. For many reasons, I had to stay and work on the things I had started. So I stayed. And had a perfectly horrible time. I was lonely beyond words—rebellious, restless, angry, filled with self-pity.

The heat tortured me. The cold sickened me. I woke up each morning with increased dislike for this place to which I was bound. Somehow I got through the days, and did the things I had to do, but I did it all grudgingly, wretchedly.

One year passed. Two. And then there came another change. Not abruptly, this time, but slowly, softly, almost unconsciously. Gently as dawning, happiness began to come back to me. I began to love my place again. I loved it as I had never loved it before!

But now it was not the surface beauty, the fascination of the new experience which held me. It was something far deeper, stronger and more precious. It was the bond of association—the harvest of service rendered. Out of all that I had put into this place, out of all that we had experienced together—beating of summer sun, lashing of winter storm, long loneliness and silence, sweat and weariness—love was coming. Love had come!

At last, I and my place were one.

* * *

And often, passing along the trails which I have made my own, I think how all love is like that—

But if one can stick . . . if one can share . . . if one can serve—LOVE WILL COME!

DIFFERENT NOW

By Winifred Black

What has become of the shoe polish bottle, the one with the cork and the sponge? Don't you remember how it always spilled the polish in the suitcase, and never failed to pick the best dress in the case every time?

There used to be a bottle of that "handy" shoe polish in the bathroom cupboard of every half way decent house in America.

And on the lower shelf there was the little tin box of blacking—that's the one the man of the house used, and really particular men kept a shoe shining box and brush down in the basement somewhere—yes and they used it, too — themselves — don't deny it Brother John, you know you did.

And what's become of the pocket knife your father carried just as much as he carried a handkerchief?

It had four or five blades, some stout and sturdy, some thin and delicate and there was always a corkscrew on the outside of the knife.

And it was a good deal of a job let me tell you, when you had long hair way below your waist and had to sit in the sun for an hour to help it dry. Then curling and the fussing and the fixing afterwards—but you did it and never dreamed of any other way.

Oh, if there was a costume ball or a specially grand affair of some sort, you went to the hair dressers and felt terribly extravagant and wickedly "knowing."

Now every little girl who earns fifteen dollars a week and has to pay her room and board and dress herself, never dreams of shampooing her own hair.

Do you remember when you and two or three other girls went to stay all night with your own particular chum and took your manicure things along so you could all brush your hair and sit down on the floor and "do you nails" together?

You never dreamed of a regular beauty parlor manicure—it just wasn't done, that's all.

Are we getting just the least little bit in the world lazy we moderns? Or do we make so much money that we can afford all these nice little luxuries just as well as not?

Life is so easy these days, so awfully easy and so busy and so hurried. I sometimes wonder what it's all about—don't you?

Your father was a lawyer with more than a goodish income—he would have though it ridiculous to pay someone for shining his shoes.

Dr. Cornish's Experiment Directs Attention to the Endless Search for the Secret of Life.

By Edwin C. Hill

A YOUNG biologist, Dr. Robert E. Cornish, puts a fox terrier to death, then injects a serum into the blood stream and later announces that the dog has been brought back to life, to growl and to eat. Whereupon the doctor is asked to leave the University of California at which he had been engaged in research study, because of the objectionable publicity in connection with the case of the dead dog.

This experiment at Berkeley has attracted world-wide attention, especially among the laymen. To the scientists it is only of passing interest, for, as that eminent surgeon, Dr. Charles Mayo, says, the medical profession knows a lot about reviving life in the lower brain cells, those that govern organs in animals.

* * *

Seek to Unravel Mystery of Death

HOWEVER, Dr. Cornish and his dog serve to bring to mind the intensive and silent search which is going on in the laboratories of the world to discover the secret of life, and to unravel the mystery of death. It is not so long ago that Dr. Eusebio Hernandez, of the College of France, speaking to the Physiological Congress in Boston, challenged the belief that death is inevitable. He advocated the establishment of special centers for experimental study of death, "in which, without explaining the phenomena of life, we may prevent those of death."

Some little evidence exists of single organs of the body being kept alive for periods of time after the death of other parts. The first known demonstration goes back only to 1912 when Prof. J. P. Hermans preserved life in an isolated head for three hours. A Russian, Prof. Koubliabko, is said to have kept alive a heart for 30 hours after the death of a man.

The Russians have been particularly energetic in this field and it was from Moscow, via Universal News Service, that in 1929 we received one of the most remarkable accounts of revivification on record. The body of a man who had been dead for 29 hours was used in the experiment which was witnessed by doctors from the diplomatic corps, including Dr. Eugene Klotz, a noted German savant.

* * *

Dead Man Revived With Secret Solution

THE RUSSIAN physicians, Moulabkov and Andriev, injected a secret solution into the body. This is what is reported to have taken place: Several hours elapsed without any apparent result. Then it was observed that the heart began to react feebly. After another two hours the body regained a slight human warmth. Continuing their vigil, the doctors were startled several hours later by the sound of a weak gurgle in the throat of the man. Dr. Klotz told of the tension among the doctors as a result of their experiment. He said:

"At that moment even the steel nerves of the men of science gave way. Dr. Andriev stared as in a stupor at the man on the operating table. It was as if a sudden fright gripped all our hearts and several of us trembled. It is doubtful if the man actually regained consciousness. His eyelids showed the faintest flutter for a second, but after that, as if he had exhausted himself with a supreme effort to come back to life, his strength ebbed away again rapidly and the experiment was discontinued.

Returning to the present day we have Dr. Mayo asserting that human beings, because of the brain, will never be brought back from death. He states:

"Animals can be revived under certain conditions. We know that. But the cerebrum, that part of the brain which gives the human a mental side, has something in its composition that defies revival after a few minutes."

And he adds:

"It is my belief that science will never find a way to revive a dead mind."

Legislative Racketeering

By ROBERT H. HEMPHILL,

Financial Authority.

THE McLEOD bill to release deposits in closed national banks has been effectively shelved by raw legislative trickery which smacks of the legendary and odorous proceedings of some of our infamous municipal political racketeering.

I believe 75 per cent or more of the citizens of this nation and majorities of both the House and Senate are in favor of the immediate passage of this wholesome and important legislation.

We have all the benefits to gain and nothing to lose.

It would release into immediate circulation nearly 2,000 million dollars, which would be distributed into every channel of commerce and industry, and continue ceaselessly to circulate, in the exchange of goods and services, increasing the annual income of the nation nearly 6,000 million dollars, substantially affecting every man, woman and child in the United States, all of whom share in the distribution of national income.

This increased income would be sufficient to pay the 11 million of our unemployed almost as much as the average individual income in 1929, if devoted to that specific purpose.

THE INDEFENSIBLE inconsistency of the administration's attitude in this matter is strikingly illustrated in the President's simultaneous request to Congress to "appropriate to me" 1,322 million dollars for relief expenditures.

Unlike the money in the closed banks, this money does not now exist. It is to be created by issuing tax free, interest-bearing bonds, which means increased taxes on harassed and discouraged industry, for the sole benefit of the very small entrenched bondholding class, who, by this transparent device, exchange their limited, unreliable and inferior credit for the aggregate credit of this entire nation.

But even this is only a fraction of the picture. Here is the richest nation on earth, being manipulated into borrowing vast sums from a small parasitic group at usurious rates, to finance a questionable program of excessive expenditures, very likely promoted by the same manipulators to create the necessity for borrowing, while in our treasury, idle, frozen and useless, we have nearly 40 per cent of all the monetary gold in the civilized world.

Ample gold to sustain a circulating gold currency of more than 30,000 million dollars; enough to retire the entire fixed debt of the nation, and finance our extravagant so-called recovery program.

THIS PROCEEDING is so illogical, so absurd and so amazing that it is difficult to interpret and comment upon it in restrained language.

Surely our brilliant publishers, industrialists and merchants cannot much longer ignore this crude, simple, transparent, but amazingly effective process by which their diminished earnings and their depreciated properties, the results of their genius and labor, are progressively passing into the hands of these money changers, who contribute so little to society.

No one doubts the earnestness and sincerity of the President.

There is apparently as little room for doubt that his efforts are being perverted by a cunning system which will result in an unbearable burden of debts and which, in the final analysis, may be discovered to be articulated into a world wide conspiracy of exploitation.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

It is quite possible that you feel you would not be welcome in certain circles because you earn your livelihood in an ordinary job.

This is particularly true in a small city where the status of every person is known or can be learned easily.

Others may have more money and live in better homes and perhaps circulate in a better grade of society, but thees facts do not make them personally better than you are.

It is merely a matter of destiny that your positions are not reversed.

Only in rare cases is a person solely responsible for occupying a high financial and social position.

Usually there have been some others who assisted or provided the way for elevation to this high position.

Not having lifted themselves by merit alone to the position they occupy, should anyone feel superior to the one who has done well entirely because of his own efforts?

WHAT DO YOU KNOW?

By S. H. Connolly

Match correctly:

1. "A noise like of a hidden brook In the leafy month of June." — Kipling.
2. "His speech flowed from his tongue sweeter than honey." — Coleridge.
3. "An' the dawn comes up like thunder Outer China 'crost the Bay." — Moore.
4. "Some have greatness thrust upon them." — Homer.
5. "But there's nothing half so sweet in life As love's young dream." — Shakespeare.

Do you know:

6. What is a combination of electric cells called?
7. What is meant by the term "specific gravity?"
8. What is the greatest inland waterway in the United States?
9. Who discovered the sea route to the East Indies?
10. What was the term Gehenna used to designate?
11. What are the sacred books of ancient India called?
12. What connects South America with North America?
13. What shape is St. Andrew's cross?
14. Who was the favorite wife of Jacob?
15. In what ocean is New Zealand?

1. Coleridge, "Ancient Mariner." 2. Homer, "Iliad." 3. Kipling, "Mandalay." 4. Shakespeare, "As You Like It." 5. Moore, "Love's Young Dream." 6. Battery. 7. The number of times a solid or liquid is heavier or lighter than an equal volume of water. 8. The Great Lakes. 9. Vasco da Gama. 10. Hell. 11. Vedas. 12. Isthmus of Panama. 13. In the form of the letter X. 14. Rachel. 15. South Pacific.

ISN'T IT SO?

Man has his will, but woman has her way.

Don't spread an ill report about your neighbor unless you know it is true—and don't do it.
